PLAN BIG DAY FOR COUNTY VETERANS

FAIR COMMITTEE DESIGNATES TUESDAY OF FAIR WEEK AS SOLDIERS' DAY.

INVITE GENERAL ADKINS TO DELIVER ADDRESS

Special Program, Which Is to Be in Charge of Committee of Veterans, To Be Prepared for the Day—Special Committee Is Named to Have Charge of Barn Building.

The Tuesday of the next county fair week is to be old soldiers' day. It was so designated at a meeting of the executive committee of the Marshall County Fair Association, held Friday afternoon, and tentative plans were prepared to make it the biggest veterans' day of the year outside of the state fair.

An invitation has been extended to Major General Smith D. Adkins, of Freeport, Ill., to be the principal speaker of the day, the program for which is to be in charge of a committee of old soldiers. This committee, which will perfect the plans for the program, is to be chosen later, and it is the intention to make the day a special feature of the coming fair.

Appoint Committee to Build.

A committee, consisting of Warren Nichols, L. C. Abbott and W. M. Clark was appointed to have charge of the building of the barn. This committee was instructed to wreck a portion of the old stalls, tearing down those farthest to the west and secure plans and bids for the new horse barn. This barn will be approximately 40x200 feet ground dimensions.

Local Comment

Marshalltown will have so close to 14,000 people when the final enumeration is completed that we might as well call it so and settle it now.

The banquet of the Marshalltown Club, while disappointing in attendance considering the size of the membership, was a success for all those who did attend. It brought men together and they enjoyed contact with one another. It has always been so with commercial club banquets.

Some people are becoming enthusiastic over the idea of a river to river good road across the state for automobiles to travel. It is a worthy purpose but it only a start in the right direction. Every one of the eleven highways leading into Marshalltown could be kept as smooth as a race track nine months in the year and eight miles out in each direction for $2,000. Beginning March 1 these roads should be dragged once every week until July 1, then once in two weeks until Sept. 15 and then once a week again until Dec. 1. The Commercial Club should raise more than half the money and get the land owners along the roads to put in a part of it. Men and teams should be hired by the season or districts contracted to farmers. The Times-Republican once kept a mile of highway in perfect condition for a season and knows what the expense is. Today there is hardly a road drag in the immediate vicinity of this city. Why does the new club not attempt something practicable?

When a citizen of Mr. G. F. Kirby's long experience as a railroad engineer and of the foremost success as a business man appears before the city council advocating concrete paving the average citizen and councilman should sit up and take notice. There was a time when Mr. Kirby might have been suspected of a personal interest and yet the same amount of lime stone is always used in a brick pavement with concrete base as in a concrete pavement, but now Mr. Kirby has sold his quarry business. What he has to say is from the knowledge of a man who knows and who is free from personal interest. He is supported on his public committee by such men as Rev. Fitzpatrick, Superintendent Palmer and J. E. Stanton. Suppose that Mr. Kirby and any two of these men should constitute the commissioners for Marshalltown under a commission form of government, would we have an improved administration? Would we?

Concrete paving was let in Clarinda, Iowa, this week at $1.30 per square yard to J. S. McLaughlin & Sons, contractors, of Topeka, Kan. It is mentioned here merely to show how other towns get away from $2 per yard for brick paving which some people think is the only paving possible.

City Engineer Steiner has offered a good suggestion when he proposes to provide more lights for Main street in the business district. Marshalltown is not as well lighted as other cities, owing to the prohibitive commercial rates always charged for electric lights and anything that Mr. Steiner can suggest to overcome the difficulty should be welcomed.

If Superintendent Mack persists in urging that the water from the old Pierce galleries be turned into the city's water mains he ought to be removed from his office for if he is of that mind there will always be the danger that he will turn this water into the mains without the formality of the council's permission. Marshalltown is entitled to pure water and she has had it ever since the river water and the drainage from the river has been kept out of the mains. We do not want any more typhoid fever epidemics. We had better sink some more wells but the first thing to do is to meter every water service in town and stop the waste of the pure water we have. Mr. Mack does not so intend it but he is proposing what is likely to kill somebody with typhoid germs. The risk is too terrible to think about.

As to the wisdom of metering a meter salesman tells us that Minneapolis with a full meter service is pumping no more water now for 200,000 people than she did for 60,000 people when she had no meter service. That St. Louis City, Iowa, and Lincoln, Neb., are now pumping only thirty-five gallons per day per capita with meters while Marshalltown pumps 100 gallons per day per capita based on 15,000 population. Think of paying 10 cents per day flat rate for all the strawberries you can eat and throw in the garbage can and you are doing business without meters. The mayor is right on this proposition.

The mayor's public chastisement of four councilmen for refusing to permit him to put pins in their noses, three of whom were elected on the mayor's ticket is both sad and ridiculous. "There is no possible reason for repeating my gas ordinance," he shrieks and then throws out some insulting remark about an editor's wife's relations so as to accuse these four men of working for some individual's gain rather than for the public interest as they see it. "My" gas ordinance, indeed! When the mayor knows that he got the original draft of his gas ordinance from the very editor whom he tries to insult, that he got his information as to gas rates from the same source and then blows and blusters around about "my" gas ordinance while accusing these men of newspaper violation to cover up the fact that when he was serving the real public interest himself he got his information from the same newspaper man whom he now tries to insult. If the mayor would shout less about "my" policies and "I am" and give men elected to the city council credit for their respect and independence of mind he would not lose the friends who had pulled his ticket thru for him at an election.

"You have seen fit to ignore the city's duly elected legal department," he complains and why shouldn't they? When they first proposed to reduce the electric rates this duly elected legal department tried to confuse and trip them by telling them that they were barred from so doing by a previous stipulation. He was doing it with the mayor's consent. This was not the law. They had to hunt up lawyers who would help them instead of helping the mayor to stop them.

Your dilatory actions—your failure to act, had held up the litigation of the city's gas ordinance over two terms of court," he said. "Whether the franchise you voted to Darling was good or bad is not now material. You voted it and the people rejected it. Oh! Pahaw. Think of addressing such stuff to Gregory, McCarran and Herman, who voted against the Darling franchise, which the mayor forced thru himself and who got out and beat it at the polls. Was the man insane with anger or just silly?"

His reported confession made to Mr. E. Z. Mack is the only explanation. "Ed," he is reported to have said "the commission plan is my only hope and you know what that means to you. I don't care who is elected commissioner if I was mayor I could get at least one of them with me and then I could accomplish something which is more than any man can do with these four blockheads in my way. You ought to put your shoulder to the wheel on this thing." Now that is a misconception of the commission plan. While it is true that if the government of this city was placed in the hands of three men instead of eight there would not be so many to line up on a proposition, it does not follow that if all power was to be vested in three men instead of eight the people of this city would be any more likely to re-elect the present mayor than they would be without the commission plan.

CASE STANDS REVERSED

Supreme Court Overrules Petition For Rehearing in Case of Minerva Walters vs. City—Victory for Former City Attorney—Echo of Senatorial Campaign.

The supreme court of Iowa has overruled the petition for a rehearing in the case of Minerva E. Walters, et al., vs. the city of Marshalltown, as made in an application of the plaintiff following a reversal of the lower court's decision. The action of the supreme court sends the case back to the district court of this county for trial, providing the plaintiff cares to retry the case.

The action brought by Mrs. Walters and her husband against the city was for alleged damages by reason of overflow of water from the Twelfth avenue grade. In the district court, in the fall of 1908, Mrs. Walters was given a judgment for $1,260. C. H. Van Law, then city solicitor, appealed the case and got a reversal, after which the appellee petitioned for a rehearing, which has now been denied.

The final action in the case is in a way an echo of the senatorial campaign in this county, when Mr. Van Law and Mayor Ingledue were opposing candidates before the primaries. In the city council one night the mayor, as a matter of political capital, referred to the expensiveness of attorneys, and lawsuits, especially in the Walters case, which had cost the city so much money and had resulted in defeat. The mayor said at that time that he could have settled the Walters case for $200. The mayor will now have his opportunity to settle for the reversal of the verdict and denial of rehearing puts the litigation back to the starting point.

Examine Anson Relatives.

The commissioners of insanity Friday afternoon examined the relatives of Alva Anson, against whom a charge of insanity was filed a few days ago, to determine if possible what would be the best action to take in the case. After spending more than an hour questioning the members of the family, the commissioners arrived at no decision. They postponed any action until Anson's guardian, W. W. Doolittle, should have time to secure, if possible, some competent person here in the city who would take charge and properly care for the old man. If such a person cannot be secured the commissioners will probably take action, but what this action will be it has not yet been determined.

EGERMAYER TO AGT IN LENOX STRIKE

PROCEEDS UNDER STATUTES TO PROTECT FACTORY EMPLOYEES.

DIRECTS SHERIFF TO PROCURE EVIDENCE

In Letter to Sheriff County Attorney Calls Attention to Lack of Protection—Asks Sheriff to Prevent Crime—Sheriff Says He Will Act—Claims Special City Officer at Fault.

In a letter to Sheriff A. A. Nicholson today County Attorney J. H. Egermayer proceeded under the criminal statutes to afford protection to employees of the Lenox Machine Company who are at work in the machine shops where other employees are out on a strike.

In his letter to the sheriff the county attorney directs that officer to procure evidence as to the persons who are assembling from night to night and making threats against and abusing by word of mouth the employees of the company. The sheriff is also directed to report on any use of vile and obscene language such as may attract the attention of people in the neighborhood, to afford protection to the employees of the Lenox Machine Company, and prevent the commission of any crime.

Claims City Officer at Fault.

The county attorney has had many complaints from people in the neighborhood and employees of the company, as to the acts of former employees who are now on a strike, also concerning the actions of one of the special officers appointed by the mayor to preserve order and protection at the factory.

According to information given the county attorney the special city officer is in sympathy with the strikers, and does not appreciate what constitutes the commission of a crime. The county attorney has been informed that when the officer had been appealed to by a woman, whose husband had been corralled and was being abused by strikers and their sympathizers, the woman was told by the officer that if she did not want her husband to get into trouble she had better not have him work.

Sheriff Says He Will Act.

Sheriff A. A. Nicholson said after the county attorney's letter had been delivered to him that he would act; that he would thoroughly investigate the case personally, and that if necessary he would employ help. He said that if evidence was obtainable arrests would be made.

"I'll make a thorough investigation of it," said the sheriff, and if I can obtain the evidence there will be prosecutions. I'll go on the job personally and if I find that it is necessary I will employ all the help I think is needed. I intend to look after it."

Complain to Marshalltown Club.

A committee of the machinists, who were not union men, and who did not go out when the strike was called, have lodged a complaint with the Marshalltown Club. Some of these men have worked for the company for years and have bought homes here.

They say that they have been followed home from the plant by strikers, who have called them "scabs" and applied vile epithets to them. They have asked that the Marshalltown Club take some action that will aid them or protect them against abuse. The directors of the club will probably take the matter up with the mayor in a short time.

Police Say Nothing Wrong.

Deputy Marshal Michael Clark, who has been on duty at the plant both morning and evening for several weeks, says that the police and the special officers assigned to this duty are powerless to act unless they are eye witnesses to the abuse complained of by the non-union workmen. The officers, Clark said, altho they have frequently accompanied working men home from the plant, and altho strikers have frequently followed them, say that the workmen have not been molested, at least insofar as any violence was concerned. He also says that the officers have not heard the strikers cursing the workmen. He admitted that strikers lay in wait for some one those employed when they returned from the plant, but he says that the officers are powerless to prevent this.

Police Want Complaints Filed.

The police say that complaints should be filed by the men working at the plant if they are done any violence or molested. Clark says that the non-union men have been told this repeatedly and have been asked to do it, and he wants to know why, if they have been molested, they have not done so.

The non-union men say, on the other hand, that it is hard to get evidence, because the strikers do not molest or curse them when any one is near. They complain that while strikers follow them and curse them so long as there is no one within hearing distance, that as soon as any one comes near the strikers keep silent and apparently attend to their own affairs.

Claim Guards Are Impartial.

When asked about the special officer on duty at the plant, who is said to be an union painter and in sympathy with the strikers, Clark said he knew he was a painter but that he did not know he was a union man.

Clark declared that three of the four special officers had been chosen for the very reason that they were not in sympathy with the present city administration so that they could not be accused of being partial and not doing their duty.

Royal Highlanders Attention.

All members are requested to attend the funeral of Harry L. Caswell, 19 o'clock, Sunday morning, from the house, 307 North Second avenue. Joseph Schedl, I. P.

Members Methodist Brotherhood. There will be a special sermon to men Sunday evening, by the pastor, followed by the installation of the officers of the brotherhood. You are requested to meet promptly at 7:15 in the basement of the church, from which the brotherhood will go in a body to seats that will be reserved for them.

Likes Soldiers' Home.

The Council Bluffs Nonpareil says: "J. W. Kirk, of the soldiers' home at Marshalltown, has been spending a week's turlough with his son and renewing old acquaintances in this city. Mr. Kirk is well known here, formerly being connected with the police department and having many friends in Council Bluffs. He and his invalid wife went to the soldiers' home something over a year ago in order that he might devote more of his time to caring for Mrs. Kirk and secure the medical treatment which a meager income made impossible here. He is very enthusiastic in his praise of the soldiers' home and says it is a splendid institution, splendidly conducted and provides for all the wants of the members in truly lavish fashion. He reports the members from Council Bluffs mostly in fairly good health and contented and happy."

Committee Inspects Church.

A committee from the Capitol Hill Church of Christ, Des Moines, spent Friday in the city, coming to inspect the new Church of Christ in this city, which is now nearing completion. The Des Moines church is going to build a new church, and is anxious to get as many ideas as possible in modern church architecture. The members of the committee here were Rev. H. E.

Van Horn, Harry Newburn, and Edwin Graves.
L. L. Dibble, of Waterloo, and Willie Hoffman, the boy preacher, aged 10, were also in the city Thursday to see the new church.

W. T. Hughes Dead.

Mrs. Emma Weatherly, 403 East Linn street, received word this morning from San Jose, Cal., telling of the death of W. T. Hughes, husband of a former Marshalltown woman. Mrs. Hughes was formerly Mrs. Mary L. Zink, of this city, and was a dress-maker here for several years prior to her marriage to Mr. Hughes at San Jose. Mr. Hughes died in a hospital at Sawtelle, Cal., of kidney disease. He was about 65 years old.
