BABE CHOKES TO DEATH

Donald, infant son of Mrs. Sadie Moore, 29 North Center Street, Dies Piece of Bone in Windpipe and Gets Before Doctors Can Remove it—Mother Frantic With Grief.

Donald, the 13-month-old son of Mrs. Sadie Moore, 29 North Center street, choked to death on a piece of bone this afternoon while two surgeons were busy trying to remove the bone from the babe's windpipe.

The little fellow was given with his dinner a piece of spare rib from the end of which a cleaver had chipped a triangular shaving about a half an inch in diameter. The babe got the bone not only into his throat, but into the windpipe. His struggles for breath made the mother realize at once that the case was not one of ordinary choking, and after trying to relieve the child herself summoned Dr. H. H. Nichols, Dr. Nicholson hurried to the Moore home in an automobile, and took the choking baby at once to his offices in the Masonic temple, where he might have something to work with. Dr. Merrill was hastily summoned, and the two surgeons tried in every manner possible to get hold of the slippery little shaving of bone, but the babe died at 2 o'clock, as one of the doctors was swinging its little body backward and forward to induce respiration. The bone was taken from the child's windpipe by a post-mortem tracheotomy.

Mrs. Moore is almost frantic with grief as the result of the death of her only babe. The child's father, Stephen Moore, is somewhere in the west, near Seattle. Mrs. Moore came here about a year ago from Oskaloosa, and with her mother, Mrs. Anna V. Hulbert, conducts a racket store at 29 North Center.

The babe's body was removed to the undertaking parlors of the D. C. Wilbur store to be prepared for burial.
