Almost 90 Rides in Hydro Aeroplane

There isn't anything in the line of modern inventions that Fountain H. Ackert, 11 South Second street, isn't willing to try at least once.

When Mr. Ackert came on earth, ninety years ago next September, one would have been considered insane had he prophesied within Ackert's lifetime the appearance of automobiles, electric-driven vehicles, aeroplanes, and many other present-day realities.

But Mr. Ackert has lived to see them all, and many others, and while in Florida, from where he and Mrs. Ackert reached home Sunday night, Mr. Ackert rode in a hydro-aeroplane. The flight was made near Clearwater, and extended for about ten miles. Mr. Ackert thinks he is about the oldest birdman in the country.

Mr. and Mrs. Ackert have been in Florida since about the middle of December.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. A Faith of Forty Years Standing Told in Lecture.

That people today are unwilling to accept a theory without proof, a faith without works, an argument without results, is well known to even the casual observer. No belief can, during a period of forty years, continue to draw increasing numbers from every class, without possessing merit and truth. Christian science is doing this, because it possesses the truth that solves the mortal conditions which confront man, whether they be of body, spirit, or mutual well being.

To learn of this, from one speaking with authority, you are invited to a free lecture on Christian science at the church building, Main and Fifth streets, Tuesday at 8:15 p. m., March 31, by William D. McCrackan, C. S. B., of New York City, member of the board of lecturers of the Mother Church.—Advertisement.

What She Wished For. Little Marian is both ingenious and determined. Her ability to set her own way in an unexpected manner was evidenced the last time the family had turkey for dinner. Marian ate of it heartily and was inclined to pout when denied a second helping. "No, you can't have any more, dear," said her mother firmly. "You have had more than is good for you now. But here is the wishbone, Marian, and you may pull it with mamma. Whoever gets the longest and will have her wish come true."

The ceremony was performed and Marian triumphantly waved the long end. "Why, how nice!" cried her mother. "You will have your wish, dear. Tell mother what it was."

"I wished for more turkey," answered Marian, passing up her plate.
