View Dead Friend's Face. During Wednesday afternoon from 2 to 8, Wednesday evening from 7 to 10 and today from 10 o'clock in the morning to 1 in the afternoon, fully 10,000 people passed for a last view of the face of Jonathan P. Dolliver. The crush was so great that the crowd was handled with great difficulty. During the time the remains were lying in state they were guarded by twelve non-commissioned officers from Company G, Fifty-sixth regiment, Iowa National Guards, according to the orders which had been issued by Col. W. T. Chantland, commanding the regiment.

Senator Cummins' Tribute. The eulogy pronounced by Senator Cummins in behalf of the colleagues of the late senator follows: "In this, the darkest and most sorrowful hour of personal bereavement, when the heart is torn with the anguish which the living feel as the dead is given back to Mother Earth, it is impossible for me to summon the competence that one must have when he attempts to define the place this beloved son of Iowa held among his fellowmen and especially among his associates in the Senate of the United States. Just now every heart is breathing the old loving refrain: "O for the touch of a vanished hand, The sound of a voice that is still."

House committee. Active pall bearers, hearse and family. Governor Carroll, and distinguished visitors. The procession moved north from the home on Central avenue to Seventh, to the armory. Many Eulogies Pronounced. The funeral services started promptly his cheerful greeting as he passed from desk to desk during the hours of tireless discussion, of the never failing wit and humor which he illuminated the most casual conversation. He was always welcome because his heart was not only over-running with friendliness, but because as he went his way he left behind him the smile born of his felicitous comment or the delightful reflection awakened by the keen thrust of his satire. "In debate he was easily the leader of the Senate. No man surpassed him in the accuracy of his analysis, the depth of his thought or the thoroughness of his investigation, and no man approached him in the art of expression. He was nobly endowed with a mind that could explore all the regions of morals, philosophy, literature and statecraft, and he reasoned convincingly on all these things; but unquestionably his crowning gift was his marvelous power of speech. He could use his mother tongue that every word he spoke challenged immediate attention and carved itself into full relief upon the memory of his audience. His language was plain and simple, but it had a fundamental quality that made it the best possible guard for the ideas he was endeavoring to convey. Those who heard him remembered what he said because it was instantly recognized that he had put his case in the strongest way in which it could be put, and there are very few of his speeches in which will not be found passages which are classic in form and a permanent part of the literature of the subjects to which they relate. "His was a master mind and it is inexpressible sad that at the climax of his influence, the zenith of his greatness, when his vision was clear and broader than of his grandeur, we must give him up. The burdens which he was manfully and courageously bearing must fall upon those less able to sustain them, but we all bow to the decree of an inscrutable Providence and march on, carrying with us the heavy sorrow of his death; but cheered, strengthened and inspired by the lesson of his life."

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Light rains this morning, accompanied by a sharp drop in the temperature, presaged uncomfortable conditions for the third game of the world's championship series this afternoon. As no more rain was in sight, however, it was regarded as certain the game would be played. The diamond was covered by canvas and did not suffer from the wet, but the outfield was slippery.

There was a thin, shivering line of enthusiasts lined up at the grounds when day broke, waiting for the ticket windows to open. The diamond was perfectly dry but the field was still a trifle treacherous. The line-up was the same as in Tuesday's game, except as to pitchers, and this was not finally decided until the Chicago Reulbach. The locals following, John Evers, the Chicago second baseman, who broke his ankle in the last series in Cincinnati, was cheered as he made his way on crutches to the press stand.

Philadelphia—Davis walked, Murphy grounded out, Steinfeldt to Chance, Davis reaching second, Barry doubled into the left field crowd, scoring Davis. Thomas' line drive was captured by Sheekard. Barry was held at second. Barry scored when Coombs doubled into the right field crowd. Strunk went out, Zimmerman to Chance. Two runs.

Chicago—Steinfeldt popped to Barry. Tinker doubled in the right field foul line. Kling was out. Beumont batted for Reulbach, and was given a base on balls. Sheekard walked, filling the bases. Tinker and Beumont scored when Schulte doubled to left. Holman struck out. Two runs.

Philadelphia—McIntyre is pitching for Chicago. Lord flew out to Sheekard. A fine rain began falling, but the game was not interrupted. Collins' sharp hit to Steinfeldt was a safe one. Collins scored when Schulte had been single pass him. Baker made third on the error. Davis was hit by a pitched ball and went to first. Murphy knocked a home run into the right field bleachers. Baker and Davis scoring ahead of him. Chicago claimed that under the rules Murphy's hit should have been only a double, but the claim availed them nothing. Chance was ordered off the field for continuing his protest. Archer taking his place. Barry knocked the first ball pitched to center for two bases. Barry scored when Thomas hit to Tinker and the latter threw badly to Archer. Thomas was doubled at second on Coombs' hit to Zimmerman. Five runs.

Chicago—Archer was out, Baker to Davis. Lord captured Zimmerman's fly. Steinfeldt struck out. No runs.

Philadelphia—Strunk flied out to Hofman. Lord singled to right center. Collins forced Lord at second, Pfeister to Zimmerman. Collins was out, King to Tinker. No runs.

D. A. R. MOURNS DOLLIVER. State Conference Sends Message of Sympathy to Family. Cedar Falls, Oct. 20.—A committee was appointed at the state board meeting of the D. A. R. conference yesterday afternoon to send an expression of sympathy to Mrs. Dolliver of Fort Dodge. The report of the committee was accepted and the following message sent: "The Iowa Daughters of the American Revolution in conference assembled at Cedar Falls, express deep sympathy with you in your sorrow."

WET WEATHER

By Mrs. Musgrave, regent of Abigail Adams chapter, Des Moines, and by common accord the entire conference arose to pay homage to their real daughter, of whom they are all so proud.

Iowa has several real daughters, but it is unusual for one of them to be present at the conference. Mrs. Anglin has nicely responded to the welcome given her.

Miss Lake reported great progress among the D. A. R.'s of Iowa in all lines, in child labor, in patriotic education and in growth. Iowa in 1908 had 1,541 members, since that time there have been 691 new members—the membership in Iowa at the present time being 2,232. She said that three new chapters had been organized in the past year, and that she would assist in organizing a new chapter at Onawa, next Saturday. Last year Iowa gave $295.20 to Iowa room at Continental hotel, this more than paid the $1,000 voted by Iowa D. A. R.'s for their room—$521.95 has been donated this year, for furniture in the room.

The secretary, who is also the chairman of the printing committee, said that 1,000 copies of the new standard rules had been printed, and 200 trousers blanks. She had written the last year, $632.12. She recommended that Iowa daughters purchase two new cuts of the necessary s needed to use on official documents. She also recommended a change in constitution; both recommendations will be acted upon later.

The treasurer, Mrs. Bohn, who has removed from Iowa to Wisconsin, sent her report which was read by Mrs. Effa Tuttle Crawford, state secretary. The amount received was $44,225, the balance on hand, $143.83, making a total of $78,178. The disbursements were $632.33, leaving $155.96 subject to draft in the bank.

Greetings were sent by the D. A. R. chapter at Fort Dodge and regretting that they were unable to attend.
