

JUROR'S WIFE DYING, HYDE CASE DELAYED

TRIAL STOPS INDEFINITELY AT NOON WHEN SUMMONS COMES FROM BEDSIDE.

MORNING TESTIMONY IS ONLY CORROBORATORY

Court Refuses Request of Hyde's Attorneys That State's Records Be Shown to Them—Clash Occurs Between Attorneys—Hyde and Wife Moved to Laughter.

Kansas City, April 29.—Delay became imminent in the Hyde trial when at noon today William Beebe, a juror, was called to the bedside of his dying wife. The morning session of court was devoted largely to testimony of undertakers, cemetery employes and persons who guarded the bodies of the Swopes and James Moss Hutton after their deaths.

Mr. Paxton and Attorney Walsh for Dr. Hyde clashed several times yesterday, the attorney seeking to show that the witness harbored malice against the defendant, but this he steadfastly denied.

Causus Doctor to Laugh. Dr. and Mrs. Hyde laughed heartily when Mr. Paxton told about his employing detectives to work on the case. Asked why he employed the sleuths, he said:

"To shadow Dr. Hyde and prevent him from escaping."

Mr. Paxton and Attorney Walsh exchanged warm comments during the cross-examination of the witness. Mr. Walsh was insistent upon knowing how much money the witness got for his work. Mr. Paxton charged Mr. Walsh with casting aspersions on his honesty.

"As an attorney is paid, so properly should I be paid on my case," was Mr. Walsh's comment.

Calling attention to the fact that the defense had served a subpoena on Mr. Paxton, ordering him to produce the papers passed between him and the scientists who made the autopsy on Colonel and Christman Swope, Mr. Walsh asked the court to force the witness to give them to Dr. Hyde's attorneys.

Court Refuses Request. Judge Lathrop refused the request.

"If all of the state's evidence were to be turned over to the defense in criminal cases, you might as well lock the front doors of the jails and open the back."

Druggist is Recalled. Attorney Walsh had Brecklein, the druggist, recalled to the stand and asked him:

"Isn't cyanide of potassium used internally in quantities of one grain for cases of rheumatism, for cleaning silver ware, and for dropping into the eye?" asked Mr. Walsh.

"It is," replied Mr. Brecklein.

GAYNOR ATTACKS HEARST.

Row Precipitated at Banquet of Newspaper Publishers.

New York, April 29.—The regular joint dinner of The Associated Press and the American Newspaper Publishers' Association was thrown into riotous and prolonged disorder last night when Thomas F. Williams, business manager for William R. Hearst, was refused permission to speak as he rose to reply to biting criticisms Mayor Gaynor had just made of Mr. Hearst's part in journalism.

For twenty-five minutes the uproar continued, while men stood in their chairs and women craned from the balconies of the banquet hall.

"Mr. Hearst is not here. I am his friend and have a right to be heard," Mr. Williams shouted, climbing on the speakers' table and shaking his fist in the face of the mayor.

"Put him out." "Shut up." "Free speech," came from all parts of the hall.

Toastmaster N. C. Wright, of the Cleveland Leader, hammered in vain for order, while Mr. Williams stood impassive but obstinate and waited with folded arms to be heard.

"This is a disgrace to the press of the United States, it must end," shouted Adolph S. Ochs, president of the New York Times, as he stood on his chair behind the toastmaster and begged for a world.

"Mr. Williams, I promise you have less than forty words to speak, let me say them for him."

"No, no," yelled the diggers.

"Mr. Williams says," began Mr. Ochs.

"No, no," broke in the thoroughly angered diners, with added insistence.

PATTEN STANDS TO LOSE.

Up Against a Bad Proposition in His Cotton Deal.

New York, April 29.—James A. Patten, Chicago "wheat king" and recent acquisition to famous cotton plungers in New York grappling with the battle of his life—a chance to lose many millions, or should luck be with him again, richer in a far greater measure than he is now.

As matters now stand things look highly dubious for the western speculator, and close observers of the cotton market say that Patten faces the most serious dilemma of his life. As the story runs, Patten is long 300,000 bales of cotton, and he needs about $21,000,000 to take up that quantity of the staple.

Today is "notch day" on the local exchange for May deliveries, and the westerner will have to show his hand. If he loses he will lose millions, and Patten, who has seen his way through other big deals, may break.

When interviewed Patten said: "I am ready to take all the cotton that is tendered to me and pay for it. What Scales and Brown are doing or are going to do I don't know. It's none of my business. I am here to attend to my own business. I have not the least idea how much cotton is going to be tendered to me, and I won't say how much I have bought. I do not know, however, for any excitement in the market."

BALLINGER ON STAND; SAYS GLAVIS LIED

SECRETARY OF INTERIOR APPEARS BEFORE INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE.

MAKES DENIAL OF CLAIMS OF SO-CALLED PROSECUTION

Denies Being Interested in Alaskan Coal Lands, and Declares He Did Not Have Legal Business With Cunningham Group of Coal Men—Shows Appointment Came From Roosevelt.

Washington, April 29.—Secretary Ballinger took the stand soon after the Ballinger-Pinchot inquiry began this morning, and his attorney, Vertrees, at once launched into the direct examination.

Ballinger recounted the story of his career up to the time he became commissioner general of the land office on the earnest solicitation of President Roosevelt, Secretary Garfield, and Senator Wiley. Replying to questions, he said he knew of six Cunningham Alaskan coal claimants at the time he became commissioner; that he had no interest in Alaskan or any other lands but that he was the organizer of a mining company that had interests in gold diggings at Nome.

Ballinger described how he reorganized the land office. This was followed by reference to the Glavis testimony that he and Ballinger had talked about specific groups of Alaska coal lands. This Ballinger also said that, replying to Roosevelt's request for an explanation of his differences with Garfield, he made report to the then president, and that later Roosevelt said he had embodied Ballinger's recommendation in his annual message, and that he retracted that he was seriously hurt. Ballinger and Pinchot see it they'll go thru the roof, but he guessed the "roof was strong enough to hold 'em."

CROP LOSS PROVES SMALLER.

Southern Railway Head Says First Reports Were Exaggerated.

Washington, April 29.—Damages to crops in the southern states east of the Mississippi River are not as great as some of the first reports seem to indicate, according to President Finley of the Southern Railway. He said today that reports show cotton and corn have suffered in the northern two-thirds and the states of Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia, but that farther south these crops were not injured and that farther north they were not far enough advanced to be seriously hurt.

"There is still ample time to replant both cotton and corn," he said, "and if this is done extensively the final yield may not be greatly reduced. Reports indicate a general suspension of cotton seed crushing by oil mills, with a view to conserving seed for replanting. The peach crop does not seem to have been materially damaged. Melons and cantaloupes in southern Georgia may have to be replanted to some extent. Strawberries suffered little. No damage was done to fruits, vegetables or other crops in Virginia."

Washington, April 29.—President Taft, addressing the members of the American Society for International Law, who had called upon him this morning, said the vindication of the rights of foreigners which had been violated on American soil could be adjusted directly by the chief executive instead of the president being obliged to refer those who complain to the courts of American national obligations to the governors of states and county prosecutors. He thought congress should be urged to put in the hands of the chief executive power to make such adjustments.

MAN DOESN'T KNOW IT ALL, SAYS BRYCE

BRITISH AMBASSADOR SPEAKS BEFORE KANSAS SENATORS

MISTAKES IN LIFE DUE LARGELY TO OVERESTIMATION OF KNOWLEDGE.

Pays Tribute to the Universities of America and Their Work—Says We Have Sufficient Schools and They Are Liberally Supported—Value of Education Shown.

Lawrence, Kan., April 29.—"Three-fourths of the mistakes a man makes are made because he does not really know the thing he thinks he knows," said Ambassador Bryce in an address today to the students of the University of Kansas. Bryce urged upon his hearers the necessity of knowing history, and said the habit of sound, careful, independent thinking was the best intellectual quality a young man could start with in his life journey. Prof. Jesse Macey, of Grinnell College, Iowa, followed Bryce, speaking briefly.

Ambassador Bryce paid a special tribute to the universities of this country, saying that there was nothing in this country which he noted with greater pleasure than the continued advance of the American colleges and universities.

The last thirty years, Mr. Bryce said, had seen the establishment and development of the state legislatures of a large number of state institutions of higher education, to which annually liberal grants of money were made. This witnessed to the enlightened wisdom and zeal of the state authorities, who rightly thought that nothing better could be done for the youth of the state than to place before them the amplest facilities for prosecuting every kind of study. The appreciation of such facilities was shown, he said, by the large and constantly increasing attendance not only at the universities and technical colleges supported by the state, but also at the colleges of private foundation.

Doing Great Work. Mr. Bryce said he loved the American universities; he admired the earnestness which the teachers threw into their work often insufficiently remunerated. He expected great results from the diffusion of knowledge among all classes of the people and believed that many men of natural gifts who might otherwise have been left without adequate training would be thus enabled not only to succeed in life, but also to render admirable service to the community and teachers and workers for the public good. There was, he believed, no other country in the world in which so large a proportion of the young men and women were now receiving education of the university type as here in the United States.

Have Sufficient Universities. The ambassador expressed the opinion that the United States possessed now, thanks to the munificence of the young men and of private benefactors, all the institutions of that kind that would be required, and that what was now needed was to develop the efficiency of these institutions by increasing the teaching staff, and by providing higher salaries so as to secure the ablest men that could be had, and to develop the teaching of those subjects which were less likely to be popular because they did not seem so directly practical but which, nevertheless, were essential to a well equipped university and a truly liberal education.

It was not only the applied sciences, Mr. Bryce thought, that ought to be provided for, such as agricultural chemistry and engineering, but also the theoretic sciences, such as chemistry and physics and biology. There was an even greater danger today in all countries, in Europe as well as in America, of neglecting the literary or humanistic subjects such as philosophy, history and philology.
