Steamer Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, (Wireless via Seagate) June 18.--The Kaiserin Augusta reached Sandy Hook at 7 o'clock. The South Carolina, with crew, assembled on deck, steamed close in and fired the national salute. The band of the warship played "The Star Spangled Banner" and "The Old Folks at Home."

New York, June 18.--Roosevelt set foot on American soil at 10:55. He stepped from the revenue cutter Roscoffin at The Battery and walked to his place in the speaker's stand, accompanied by Mayor Gaynor.

New York, June 18.--Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, decked with flags, passed into quarantine at 9:23, and to the boom of guns of the harbor forts came to anchor. She was escorted in from Ambrose channel lightship by the battleship South Carolina, with the band playing "Star Spangled Banner" and by half a dozen torpedo destroyers.

The official welcome began at 8:30. Roosevelt boarded the tug Manhattan from the steamer. At that instant the steam whistles of the assembled craft were blown long and loud in unison and salute was taken up by every vessel within a radius of a mile or more and continued for some minutes. Roosevelt was transferred to the revenue cutter Androscoogin, on which he led the water parade, which got under way at 9:12. The United States steamship Dolphin leading closely, followed by the Androscoogin.

The first address of welcome presented to Roosevelt was handed him by the boarding pilot, on behalf of the pilots' association. This association was the last to speed him on his departure from New York.

Roosevelt Prevents Collision. An interesting incident occurred during the early reception in the harbor. Roosevelt was waving his hat in response to the cheers wafted from the boats on all sides, when he suddenly paused and, looking in the direction of the press tug Gilkerson, pointed his hand to the south. He seemed to be battleships to the tiny yacht, were lining up and passing in review. Swiftly moving excursion steamers began to pass along the river front, and then while the hull of the first ship in the parade, dressed from stern to stern in flags, came in sight, and the Seventy-first regiment band, stationed on the water front, struck up "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean." The scene a great display of water craft and the thousands cheered and cheered, the demonstration reaching a climax as the vessel bearing Roosevelt passed. Opposite Fifty-ninth street the procession turned down the Jersey shore and steamed toward the river to the Battery.

As the fleet reached the lower end of Manhattan every craft afloat and every factory ashore put its enthusiasm into steam and let loose pandemonium. Wharves and locks along the river front were lined for the occasion and the spectacle of the two lines of bunting-decorated vessels slipping by, the halcyons dipping with color, was one to gladden the eyes.

Roosevelt Comes Ashore. The procession passed on down to the Battery, where Roosevelt left the Androscoogin, and at 10:55 stood on American soil for the first time in a year and a quarter. He walked to his place in the speaker's stand, accompanied by Mayor Gaynor. Double lines of police guarded his approach. Roosevelt walked slowly to Cornelius Vanderbilt, chairman of the reception committee, at his elbow. At the speaker's stand the mayor took his hand and led him to the steps. Gaynor welcomed Roosevelt in less than 150 words and Roosevelt replied briefly.

Replying to Mayor Gaynor, Roosevelt said: "Roosevelt Replies to Welcome. 'I thank you, Mayor Gaynor. Thru you I thank your committee, and thru them I wish to thank the American people for the greeting. I need hardly add that I am most deeply moved by the reception given me. No man could receive such a greeting without being made to feel both very proud and very humble.'

"I have been away a year and a quarter from America and I have seen strange and interesting things alike in the heart of the frowning wilderness and in the capitals of the mightiest and most highly civilized nations. I have thoroughly enjoyed myself, and now I am glad to get home. I can say to get home, to be back in my own country, back among the people I love. And I am ready and eager to do my part so far as I am able in helping to solve the problems which must be solved if we, of this, the greatest democratic Republic upon which the sun has ever shone, are to see its destinies rise to the high level of our hopes and its opportunities.

"This is the duty of every citizen, but it is peculiarly my duty, for any man who has ever been honored by being made a citizen of the United States is thereby forever rendered a debtor of the American people, and is bound through his life to remember this as his prime obligation, and in private life, as much as in public life, so as to carry himself in a way that the American people may not have cause to feel the regret that once they 'placed him at their head.'

Five Miles of Cheering People. At 11:12 the start of the land parade up Broadway began, thru densely massed throngs extending five miles. Everywhere the retreating troops of the same whirlwind of demonstrative greetings as he passed Wall street further on as he moved thru Park Place and the business section, and then thru throngs in Union and Madison squares and thru the long reaches of Fifth avenue. Roosevelt stood in his carriage most of the time, his silk hat in his right hand waving a responsive greeting to the echoing cheering. By noon the popular welcome was practically concluded and Roosevelt joined the throngs for lunch preparatory to returning to his home at Oyster Bay later in the day.

Rough Riders Cheered. Second only in interest to the returning traveler were the delegations of westerners. The march of the Rough Riders on Broadway on their way to greet their old commander at the Battery was the signal for an enthusiastic welcome all along the line. The famous troopers wore yellow khaki, with buckskin leggings and broad brimmed gray slouch hats. Their horses looked like mustangs, accoutred with heavy military saddles and blankets, as the ready for the campaign. They moved in battalion formation, the ranks extending for two blocks along Broadway, with flags flying and their Rough Rider band playing patriotic airs. All along the line of march they were given an enthusiastic greeting. Following the troopers came a long line of automobiles bearing distinguished guests, committee members, members of the Rough Riders' families, etc.

Washington, June 18.--A full investigation into the charges of bribery against Senator Lorimer was decided upon today by the senate committee on privileges and elections. MINOR FISTIC BOUT PUT OFF A WEEK

LANGFORD-KAUFMAN BATTLE POSTPONED WHEN POLICE CHIEF ORDERS HALT.

NOTICE SERVED ON BLOT THAT FIGHT COULD NOT BE HELD

Governor Gillett Serves Notice That Prize Fighting in California Is Dead, and That Advertised Battles in Los Angeles Can Not Be Held--Telegraphic News.

San Francisco, June 18.--Summoning Louis Blot, the promoter of the Kaufman-Langford match, to his office early today, Chief of Police Martin told him he would not be permitted to proceed with the fight. Martin advised Blot to discontinue the sale of tickets.

The right of the governor to interfere, Blot's attorneys announce, will be fully tested in the courts. After considering the demand the Langford-Kaufman fight was postponed one week, until next Saturday. The city was amazed at the day's startling, rapid developments. It would be difficult to analyze the conflicting sentiment of the community. Apparently the issue is between Blot and the governor, but no one regards that as more than a manifestation of the real elements of the conflict. Governor and Attorney War. Ever since the startling announcement from the governor that the Jeffries-Johnson fight and the Langford-Kaufman fight might not be held in California, hostility between the chief executive and the district attorney has been in evidence. Then came from Chicago the bold challenge in the declaration alleged to have been made by Mayor P. H. McCarthy that he was "running" his town and that the "battles of the century" would certainly be held in San Francisco.

Mayor McCarthy's statement, the subsequently denied by the mayor, who is now speeding home, is said to have aroused the keen resentment of Governor Gillett, and it is hinted by those close to the governor that it was the mayor's policy to bring the matter brought about the calling out of the two companies of militia.

One of the most unexpected events of the day was the denial of a petition made by Attorney General Webb to Superior Judge Van Nostrand for an injunction restraining the Kaufman-Langford fight, not on the grounds that it was the intention of Promoter Blot to hold a prize fight, but because the "contest would be a public nuisance."

While en route to the Oakland station to board his train for Sacramento, the governor delivered his parting ultimatum as follows: "Fight Game Is Dead. This means an end to prize fighting in this state, and by this state I mean Los Angeles as well as San Francisco. The two fights scheduled for the southern city will not be held. I have instructed the proper authorities there to stop them. It is not a pleasant thing when you are pleading for the biggest thing California has ever attempted to have this fight, and you are told to stop it. That was my experience in the past while seeking national aid for the Panama Pacific exposition. Pressure was brought to bear on me from millions of people scattered all over the country, and this alone was reason enough for my interference. I have instructed the proper authorities there to stop them. No governor, however, can interfere with the affairs of a municipality unless he is satisfied the municipal officials cannot and will not cope with the situation. I was so satisfied before I wrote Attorney General Webb concerning the Johnson-Jeffries fight."

"I am not saying much about the big fight. I am concentrating my attention on preventing the Kaufman-Langford match. I am satisfied the promoters of the big fights have already decided to move their match from this state. That is all I ask of them."

They then sold out their stock and quit paying tax. Now they discover that the attorney general rendered no such decision. They have been selling cigars secretly and will probably have to pay. There are about thirty stores involved.

CALLS JACKSON DOWN. Assistant Attorney General Denies Agreement For Standpat Chairman. Special to Times-Republican. Des Moines, June 18.--Assistant Attorney General Lyon today denied emphatically an assertion of Frank D. Jackson, of The Motor Club, that the republican state committee had agreed that if Carroll was elected a standpat chairman of the state committee would be named. Lyon is a member of the committee and declares no such understanding was had.
