There is no more welcome visitor in the list of theatrical stars than Rose Stahl, and the announcement of her appearance in a new play awakes pleasant anticipation. At Odeon tonight the Henry B. Harris estate is to present Miss Stahl in her latest character portrait, Lucille Higgins, in the comedy entitled "A Perfect Lady." "A Perfect Lady" was written for Miss Stahl by Channing Pollock and Rennold Wolf and it is said that they have succeeded in giving her a character in which her art or laughter is seen to the best advantage. Correct, After All.
A teacher was explaining to her pupils in the primary class the difference between civilized and uncivilized races, insisting upon the three things as requisites for civilization—food, clothing and shelter.

The following day she resumed her subject by way of review.
"What are the three things necessary to a civilized man?" she asked.

Several of the children remembered food and clothing, but the third requisite seemed to have entirely escaped their recollection. Finally, after the question had been repeated two or three times, one of the boys, the largest one in the class, raised his hand, triumphantly.

"Well, James, you may tell us."
"A wife."—Albany Press.

She Was Flabbergasted.

Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, in his witty war on cosmetics, said in a recent lecture in New York:
"A girl and a man sat under a palm in a rose garden on a soft March evening at St. Augustine.

"Is your love true?" the girl asked softly.

"As true" the man answered in low, passionate tones, "as the delicate flush on your cheek."

"Oh—er—ah," the girl stammered hurriedly, "isn't that—er—don't the roses smell sweet?"

Joffre Sleeps in Auto.

When General Joffre is traveling from point to point on the hundreds of miles of battle line under his direction he does most of his sleeping in his motor car, so the English newspapers state. While he travels at night—seldom making less than forty miles an hour—he sleeps and sleeps well, it being stated that he finds the motor car, even at high speed, more comfortable than a camp bed.
