PREDICTS 17 DRY SUMMERS.

Abbe Moreux Makes Forecast Based on Sun Spots. The Abbe Moreux, director of the observatory at Bourges, predicts a dry cycle of seventeen years from 1913 to 1930.

"Seventeen years of dryness," he says, "followed by as many years of humidity, such is the consequence of our being directly dependent on the sun. The last great maximum was to occur, according to my calculations, toward 1906 to 1907. It was this which enabled me, in 1902, to predict the rainy period which has persisted over almost the whole surface of the globe and which brought us the great floods of 1910."

"The rainy maximum which I had announced for 1913 has just ceased. We are about to enter into a dry period, which will last more particularly from 1913 to 1935."

Already, says the astronomer, there are signs of reawakening activity. The sun spots have appeared in the high altitude of the central planet. The seasons are about to become more marked, the winters colder and the summers warmer. -New York Sun.

Consolidation. A depot agent in a certain small town in Minnesota had inherited an amazing degree of that awful, consuming curiosity on which womankind is generally supposed to have a monopoly.

Some time ago a box containing a Belgian hare in transit for the west was dropped off at this station. When the agent saw the cloth across the box move, he started an investigation.

No sooner had he loosened the cloth sufficiently to enable him to peep into the box than Mr. Belgian Hare like a flash of light, was gone from the box and out of the depot. The agent gave chase. At a lively rate of speed the two went across the railroad tracks and toward the lake, the hare several paces in the lead. The agent's position was embarrassing, but it was up to him to recover the hare, and he kept on running. At times he seemed to be gaining a little. Suddenly, just at a most exciting time he stubbed his toe and fell. When he picked himself up, Mr. Hare had disappeared from sight over a rocky ledge. The agent stopped short, with a look of distress on his face, and a laborer returning from work heard the following remark from his lips:

You don't know where you're going anyhow!"

Your address is on the box back of the depot! -Lippincott's.

A Bad Memory. Mr. Cox, a hotel proprietor, had among his colored servants a woman named Esther Dodge, and this name continued on the pay roll long after Esther had taken unto herself a better half.

One morning Mr. Cox called Esther to him and suggested a change on the pay roll by giving the woman the name she had a right to be known by.

The woman listened quietly to the proposal, and then turned to go.

"Why, Esther," said her employer, "I do not know your name. Just tell it to me before you go."

Esther stood for some little time in an attitude of profound thought, her dusky hand across her swarthy brow, and at last exclaimed:

"My hands, boss! I just can't remember dat nigger's name nohow!" -National Monthly.
