

Stand Relief for Sore Feet

Feet, Tender Feet and Swollen Feet Cured Every Time. TIZ Makes Sore Feet Well No Matter What Ails Them.

Policemen all over the world use TIZ. They stand on their feet all day and know what sore, tender, weaty, swollen feet really mean. They use TIZ because TIZ cures their feet right up. It keeps feet in perfect condition. Read what this policeman has to say: "I was surprised and delighted with TIZ for tender feet. I hardly know how to thank you enough for its superior to powders or plasters. I keep my feet in perfect condition. I believe in my earnest gratitude for TIZ. I am a policeman and keep on my feet all day."—Emzy Harrell, Austin, Texas.

You never tried anything like TIZ before for your feet. It is different from anything ever before sold. TIZ is not a powder. Powders and their foot remedies clog up the pores. TIZ draws out all poisonous exudations which bring on soreness of the feet, and is the only remedy that does. TIZ cleans out every pore and dries the feet—your feet.

You'll never limp again or draw up your face in pain and you'll forget about your corns, bunions and calluses. You'll feel like a new person. TIZ is for sale at all druggists at 25 cents per box, or it will be sent you if you wish from Walter Luther & Co., Chicago, Ill.

MISS STARNES TELLS STORY AT INQUEST

SHEDS NO LIGHT ON THE MYSTERY SURROUNDING TRIPLE MURDER NEAR VANCLEVE.

INQUEST BEGINS AT MELBOURNE TODAY

Large Crowd Attracted by the Inquest, But Public is Banned—New Jury Empaneled by Justice Bollenbacher—Girl Knew of No Trouble in Hardy Family.

The inquest over the dead bodies of James Hardy and wife and their son Earl, victims of the brutal triple murder near Vanclave Sunday night, began this forenoon at 11:15 at the town hall of Melbourne, W. H. Bollenbacher, mayor and justice of the peace, acting as coroner.

The inquest resulted in Melbourne being thronged with people such as has never been seen outside of a Fourth of July celebration. The business part of the town assumed an aspect of a county fair, teams lining the streets, and people being congregated here and there discussing the murder and expressing their opinions and theories.

Disappointment for the crowd, however, owing to the fact that the public was excluded from the hearing. Neither were the witnesses permitted to hear the testimony, and were kept in waiting until called upon to testify this morning by Sheriff Nicholson, that he might be used as a witness.

Miss Starnes First Witness.

Miss Mabel Starnes, Raymond Hardy's sweetheart, who had expected to have become Mrs. Hardy Wednesday, was the first witness called and was necessary for a little over an hour. Her testimony failed to bring forth anything new in the case excepting what is already known by readers of the Times-Republican. Miss Starnes acted somewhat diffident in her manner, and talked in tones so low that she was scarcely audible. She was on the stand until adjournment for lunch at 12:30. County Attorney Egermayer questioned the young woman concerning the home life of which she was quite familiar, but the witness said that she had never known of the family having any trouble among themselves.

New Jury Empaneled.

Because members of the original jury empaneled for the inquest were among the principal witnesses to be used, and were at the Hardy home soon after the tragedy became known, it was necessary to secure a new jury. Justice Bollenbacher empaneled as the new jury E. F. Buchanan, William Klauenberg and Robert Lanning.

Had Worked For Hardys.

Miss Starnes testified that she had worked at the Hardy home for a different period within the past two years, most of her employment being at times when Mrs. Hardy was ill. Miss Starnes said she had been keeping company with Raymond Hardy for three years, and that the marriage had been contemplated since last fall.

Hardy's Name Known of Wedding.

Miss Starnes testified that the Hardys learned of the approaching marriage two weeks ago, and that they had offered no objections. She also said that never had Mrs. Hardy suggested to her anything within the past two years, most of her employment being at times when Mrs. Hardy was ill. Miss Starnes said she had been keeping company with Raymond Hardy for three years, and that the marriage had been contemplated since last fall.

Visitors Were Not Common.

Miss Starnes said that as far as she knew no other help had ever been employed at the Hardy home excepting herself, and she did not know of any one being on the place in two years excepting when Raymond had better wait while Miss Starnes said that it was just one month today that she quit working at the Hardy home and returned to her own home to make preparations for her wedding.

When asked concerning whether or not Mrs. Hardy had ever talked to Raymond about helping him and his young wife getting started in their married life, she said that she did not know, but that Mrs. Hardy had told her one day that she was to have a pair of chickens. Mrs. Hardy also told her that Raymond had nothing.

RAILWAY COACH LIKE PALACE

Car for Argentina's President, Built in England, is a Model of Luxury.

The president of the Argentine republic will soon be the possessor of what is probably the most sumptuous railway coach that has ever been built. It has just been shipped off to Argentina from Liverpool, England, and is a gift to the republic from the Amalgamated Railway Carriage & Wagon company. It is an immense coach, being 78 feet long and 14 feet high, while it is too wide to run on any English railway. The saloon is constructed of steel throughout and is painted in cream, with gold and blue lining, the national Argentine colors.

The interior is equipped in regal style. At the end of the president's day saloon, a compartment over seven feet long, decorated in the Louis XVI style, with green silk panels and carpet, and a real fireplace, with a mirror above, while the roof is tastefully carved. Adjoining that compartment is a bedroom, also with green carpet and upholstery, furnished with a bedstead finished in old gold, with the Argentine coat of arms at the foot. This has two doors, one leading to the day saloon and one to the bathroom. There are two other bedrooms, a library and a kitchen.

CASE OF BUSINESS METHOD

English Railroad Officials Unable to Understand Efficiency of American Conferees.

One feature that strikes a British railroad officer when visiting America is the fragility of the notices given trainmen as to signal changes, as compared with those issued in England. "Our practice," says an Englishman in the Railroad Man's Magazine, "is to have a block showing the shape of the signal, to give its name, distance from the signal box and position, whether on the up or down side of the line. "All new signal boxes and new or altered junctions, cross-over roads and other connections are described in great detail. These details to an

High Art Prices.

Franz Hals' "Portrait of a Woman" which went at the Yerkes' sale in New York last week for $137,000, has been purchased by the dealer who bought it by Henry C. Frick, the Pittsburgh steel man, who placed it in his Fifth Avenue residence. The price Mr. Frick paid is not made known, but it is reported to be over $140,000. The picture portrays an old woman in a black silk gown and an embroidered waist, sitting in a high-backed chair. There is a wide, stiff ruff around her neck, and she holds a Bible in her left hand, the other being crippled. The canvas is 35 inches long by 45 inches wide. When the Dutch artist painted it 400 years ago his wild dreams did not foresee its transfer to a land of which little was then known, and its sale at a price then unheard of for a painting. The art of portrait painting has not advanced much since Hals' day, but the world has traveled far in other directions.—Indianapolis Star.

Advantage of Using Air Currents.

Germany's greatest achievement is not the technical perfection of the air-going craft; she has learned how to use the air currents, as the birds do, in traveling. This is a science, the ship is only its instrument. Airships will double and triple their speed by acting in harmony with the forces of nature, the primal speedmaker. There is a working force only lately reckoned with, even by builders of air craft—and that is the wind. Airships will use the tradewind to reach this continent because it always blows one way. That is as simple a proposition as that a low-powered steamer should use the gulf stream. Air traffic, to compete with rail or water, must maintain as sure a schedule of travel. Germany has already mapped her airship routes to and from America.—From "Over Sea by Airship," in the Century.

All He Needs is the Horse.

A warm personal friend of Congressman Dickinson recently dropped him a line about things back in the Sixth Missouri district. Dickinson told his secretary to put the name of this friend on the list for "everything good that goes out." A day or two ago Dickinson received another letter from the same gentleman, in which he said: "Thank you very much for the fine book on diseases of the horse. When the Democrats get in power I shall expect you to send me the horse."

Toy Spaniel an Old Breed.

The English toy spaniel is undoubtedly one of the oldest and most popular breeds of pet dogs known. As far back as the days of Charles the Martyr, this breed was much prized by the ladies of the court. The narrative of the execution of Mary, Queen of Scots, indorsed in Lord Burghley's hand and forwarded to the court, it was recorded that one of the executioners found her little pet (a spaniel) of practically the same type as those afterward known in the reign of Charles II., which had crept under the folds of her garments to be near her, and which would not be taken away.

The Reward of Labor.

Happiness is a child of weariness from work. Resting is not good when you rest all the time. But it is mighty good after a ten mile tramp in the woods. People who have Turkey every day cannot enjoy Thanksgiving. Christmas means nothing to the child whose room is full of dolls and tin soldiers all the year round. The law that "he who will not work shall not eat" is no truer than the law that he who does not work cannot eat.

The Lost Plug Hat.

"The old proverb, 'Findin's is keepin's,' usually holds good in the case of a silk hat," said the man. "Persons who lose silk hats are always reluctant to claim them. I have found excellent silk hats, and I know other people who have found hats just as good, but nobody ever tried to get them back. They were well worth advertising for, too. Who can explain this disregard for stray silk hats? Is it due to modesty? Were they lost under conditions so incriminating that the loser would rather buy another hat than reveal his whereabouts and the circumstances that caused him to lose his hat? That hypothesis hardly seems tenable, because most silk hats are picked up in very reputable places. Still, the fact remains that any person finding a silk hat is pretty sure to be allowed to replace in its possession unmolested by the owner."—New York Sun.

German Acuteness.

The egg cups imported into India at one time all came from Great Britain. The Indian eggs are, however, very small, and the egg cups did not fit. A German traveler noticed this small item and got his firm to make smaller egg cups and export them there. All the trade is now in German hands.

Increased Earnings.

"In the railway world gross receipts continue to increase at a gratifying rate," says a writer in the Wall Street Journal.

"For the 41 roads reporting to the Wall Street Journal gross earnings for the first week of August increased 10.34 per cent over those of 1908. Based on this better showing, little new railway financing has actually been announced, but the community is anticipating the flotations during the remaining months of the year of a considerable body of stock rather than of bonds. A feature of the railway traffic is the shipment of merchandise to the interior over trunk lines from the seaboard points and the distribution to consuming territory from commercial centers. This high class freight is now swelling the gross income of the roads. But grain moves slowly, at less than one million bushels a day to primary markets.
