FLARES AND FRILLS COMBINED IN A YOUTHFUL FROCK

Rustling taffeta made flaring and frilly into a skirt and a tight waisted basque with more frills about the neck. These make of this frock a welcome addition to the season's novelties. The frills are set on panels at the sides of the skirt, leaving a flaring untrimmed panel front and back.

LIEE WAS A TRAGEDY, SAID IOWA WOMAN

Mrs. William Litzberg, of Montezuma, Iowa, suffered from stomach troubles for a long period. She grew weak as a result of the failure of her digestive processes. She was always tired.

Then came May's Wonderful Remedy and showed her the way back to health again.

The first bottle, the very first dose, put Mrs. Litzberg on her feet. She wrote:

"I have taken four bottles of your Wonderful Remedy. I can't be thankful enough for it. I must say that it is the best medicine that I ever tried."

"I was so weak that I did not think life was worth living—had no appetite—everything I ate worked against me, but now I can eat anything at all that looks good. I feel so strong—have been able to do a good day's work ever since I took the first bottle."

May's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be returned. For sale in Marshalltown by A. T. Elder and druggists everywhere.

PORK CHOPS FRIED IN SOAP.

So Jersey Husband Alleges, and He Hales His Wife to Court.

"Look at those pork chops and pancakes. Judge. Just look at 'em," thundered William Maidt, of North Bergen county, N. J., to Recorder Medina. His wife, Mary, stood meekly by. The couple appeared in court to make charges against each other.

"What's the matter with 'em?" asked the recorder.

"Matter with 'em? Nothing the matter with 'em; oh, no; nothing the matter with 'em at all, except they were fried in soap. That's all that's the matter with 'em. Otherwise they'd be all right."

"That's so," said Mrs. Maidt. "He's a crank and wants everything just so. Why, judge, when I put the furniture in the middle of the room he put it back and nailed the table and chairs against the walls, and then—"

"You two go home," said the recorder, "and stop fussing with each other over such trifles. If you find you can't agree, come back next Monday."

So they left, William still glowering at the pork chops and pancakes, and Mary very meek by his side.—New York American.

Portugal Was Once Ruler of the Seas. So many other things are taking place in the world that the news of a revolution in Portugal is only picturesque. It seems oddly inconsequential. Portugal's area is about equal to that of Indiana. It contains only a few more people than live in New York City. The whole adult male population would hardly fill the fighting trenches across Flanders. The outside world is as little concerned about a civil war among the Portuguese as the Portuguese are concerned with the great present affair of Europe.

And yet 500 years ago, the span of a few generations, Portugal was the greatest maritime power, preceding

Great Britain in that eminence. The Portuguese first explored the two coasts of Africa. The Cape of Good Hope was doubled by Bartholomew Diaz in 1486. Vasco da Gama reached India, via Cape of Good Hope, eleven years later. In 1600 King Emanuel ascended the throne of Portugal and assumed the title of "Lord of the coasts of India, Ethiopia, Arabia and Persia." In that year the Portuguese made settlements in Brazil. History is a catalog of dreams. The dream of empire is nearly the oldest one. Its star is very fickle.—New York Times.

A Last Resort. Mr. Thompson was obliged to stop over night at a small country hotel. He was shown to his room by the one boy the place afforded, a colored lad.

"I am glad there's a rope here in case of fire," commented Mr. Thompson, as he surveyed the room, "but what's the idea of putting a bible in the room in such a prominent place?" "That am intended for use, sah," replied the boy, "in case the fire am too far advanced for 'em to make 'em escape."—Harper's Magazine.

Why They Fought. Mrs. Carnes had a new maid, and while she went on a day's motor trip she ventured to leave the children in charge of the girl.

"Well, Annie," asked the mistress on her return, "how did the children behave during my absence? Nicely, I hope?"

"Nicely, indeed, mumm," replied the girl, "but at the end they fought terribly, mumm."

"Fought!" exclaimed Mrs. Carnes. "Why, Annie, why did they fight?"

"To decide, mumm," said Annie, "which was behavin' th' best."—Harper's Magazine.
