A queer and decidedly unusual matrimonial affair took place here at 2 o'clock this afternoon when William M. Poslock, of Denver, aged 25, and white, took as his bride Bessie Simmons, colored, aged 20, of Parsons, Kan. Justice S. E. Peek performed the ceremony. The affidavit on the application for a license was made by G. W. Hoffar, who is a Denver saloonist. Hoffar is taking a pleasure trip from Denver to Toledo, O., in his fifty-horse power touring car, and Poslock is driving the car. At Kansas City Miss Simmons joined the two men, and here the white man decided to make the girl his wife. Mr. Hoffar says that Miss Simmons' parents are as white as any American people, and that in the girl is represented a cross of Spanish, French, Jewish, and negro blood. Unfortunately for the girl, Hoffar explains, her color was dark. Hoffar says Miss Simmons is well educated. The application for the license shows both bride and groom to be "white." This is explained by Clerk Haradon from the fact that the bride-elect was not present when the license was applied for, and he took it for granted that she was of the same color as the young man she was to marry.
