IOWA WRESTLER DEFEATS BIG POLANDER IN TWO STRAIGHT FALLS.

RETAINS WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP BY OUTCLASSING HIS RIVAL

Fall Obtained in Six Seconds, and in Twenty-Seven Minutes a Fraction — Zbyszko Becomes a Fraction After Being Once Downed by — Large Crowd Witnesses

Chicago, June 2.—Frank Gotch, of Goldt, Iowa, successfully defended his title as wrestling champion of the world by easily defeating Stanislaus Zbyszko, the Polish champion, in a fight falls at the Coliseum last night. Gotch outclassed his bulkier opponent in every department of the sport. After winning the first fall in phenomenal time of six and one-half seconds, it was only a question of time long the Pole could hold out against the brilliant and varied attacks of the more skilled rival. A immense crowd had hardly realized that the great match had started and trying for holds Gotch put Zbyszko on the defensive once more. During the next fifteen minutes both men were on the defensive several times. Gotch would stay behind, the Pole for a few minutes each time, but Zbyszko was unable to keep the American on the mat for any appreciable time. Gotch showed far greater speed than his opponent and wriggled out of several embarrassing positions with lightning like speed. Zbyszko showed a flash of promise when he forced Gotch to the mat by sheer strength. The American endeavored to extricate himself but he was lifted in the air and slammed on the mat again. In less than thirty seconds Gotch broke the Pole's hold and both men were back on their feet. Zbyszko was again forced to take the defensive and Gotch roughed him about considerably. They rushed to the ropes and suddenly the Pole appeared to weaken. A look of distress had crossed his face and as he turned back to the center of the ring he was seized in a vice-like grip and in a few seconds his shoulders were pinned to the mat with a bar and wrist lock.

IOWA ELKS CONTINGENT.

Two Special Trains Expected to Carry 1,000 Delegates to Detroit. Des Moines, June 2.—Iowa Elks intended to put Iowa on the map at the grand lodge reunion at Detroit, July 11 to 17, at which arrangements are being made to entertain 300,000 visitors. Plans are now being completed for two special trains to carry the Iowa contingent, which will number close to 1,000, and in addition the famous Fifty-sixth Regiment band of Fort Dodge will be taken along.

Des Moines will send about 150 Elks to the big convention. A rate of $18.50 for the round trip has been secured from this city and a proportionate rate from every other city in the state. A special train will carry the Council Bluffs, Des Moines, Perry, Marshalltown, Iowa City, Grinnell, Davenport, Centerville, Ottumwa and Clinton Elks, while the second train will carry those from the northern half of the state.

J. U. Sammis, Le Mars, grand exalted ruler, and Fred C. Robinson of Dubuque, grand secretary, probably will accompany one of these trains. As Iowa this year had two most important offices in the grand lodge, it is the desire of Iowa Elks to make as big a showing at Detroit as possible in order to show their deep appreciation of the honor.

Prized Japanese Swords.

Though sword manufacture has ceased to be in Japan today outside of the government arsenals which turn out only the accepted military blade of the modern army, the country is filled with prized relics of the past; and these are relics which the Japanese will not sell. A possessor of one of the old swords, keen and blue white in luster as the day it was forged, would sell his house, even himself, maybe, before he would part with his iron Bible of Bushido for money.

Hide Dismal Secrets.

In England there are hundreds of ancient buildings which possess their secret passages, and during excavations in London long forgotten tunnels are often encountered. Underneath Lismore castle, Ireland, one of the seats of the Duke of Devonshire, are one or two curious secret tunnels leading to spacious caves in which skeletons and uniforms have been found.

The oldest inhabited house in England is said to be the Fighting Locks Inn, St. Albans, which is connected by a subterranean passage—now blocked up—with the monastery about 200 yards away.

PROGRESS GOES ON

CONSTANT IMPROVEMENT IN TYPE OF LOCOMOTIVES.

Builders Are Never Satisfied That They Have the Best Possible—Model of 1907 Superseded by That of 1910.

Times have changed since 1831. Do you remember the picture of the prize winning locomotive of that year? It looked for all the world like a big bottle stood upright on a hand car. It had four wheels, about like those which are put into a wheelbarrow of an up-to-date type, and the bottle-shaped engine with a long neck had a few exterior equipments which were managed by an engineer who stood upon the little platform at the rear with a hand upon the lever. And that was the "York," which won the $4,000 offered by the Baltimore & Ohio road for the best locomotive in the year 1831.

A scientific periodical was giving large space a few years ago, it was in 1907, to several remarkable engines which had been built during the year and which were hailed as world-beaters. A reference to them shows that in the lapse of but a year or two locomotives which have been thought not only the best yet but the best possible are superseded.

The "largest locomotive in the world" was one of these built in that year. It was made in America and it was held to be peculiarly interesting "as showing what is possible even on the standard gauge of four feet eight and a half inches, providing heavy rails and solid permanent way are available."

This engine and tender had 12 wheels on a side. The locomotive was a development of the Mallet, articulated, compound type which had been introduced into the United States only three years before. The engines of this type built in 1907 were designed for banking service on heavy mountain grades and they were operated at first on a road where the ruling grade was 1 to 77 and the pull was long and hard. The boilers were the largest ever built up to that time. There were 404 boiler tubes, each 21 feet long. The boilers were provided with what were called midway combustion chambers.

In view of the economy devices employed in the 1910 engine which now holds the record it is interesting to note that in this 1907 locomotive steam from the low pressure cylinders, which were located considerably ahead of the front end of the boiler, was made to exhaust back through a flexible pipe connection to the exhaust pipe in the smoke box. The driver of this engine was mounted in a cab over the boiler and the fireman alone occupied the usual footplate. The total weight of the engine alone when in working order was 150 tons.

Then here, also, is the "largest passenger engine in the world," built, too, in 1907. It was designed for hauling the heaviest trains so as to enable the trains, which in those days often loaded up to 500 tons, to be taken by one engine at all times, whereas it had been necessary frequently to divide the trains or to use two engines. This engine and tender had 20 wheels, 10 on a rail, and its weight was such that it could have been used with safety only with flat-bottomed 110 pound steel rails and high-class permanent roadway. The total weight of the engine alone in working order was 123 tons.

The immensity of the new machine, becomes the more impressive when its weight, 231 tons for the locomotive alone, is contrasted with the weights of the two engines which were the best that 1907 could show, 180 and 123 tons respectively.

Mileage of Canadian Roads.

The mileage of railways in actual operation in Canada increased 1,138 during 1909, as compared with 1,134 miles in 1908, exclusive of 675 miles of railway open for traffic on the new transcontinental line which is officially returned as being still "under construction." One June 30 last it was estimated that at least 3,300 miles were in process of construction. The total mileage on that date is given as 30,330 miles. There is one mile of railway for every three hundred inhabitants, and six-tenths of a mile for every one hundred square miles of territory. During the year the new mileage was distributed as follows: 550 to Saskatchewan, 297 to Ontario, 94 to Manitoba, 89 to Quebec, 63 to British Columbia, 37 to New Brunswick and 6 to Nova Scotia. Official returns are not given for Alberta.

Faulty Boiler Spreads Death.

An antiquated locomotive exploded in the railroad yards at Monterey, Mex., the other day, instantly killing 11 employes of the road. Two others were horribly injured. The screwing down of the safety valve on the engine after it had been run out of the roundhouse caused the explosion. The engineer noted that his steam gauge was not working properly and a mechanic climbed to the boiler deck to examine it. An instant later fragments of human bodies and twisted bits of the engine were hurled high in the air. The front end of the boiler was blown more than 100 feet down the track, leaving death in its wake.

ANCIENT CITY OF SHANGHAI

Where the Chinese Gentleman of Leisure Passes His Time Enjoyably.

Shanghai affords a curious study of the combinations of the western influence and the native city, according to James F. J. Archibald in Burr McIntosh's Monthly. Along the river various nations have acquired concessions of land and have built according to the ideas of their governments. But a little distance back in the city, surrounded by an old wall, is the ancient city of Shanghai, with its wonderful tea gardens and teahouses surrounding the beautiful little artificial lakes and ponds. Here the few hours of recreation spent by the better class of Chinese gentlemen are employed in leisurely gossip over the ceremonial drinking of tea. In the gardens of Shanghai the bridges extend over the little waterways and ponds and from the rookeries and walls are lotus flowers and wisterias hundreds of years old. On the walls and on the bridges are tablets engraved with the wise sayings of wise men.

The shops of the native quarter are of endless interest and the hucksters, peddlers and beggars all form a part of the curious mixture of the past and the present. The signs displayed in front of business houses are an exceedingly interesting study, the signs,

In many cases, costing quite as much as an entire building in which the business is carried on. Great poles flanked by beautifully carved wings, gilded and colored, announce the character of the wares on exhibition and sale within. There is undoubtedly a greater leisure class among the Chinese in Shanghai than in any other city in China. Here Chinese gentlemen of wealth spend much time in the teahouses and theaters with favorite singing girls, who correspond to the geisha girls of Japan, who are in reality, the entertainers or actresses popular to the day and are generally of a high moral standard. They are usually an exceptionally intelligent and brilliant class of women.

Must Be Occupied. A fire insurance policy on a dwelling becomes void if "the building be vacated or left unoccupied." That is, the insurance on a vacant dwelling can be kept in force only by the owner keeping a watchman or caretaker constantly, or living on the premises. The fact that a tenant may move out without the knowledge or consent of the owner of the building makes no difference. As soon as it is vacated, insurance is suspended, unless, as stated above, it is occupied temporarily by a watchman or caretaker.

Spring. A painting entitled "Spring" was sold in New York recently for $10,000. The high price was paid probably because the painting represented spring as it ought to be.

Dogs of Other Times. Swiss naturalists have recently presented to the Helvetic society of Natural Science the results of their studies of the remains of dogs found among the ancient lake dwellings of Switzerland, the earliest of which date from the age of stone. It has been found that three different races of dogs existed there at that time, one of which resembled the Siberian sledge dog of today. Later, when the age of bronze dawned upon the Alps, two new species appeared, one being a shepherd dog and the other a hunting dog. All of these dogs were of northern origin, the canine types of the Mediterranean lands not having crossed the Alps.

Her Games. Malize's mother is a Christian Scientist, therefore the delightful game of "play sick" is forbidden to Malize. Recently her mother was horrified to hear Malize explaining to several other little girls: "No, I wasn't 'play sick.' I may play 'drunk' or 'crasy,' but I mustn't play 'sick.'" efore Referee Dick Fleming slapped Gotch on the back and declared him a winner of the first fall. The hold which sent the Pole down was a bar m and half Nelson.

FRANK GOTCH, wa Boy Who Retains Title to World's Wrestling Championship.

The first fall came so quickly that ere was little intermission before the en faced each other for the second ne.

Warned by his sudden downfall, zyszko was more cautious and it took ch twenty-seven minutes and thir- ix seconds to win the match with a r arm and wrist lock.

Gotch is Master. The result of the battle showed that e Iowa farmer is still without an equal in the wrestling game. At no ne was he in any danger and when a Pole would secure any advantage tch would quickly break his hold and mp to his feet. The American show- lar greater knowledge of the mat me than did his more deliberate d slow thinking victim. Gotch would r stall his opponent at every turn, d it was worse than hopeless for the ole to attempt to assume the aggres- ve.

The result demonstrated that Gotch must have been out of condition when he lost it handicap match to Zbyszko at Buffalo. In that encounter Gotch agreed to throw the Pole twice within the hour, but failed to get even one fall in the allotted time.

The American champion was tendered a great ovation at the conclusion of the match. He was borne from the ring on the shoulders of a howling ob, while the defeated Pole with a ob of pain on his face was barely able to stagger down the ladder from raised square.

Referee Fleming said that there was ubt in his mind that the first fall ean and decide. A feeble pro- ession on Zbyszko's defense. After ng it about the ring for six min- otch secured a leg hold and pick- ed up his opponent and hurled him to the mat. Gotch could not hold his ad- vantage and the Pole was on his feet in a few seconds.
