

ATCHED ALL SUMMER

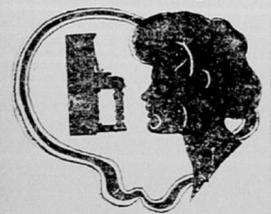

Skin Troubles Cause Great Aggravation in Hot Water—Unnecessary If Postlam Is Used. Frequently a skin trouble appearing in the spring and allowed to remain unchecked will afford cause for intense itching all summer long. When postlam is used, the itching is first arrested and then the burning skin is cooled and comforted. For the prompt relief and cure of the many forms of eczema, acne, tetter, barber's itch and all other skin troubles postlam has proved the most efficient healing agent yet evolved. In the milder affections, such as pimples, red noses, complexion blemishes, rash, scalp trouble, itching feet, etc., results are seen overnight, but a small quantity being required. Nothing is so good for sunburn and mosquito bites. A special 15-cent package of postlam is prepared for minor uses, and this, as well as the regular $2 jar, is on sale by all druggists, particularly McBride & Will Drug Company. But no one is asked to purchase postlam without first obtaining a sample package, which will be sent by mail, free of charge, upon request by the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West 25th street, New York City.

FARMER FLEECE ON CENTRAL TRAIN

F. S. DALLNER, OF LOCKRIDGE, VICTIM OF SMOOTH CONFIDENCE GAME.

GIVES UP $20 TO STRANGER WHOM HE MEETS ON TRAIN

Comes to When Third Member of Gang Parts Company With Him, Just Before Train Pulls Out—Police Look For Trio But Fail to Find Them—Dallner Dislikes Publicity.

F. S. Dallner, a well-known farmer of Lockridge, Jefferson county, was wiser to the ways of the world by $20 Friday evening, when he was successfully fleeced by three confidence men who worked an old but smooth game to separate the farmer from his wad. It was not Dallner's fault that he did not have any more money.

Dallner had been to Canada on a hand inspection trip and was on his way home, via Okaloosa and Brighton, Iowa Central No. 2, due here at 5:35, was on the dot into the station and, as circumstances would have it, the train remained here some minutes past its leaving time in order to make a connection with No. 5 on the Northwestern. This gave the trio of confidence men ample time to work their game.

Makes New Acquaintance. When the train stopped here Dallner was approached by a stranger who asked to share his seat. The man introduced himself as J. C. Morey, of Okaloosa, a merchant, and as Dallner was going to Okaloosa, and Morey had seen him there—this was the very place that Dallner had just visited on his trip—the two became acquainted in no time.

Morey told of being on his way home from Salt Lake City, Utah, where he had been called on by the death of a brother. He was now shipping back to Okaloosa the dead brother's stock of merchandise, in order to close it out.

Second Stranger Appears. Morey had scarcely finished telling his story that a second stranger appeared. He was an "express collector" and he had in his hand numerous checks, both brass and pasteboard, which he jingled as he approached the seat. The expressman asked the stranger beside Dallner if his name was Morey, and received an affirmative reply. The expressman then told Morey that he must have the money due on a consignment from Salt Lake that had been "side-tracked" here for express charges. Morey was ready to pay, and tendered the expressman a sight draft on the Continental National Bank of Salt Lake City for $25. The expressman hesitated, for he couldn't change it, and a new draft of $200 and the banks had closed. Morey didn't know what to do, and appealed to his new-found friend. The express bill was $15, and Dallner had just $20 in a bill, left. Dallner said he didn't feel like giving an entire stranger his $20, and asked if Morey would identify himself.

Third Stranger Called In. Morey didn't know whether he could find any one on the train who could identify him or not, but he would try. He walked thru the car and, sure enough, coming up toward the front of the coach was an Okaloosa liverman. "The liverman" came back with Morey to the seat occupied by Dallner and informed Dallner that he was "the Okaloosa liverman" and he knew Morey well. "You needn't be afraid of this man," he said to Dallner. "He's all right." Morey then departed with his money.

Leave to Get Goods Out of Soak. Morey excused himself, and with the expressman, left the car to get the goods out of "soak." The liverman sat and conversed with Dallner until about time for the train to leave. Then he got up and left the car after making an excuse for a drink of water. When the liverman left Dallner began to come out of the amphetamine and realize that he had been "stung." He then hurried up the police and told the story.

Keep It Out of the Papers. Dallner, when asked his name, related the simple story that has been told in the newspapers. "I wouldn't get the papers set hold of this for $500," said Dallner. Dallner insisted that his name made no difference, and that he would only give it to the chief upon the promise that he would not give it up to the newspapers.

Dallner, however, was not as careful as he intended to be, and in a burst of confidence to a Times-Republican reporter who was trying to help him find the men, and whom Dallner took for a detective, Dallner said he wouldn't care so much for the $20 if he had had any money left, but he didn't have enough to buy a bed. Dallner then exhibited a draft for $100, payable to himself, and drawn on a Lockridge bank. This gave his signature, which he explained would be hard for a forger to duplicate because of a little "curly-queer" between the "F" and the "S." The draft, however, was valueless here, as Mr. Dallner was not capable of securing identification as easily as was his friend Morey.

Dallner left his home at 3 o'clock this morning. He had to borrow $1 of Chas. Nicholson to pay for a room at the Railroad Y. M. C. A. Dallner has credited his $20 to experience account.

DAY RECALLS MEMORIES

Forty-Nine Years Ago Company B. Second Iowa Cavalry, left Marshalltown For Front—Seven of Sixty-Two Men Now Living Here.

Members of Company B. Second Iowa Cavalry, who enlisted in the service in this city and were mustered in at Davenport, recalled memories of the past Friday upon the forty-ninth anniversary of the company's departure for the front.

Forty-nine years ago at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon sixty-two men, recruited in Marshall and Tama counties, left for Davenport on horseback and in wagons. Those who were mounted rode directly to Davenport, and those in the wagons were transported to Marengo, where they went to Davenport by rail. Of the sixty-two men who left here as soldiers nearly a half century ago only seven are now living here or in the immediate vicinity of Marshalltown. They are Gen. B. A. Beeson, adjutant of the Iowa Soldiers' Home; Chas. H. Brock, of the home headquarters building; L. McKinnon, J. B. Brush, Jud Canfield, Frank Stoddard, the latter a member of the home, and J. K. Brock, of Conrad. "Pete" Hepburn, for many years congressman from the Eighth district, was captain of the company when it left Marshalltown.

THE GREAT CARVER SHOW.

Cedar Rapids Audiences Pleased With Attraction This Week.

Dr. Carver's great show, which is to be put on at the fair grounds next week by the Marshalltown Driving Club, for the entertainment of the public in general and the Iowa Elks, is delighting Cedar Rapids audiences this week, where large crowds have witnessed the performances daily.

The Cedar Rapids Gazette tells of a performance of the Carver show as follows: "Judicious is a large factor in the success or failure of any public performance and after years of experience with fair shows and entertainments that have been lauded skyward by flanking posters the public has grown suspicious of anything that smacks of a real sensation, but the Carver show is different. There can not come to one from reading a circus herald, but last evening's performance was a continuous thrill. With show enough for a circus ring, Carver, by modestly puts his attraction in a little canvas enclosed space where the public is shown some wonderful stunts.

"The rope spinning is great as is the roping, the pickup riding and broncho busting. It is a performance of merit from start to finish.

"Dr. Carver has the reputation of never bringing a poor show to Cedar Rapids and this attraction fully sustains that reputation. The headlong plunge by the diving horse with its fearless rider, the young woman swimmer, is a sensational act.

"One interesting feature is the presence of White Eagle, a full blooded Ogalala Sioux from Pine Ridge agency, South Dakota. He came to visit his friend, Dr. Carver, having traveled all over Europe with him some years ago. He was a youth at the time of the Custer massacre and carried messages from one Indian camp to another. He is 50 years of age, straight and rugged. His head dress of eagle feathers, white weasel skins, yellow hammer feathers and porcupine quill ornaments made him a conspicuous figure about the grounds before the show began.

The Dr. Carver show will give its opening performance on Tuesday, and continue thru the week and the following Sunday.

Only a Mask.

Many are not being benefited by the summer vacation as they should be. Now, notwithstanding much outdoor life, they are little if any stronger than they were. The tan on their faces is darker and makes them look healthier, but it is only a mask. They are still nervous, easily tired, upset by trifles, and they do not eat nor sleep well. What they need is what tones the nerves, perfects digestion, creates appetite, and makes sleep refreshing, and that is Hood's Sarsaparilla. Pupils and teachers generally will find the chief purpose of the vacation best subserved by the great medicine which, as we know, "builds up the whole system."

In the Police Court.

Gabriel Strand, of near New Sharon, who was arrested by Constable Morse for being drunk, was assessed the costs by Justice Millard this morning. When he became abusive and refused to pay, the justice sent him to jail for ten days. A frigid secured his release by paying the court costs.
