The Girl and the Bill

CHAPTER III. The Shadows.

Orme walked north along the Lake Shore drive. As best he could, he pieced together the curious adventures of the day. The mystery of the five-dollar bill and the extreme anxiety of Portlot seemed to be complicated by the appearance of the Japanese at the Park Marquette. Orme sought the simplest explanation. He knew that mysterious happenings frequently become clear when one deftly tries to fit them into the natural routine of everyday life. The Japanese, he mused, was probably some valet out of a job. But how could he have learned Orme's name. Possibly he had not known it; the clerk might have given it to him. The incident hardly seemed worth second thought, but he found himself persistently turning to one surmise after another concerning the Japanese. For Orme was convinced that he stood on the edge of a significant situation.

Suddenly he took notice of a figure a short distance ahead of him. This man—apparently very short and stocky—was also going northward, but he was moving along in an erratic manner. At one moment he would hurry his steps, at the next he would almost stop. Evidently he was regulating his pace with a purpose. Orme let his eyes travel still farther ahead. He observed two men actively conversing. From time to time their discussion became so animated that they halted for a moment and faced each other, gesticulating rapidly. Every time they halted, the single figure nearer to Orme slowed down his own pace.

The oblivious couple came under a street lamp and again turned toward each other. Their profiles were distinct. Orme had already suspected their identity, for both had high hats and carried cases, and one of them was in a sack suit, while the other wore a frock coat. And now the profiles verified the surmise. There was no mistaking the long, tip-tipped nose of the shorter man and the glinting spectacles of the other. The two were Portlot and Alcatraz.

But who was the man trailing them? A friendly guard? Or a menacing enemy? Orme decided to shadow the shadow. At a corner not far from the entrance to Lincoln park Portlot and Alcatraz became so apparently excited that they stood, chattering volubly for several minutes. The shadow stopped altogether. He folded his arms and looked out over the lake like any casual wanderer, but now and then he turned his head toward the others. He seemed to be indifferent to what they were saying, though he was near enough to them to catch fragments of their conversation, if he so desired. The South Americans were probably talking in that dialect of Portuguese which their nation has developed.

Meantime Orme also stopped, taking up a position like that of the shadow. He saw Portlot, with outstretched, questioning hands, his eyes fixed on the face of Alcatraz, who seemed to be delivering his orders. The flashing reflections of light from the minister's spectacles indicated his authoritative nods of the head. After a time Alcatraz evidently completed his instructions. He repeated his hat and bowed formally. Little Portlot echoed the salute and, turning, shot off down a side street with ridiculously rapid movements of his short legs. Orme inferred that he was bound for the North Clark street car line. Alcatraz continued along the drive.

When the South Americans separated, the reunion of the Latter Day Saints. They returned home Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grove and children, Miss Anna Grove and Mr. Robert Dent, of Marshalltown, visited Sunday at the home of Jacob Grove. Mrs. Walter Collins, of Prairieville, visited several days last week with Mr. and Mrs. William Avey, and sister, Mrs. E. E. Scheibel. Miss Edith Smith, of Marshalltown, arrived Tuesday to visit the remainder of the week with her friend, Miss Rosie Weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Keefer and children, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jensen, from near Green Mountain, visited Sunday at the Clapsaddle home. Mr. and Mrs. Scott Trambarger and children, of Franklin, Ill., arrived Wednesday morning for a few days' visit with Mr. Trambarger's brother, Oscar, and family. Mr. and Mrs. Lee Rolston and children, of Albion, Mrs. Cora Bixby and son, Vern, of Liscomb, and Mrs. Elizabeth Delane and children, of Rockwell City, visited Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. William Avey. Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Trambarger, son, Morrison, and brother, Charles, Mr. and Mrs. Pardon Head and daughter Mary, Misses Eva Hostetter, Ortha Robbins, and Roxie Weeks, Elmer and Arthur Schultz, and Irvin Mann made a trip to the river Wednesday for the purpose of pike fishing, but the fish were very shy that day.

The Marshalltown visitors Saturday were Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Trambarger, son Morrison, and brother Charles, Mr. Pardon Head and daughter Mary, Mrs. George Powers and two sons, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Rawlin and two sons, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wilkinson.

without an underdose of earnestness. "You have seen me much abused by your press, Mr. Orme," he said. "That is natural. I have the interests of my own country to protect, and those interests are of necessity sometimes opposed to the interests of other countries. But if your people would be even more patient with us—all we need is time. There is reason for our persistent tomorrow; for we are young, and it is a slow process to realize on our resources. That is why we do not pay our debts more promptly."

Orme said nothing, but thought of looted South American treasures, of exiled presidents squandering their official stealing at Paris and Monte Carlo, of concessions sold and sold again to rival foreign companies.

"They had now reached the park entrance. "There is a cab," said Alcatraz. "You will ride with me as far as your hotel?"

"Thank you, no," said Orme. "I rather need the walk."

Alcatraz smiled persuasively. "Permit me to urge you. If you should be robbed, my little friend might lose his precious secret. Poor boy!" he added. "His father was my friend, and I cannot refuse him a service."

The cab had swung around to the curb beside them. Orme had no fear of robbery on the lighted drive, but since Alcatraz was so insistent he felt inclined to yield. He might as well ride; so he permitted the minister to bow him into the cab, and presently they were whirling along southward. There was a period of silence. Then Alcatraz spoke meditatively.

"You see how it happened, I suppose," he said. "Those Japanese were waiting outside your hotel. When Portlot and I came out, one of them followed us, while the other remained on guard. Then you started on your stroll, and the man who remained on guard set out after you."

"Yes," said Orme, "but I don't see how the fellow could have known who I was."

(To Be Continued.) Be sure and take a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with you when starting on your trip this summer. It can not be obtained on board the trains or steamers. Changes of water and climate often cause sudden attacks of diarrhoea, and it is best to be prepared. Sold by all dealers.

Gigantic Electric Power Plant.

According to the Canadian Electrical News, the Long Sault Development company, in conjunction with the St. Lawrence Power company, proposes to build a 4,500-foot dam 45 feet high across the St. Lawrence river at the head of the Long Sault rapids and to build an electric plant to develop 600,000-horse power. The scheme will cost $20,000,000.

S.S.S. RHEUMATISM

No case of Rheumatism was ever cured except by a thorough purification of the blood; just as long as the blood remains charged with fermenting uric acid poison the painful disease will continue. The pains and aches of Rheumatism are only symptoms, and it is true these may be scattered and temporarily relieved by the application of plasters, liniments and home remedies of various kinds, but the person who trifles with this dangerous disease by depending on local treatment alone is bound to pay for his mistake with constant suffering, later on. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism in the only way it is possible to cure the disease. It goes down into the blood and removes the uric acid from the circulation, so that the nerves, bones, muscles and joints are all lubricated and fed with nourishing matter, instead of being continually irritated and inflamed with this dangerous impurity. When S. S. S. has cleared and purified the blood the pains and aches cease, all inflammation disappears, stiffened muscles are made supple, and every miserable symptom of Rheumatism is corrected. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice free to all who write.
