JUDGE PARKER BEATEN

With Five Precincts in the Judicial District Missing Bradshaw and Nichols Have Big Lead Over Judge Parker—Daly Probably Be Elected.

With only five precincts missing in the judicial district—three in Benton, one in Tama and the Third ward in this city, Judge Bradshaw and Clarence Nichols are assured of election for judge.

Judge Bradshaw leads the other two by reason of the splendid vote he received in Benton and Tama counties. Judge Parker carried Marshall county. Nichols received the largest vote in Benton county, and Bradshaw was given the largest vote in Tama county.

Bradshaw leads Parker by 1,609 votes and Nichols by 164. The following is the vote by counties: Parker Bradshaw Nichols, Marshall 2,058 1,838 1,771, Benton 1,699 2,580 2,849, Tama 1,748 2,696 2,330.

Total 5,505 7,114 6,950. Bradshaw's plurality over Parker—1,609. Bradshaw's plurality over Nichols—164. Caswell Probably Beaten. With only the Third ward lacking, which it was understood today Caswell conceded to Daly, the indications are that Daly will be elected county attorney. Without this precinct Daly leads Caswell by 196 votes.

The following is the vote: Daly 1,909, Caswell 1,803. Daly's plurality 106. PSENICKA FOR CONSTABLE. Former Councilman From Fifth Ward Elected on Prohibition Ticket. Anthony Psenicka, former councilman from the fifth ward, may be entitled to wear a star if he qualifies for the office of constable, to which he was elected Tuesday on the prohibition ticket.

Mr. Psenicka started a quiet movement to elect Charles Bernstein, a well-known saloonist, to the office, by having friends write Bernstein's name on the ticket. The scheme was tipped off to Chairman George Herman, of the democratic county central committee, who turned the tide in favor of Psenicka. In the first ward, it is claimed unofficially, that Mr. Psenicka received sixty votes. This might be expected, however, as the first is now Mr. Psenicka's ward.

They do not tell Dr. Rosa Lieb, with whom they made arrangements to get the young woman, what her name was, but they referred to her as Alma.

G. Stewart.

Care must be exercised with plantings of asparagus to see that the summer's growth is mowed and burned before the seeds ripen and fall, otherwise the parent plants will soon be very much dwarfed with a mass of seedlings growing amongst them. When the seeds ripen growth for the summer has been completed, hence, no injury occurs to the roots of the plants from cutting the tops. Where a quantity of the seed is saved and sown in rows in the garden additional plants may thus be cheaply propagated as it seems advisable to extend the asparagus plantation. It often happens that a neighbor may be induced to plant asparagus if he can procure the roots in his neighborhood.

We are surprised to see so many farm gardens that are entirely without such hardy staples as asparagus, horse radish, pie plant, salsify, parsnips, etc., which may be taken from the soil as needed very early in the spring when every person is hungry for fresh vegetables. They will grow as readily as weeds when once established. A row of asparagus will remain for many years when given a place in rich soil.

When the ground freezes apply a cover of well composted manure on the asparagus rows which will keep the ground from freezing deeply and provide plenty of fertility for next summer's growth. An additional protection of loose litter, such as leaves or straw, may entirely prevent the ground from freezing underneath, which will make it possible to begin cutting asparagus very much earlier than where frost would remain until near the first of June, which is often the case in locations that are exposed and not provided with mulchings such as we have suggested. When the weather is settled in the spring remove the litter and work the compost into the soil with a fork. If the plants have been set deeply—say six to eight inches, the compost may be plowed under without injury to the roots of the plants.

Where large plantations of asparagus are made it is important that the roots be planted so deeply that all tillage may be accomplished with the plow and other heavy farm implements, and thus avoid the expense of hand labor. The commercial plantation of asparagus is cheaply established and comes into bearing cuttings almost as quickly as small fruits may be gathered after the bushes are set. The crop is more dependable than small fruits and yields a larger profit per acre. The demand for asparagus is almost unlimited during its season, especially where high quality is maintained.

The farmer and his family are entitled to the best his acres will produce. Why not have a good fruit and vegetable garden each and every year! WRONGFUL ELECTION. That a railroad agent is not entitled to use his authority to expel persons from the depot in such a crude and willful manner as to cause unnecessary hardship is illustrated by the case of Texas Midland Railroad Company vs. Geraldin, 128 Southwestern Reporter, 611. Geraldin and his wife went to Enloe, a small station in Texas, to take a train to another little town, and decided to remain in the depot till morning, when the next train was due. About 10 o'clock the agent ordered them out in the rain against the protest that Mrs. Geraldin was unwell and not in a condition to stand being out in a storm. They finally left to seek lodging elsewhere, so as to avoid threatened arrest. The wife was wet thru by the rain, and, having no change of clothing, suffered considerably from the exposure. Action was brought against the railroad company, and judgment for plaintiff was affirmed by the Texas supreme court. That tribunal recognized the right of the railroad company to close its depots at reasonable times, but held that it should not enforce its rules in such an arbitrary and harsh manner as to cause unnecessary hardship, such as resulted in this instance.

Adam's Sister. The palm tree has always been venerated wherever it grows; in some places it is worshipped. 'Honor the palm tree,' says a Mohammedan writer, 'for she is your father's aunt, for this tree was formed of the remainder of the clay from which Adam was created.' From Bonifort's Wine and Spirit Circular.

Misunderstood. Actyn Barnes, tragedian, solemnly strutted into the bar of the night stand hotel. 'Put a pint of wine on the ice, my friend,' he said to the man behind the counter. 'Not if I'm in my right mind I won't!' chuckled the other, who happened to be the proprietor; 'cash down is the rule in the here tavern, 'gosh!'
