

Free Child's Remedy

What mother is not looking for something that will help her children in the little ills of life, something for the stomach trouble and the bowel trouble? Long ago she probably has become convinced that a child cannot readily swallow a pill or a tablet, and that to "break them in half and crush them" is an annoyance; that usually they work too drastically, and are nauseating and too powerful for the little one's stomach.

SCARLET FEVER STOPS GRAND JURY

TOWNSHIP TRUSTEES ORDER J. L. WYLLIE, OF GILMAN, TO STAY AT HOME.

HOUSE IS QUARANTINED BECAUSE OF THE DISEASE

Jury Foreman Seek Order From State Board of Health Releasing Wyllie So That Grand Jury Can Continue Its Investigation—Order Will Probably Be Issued Soon.

Scarlet fever in the home of J. L. Wyllie, a grand juror, who lives near Gilman, caused a postponement in the continuation of the grand jury's session today to investigate the charges made against County Attorney J. H. Egermeyer. At noon it was expected that the release of Mr. Wyllie from quarantine would be accomplished some time today so that he could meet with the grand jury Wednesday.

An effort to secure his release thru the state board of health at Des Moines was being attempted this morning. At noon enough assurance had been given by W. R. Moninger, foreman of the jury, to indicate that this would be granted some time this afternoon.

People "Kick" About Wyllie.

It was because of the protest made by people who live in the neighborhood of the Wyllie family and in Gilman that Wyllie was unable to be here today for the grand jury session. So strenuous were the objections about his leaving his home, which is under quarantine for scarlet fever, that the board of trustees of Greenacres township, ordered him to remain at home.

Mr. Wyllie was given permission to attend last week's sessions of the grand jury by the physician who has charge of the scarlet fever cases in the Wyllie home. When the people of near Gilman learned this they complained to the township trustees.

When it was learned Monday afternoon that Wyllie's release could probably be secured before Wednesday, Attorney General Byers was notified, so he did not come to the city today. It will be possible for the grand jury to get together Wednesday he will come tomorrow morning.

WILL CASE TO JURY.

Question of Schumann's Mental Condition to Be Decided Soon. It was expected at noon today that the Schumann will case, which has been on trial in the district court for the past ten days, would be given to the jury late this afternoon. The question the jury will be asked to decide is whether or not Peter Christ Schumann, was mentally sound and capable of making a will at the time in 1907 when he is alleged to have done so.

Of the twenty-seven young people who sought to secure state teachers' certificates by the examinations, taken in the office of County Superintendent of Schools Mary Hostetter late in January, twenty passed and will receive certificates. Of the twenty-seven, seven failed. Of the twenty who successfully passed the examination second grade certificates will be issued to thirteen and third grade certificates will be issued to seven. A few took special examinations, but the returns on these have not yet been received.

The Beautiful Hair of English Women

(Annie Bly in N. Y. Graphic.) The long, abundant and glossy tresses of English women are not due to hair tonics and heroic shampooing. There is a general belief over there that the best water put on the hair, the better it is: they say wetting "takes the life out" and leaves the hair dull, brittle and colorless. English women with hair rich in color, clean and wholesome—and plenty of it—have told me they attribute it to dry shampooing two or three times a week. They mix four ounces of theriac with four ounces of orris root and sprinkle a tablespoonful of this mixture on the head, then brush the powder thoroughly thru the hair. This also avoids the danger of catching cold and the discomfort that accompanies washing, rinsing and drying the hair. This treatment keeps the hair light, fluffy and lustrous, and is the only thing I know that will actually produce the growth of hair.

The rooms were prettily decorated in red hearts, red carnations and roses, and the lights were shaded in the same color. The two-course menu, in which the valentine suggestion prevailed, was served at tables decorated by candles with heart-shaped shades, and the hand-painted place cards were also significant of valentine's day. The lunch was served by Misses Winifred Chamberlain and Mary Crowl. Fortunes were told by means of hearts, and other appropriate games furnished entertainment. In the card game of hearts, Miss Josephine Gabelman won the prize, and Mr. George Owings secured the consolation. Mr. Dwight Denmead received the prize, and Dr. A. C. Conaway the consolation, in a hunt for hidden hearts. Miss Wyeth will be a guest at the Kimball home for about three weeks.

GIVES WARNING COAL SHORTAGE

CITY WILL STORE COAL FOR APRIL SUPPLY, WHEN SCARCITY IS PREDICTED.

MINERS' SCHEDULES EXPIRE ON APRIL 1

Clark Brings Question Before Council and Gregory Confirms Likelihood of April Shortage—Mayor Authorized to Act—Gregory Suggests All Factories Should Do Lkewise.

A warning of another coal shortage, but not due to weather conditions, was sounded in the city council Monday night when Chairman Clark, of the waterworks committee, reported to the council that the Consumers' Fuel Company, which has the city contract, had informed him that a shortage in the supply might be expected thru the month of April.

Councilman Gregory, of the Second ward, was called on for some expert testimony in the case, and confirmed the prediction of a shortage.

City Will Store Supply. The result of the informal talk, in which Mr. Gregory told the council that the miners' schedules expire on April 1 and for a month or six weeks there is always a period of unrest and a cessation of mining operations, the council authorized the mayor to store a month's supply of coal.

Manufacturers Take Notice. Mr. Gregory said that every manufacturing institution in the city should be alive to the situation, and have a supply of coal on hand for April. Gregory said he, as a dealer, was going to get hold of everything he could between now and April 1. Mr. Gregory also said that the Iowa Central was taking the entire output of the mines along its lines.

Mr. Raymond formerly owned the Hotel Raymond at Salt Lake City, which he sold several months ago.

Method in Feeding. Feeding cattle is an art. Have you learned it? One cow needs more and better food than another. You can't feed them all out of the same spoon. Fit your ration to the cow.

The cow that is giving milk needs a different ration from the one that will soon begin the business of a new year. She ought to have a good, succulent, or juicy ration. The dry cow soon to come needs a light, laxative ration. No heavy grain feed for her. You want to cool her system and heavy feed will work the other way.

Helpers with their first calf are sometimes as wild as deer. Just keep away from them till they get over the excitement of that supreme moment. It is a great time for the little heifer. You will only make things worse if you try to fix things for her. If she bawls, let her bawl. It is all right. She will soon find out what it is all about and then you can come to the front—Agricultural Epitomist.

Was Dr. Cook Self-Deluded? Whether or not Dr. Cook ever reached the north pole, a question upon which the civilized world has had and has the excitement of opinion from the time of the announcement of his claim, there can, it seems, be no final difference on the question of the genuineness of the explorer's own belief that he had been there. Every competent observer who met him personally has maintained that he is quite incapable, morally or intellectually, of concocting a colossal scheme to hocus the entire world. Throughout the whole affair there is no evidence of any plan to impose on the credulity of mankind. It seems probable that Dr. Cook actually attained a very high northern latitude, perhaps came within a shorter distance of the north pole than he will ever be credited for. It is sincerely to be regretted that he did not, upon his return to civilization, frankly state his actual achievement. This was probably in itself noteworthy enough to entitle him to honor and financial return, sufficient, perhaps, to compensate him for the privations he underwent. It may be that his lonely imprisonment during the six months' Arctic night after his return from his farthest north affected his memory and judgment. Thruout the whole discussion the attitude and conduct of the University of Copenhagen and the Danish people have been worthy of sincere respect and admiration. The unaccepted with dignified enthusiasm and at its face value the claim of an American explorer against whose record they had no suspicion. All thru the trying period of discussion, so often bitter and unfair, they maintained the dignified reserve that properly characterizes all sincere and honest folk while awaiting a decision. But when the necessary evidence was not produced they did not permit their desire or their preceding action to prevent a decision in strict accord with scientific truth.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Review of Reviews for February.

The Supreme Test.

An Indianapolis story about Booth Tarkington. "Mr. Tarkington," he begins, "came into my shop one day at Christmas time, and said: 'I want a Noah's ark, please. Not one of your modern Noah's arks, but a good, old-fashioned one—one wherein Noah is the same size as the elephant.' 'I think I've got what you want, sir,' I answered, 'up in the attic.' 'And I soon brought down to him a dusty old Noah's ark of the kind that I had sold when he was a little boy in a bib.' 'Mr. Tarkington opened the lid, peered in, and said: 'Aha, this is the ticket. There they all are. There is Noah, the same size as the dove, and the dove is the same size as the elephant. But to make sure that this is a genuine old-fashioned Noah's ark I will apply one last test. I will, sir, with your permission, taste Noah's head.' 'And Mr. Tarkington laughed, pretended to taste the bright paint on the head of the patriarch, and, paying his bill, walked out with the old-fashioned Noah's ark under his arm.'—Indianapolis News.

DISAPPEARED FEEL SPLENDID

Stella Falquist, of Laporte, Minn., Tells How Her Troubles Disappeared After Taking Cardui, the Woman's Tonic

Laporte, Minn.—"I am getting along fine and feel splendid, since taking Cardui" writes Mrs. Stella Falquist, of this place. "I used to have backache, headache, and that tired out feeling. I had other womanly troubles and dragging sensations, but they have almost disappeared now."

"I cannot praise Cardui enough, for it has done wonders for me." Cardui is no mere nerve sedative or pain queller, and contains none of the new headache ingredients, the too frequent indulgence in which may be dangerous.

On the contrary, Cardui is harmless, as its ingredients are mild, tonic herbs, acting mainly on the female constitution and building up both nervous and vital energy.

No harmful effects can possibly come, to young or old, from the use of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and thousands of women, have written like Stella Falquist, to tell of the great benefit they obtained from its use. NOTE—The Cardui Home Treatment for Women, consists of Cardui (50c), for the liver, and Cardui Antiseptic (50c). These remedies may be taken singly, by themselves, if desired, or three together, as a complete treatment for women's ills. Write to: Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., for special instructions, and 64-page book, "Home Treatment for Women," sent in plain wrap per. on request.
