REAL PIONEER SOCIETY.

Ladies' Social Gathering of Iowa Falls Held Fifty-Sixth Annual Meeting.

Special to Times-Republican.

Iowa Falls, April 10.—The Ladies' Social Gathering, probably the oldest ladies' organization in central Iowa, has just held its fifty-sixth annual election and planned an active campaign for this year. This society was organized in 1859 when Iowa Falls was a hamlet and with the object of providing a final resting place for those who passed away while in this little settlement on the Iowa prairies.

The new society purchased four and a half acres where Union cemetery is now located, paying $40 for the tract. The ground was covered with timber and underbrush and a "well" was arranged in the spring of 1869, when the ground was cleared. In later years, additions to the original grounds were platted, until now the cemetery is one of the finest in this part of the state.

But few of the earlier pioneers in this society's work still survive, among these being Mrs. A. A. Wells, Mrs. T. I. McChesney and Mrs. A. J. Foster, of this city, and Mrs. S. W. Pyle, of Pasadena. Before his death, Mr. L. E. Jones left a generous sum to be used by the society to erect a memorial to his mother, who was one of the active members of the society for many years.

The new directors of the society are: Mrs. H. A. Ellsworth, Mrs. A. J. Foster, Mrs. Robert Wright, Mrs. Grace A. Rinehart, Mrs. William Burgess, Mrs. F. E. Foster, Mrs. Jennie J. Thorp, Mrs. Margaret Tower, Miss Mary H. Bliss and Miss Elizabeth Tower. The directors elected the following officers: President, Mrs. H. A. Ellsworth; vice president, Miss Mary H. Bliss; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Jennie J. Thorp; sexton, Charles Larson; superintendent, F. E. Foster.

ROMANCE OF A BACHELOR.

Discovered After Death That He Had Wife and Daughter. Council Bluffs, April 10.—The brothers and sisters who had always believed that Isaac Benton Hatfield, now dead, was a bachelor, were horrified when the administrator of his estate made his report to the court in Creston yesterday, and disclosed that Hatfield had once married and that there was a child born to them. The administrator reported, however, that he had been unable to locate Mrs. Hatfield or the child and the court set aside a sum of money to pay the expense of pursuing the search for them. Hatfield, during his long residence in Iowa, lived entirely alone. He had resided at Holdrege, Neb., near where there is a large farm to be divided among the heirs along with several thousand dollars in cash in bank and property in Iowa. About all that is known of Mrs. Hatfield is that her maiden name was Ida Howard.

Rockwell City, April 10.—There was clerk yesterday with S. E. Stanfield, of the district court of Calhoun county, the petition of T. D. Long, one of the former editors of the Mansion Journal, against John F. Dalton, editor of the Mansion Democrat, alleging that on various occasions the Democrat contained libelous articles concerning the plaintiff, for which a judgment for the sum of $20,000 is asked to be entered against the Democrat editor.

Former Editor of Journal Charges That Democrat Contained Libelous Articles Referring to Plaintiff—Former Suit Instituted on Same Grounds, Settled by Dalton.

Special to Times-Republican.

Conditions grew from bad to worse until about two years ago, when the Democrat published an article concerning the plaintiff in this action which was alleged to be libelous, and the result was an action in the district court for damages.

On account of the serious illness of G. I. Long, one of the Journal editors, the case was continued from time to time until after his death, when a settlement was effected by the terms of which the Democrat editor was to pay a small sum of money and the costs incurred. Dalton paid the money into court, and a sigh of relief went up from the public, as it was supposed this ended the bitter fight that had been waged for years. But, alas, a few days later T. D. Long, the plaintiff in that action, wrote a short article in the Journal setting forth the facts and expressed the hope that thereafter there would be peace and harmony and the best of feeling between them.
