U. S. TABOOS WATER BALLAST

Federal Inspector Says Boats Like Eastland Are Not Approved.

REVEALED AVOIDS CONFLICT WITH COURT

Secretary of Commerce Calls Before Him Only Witnesses Not Called to Testify by Federal Court—State Grand Jury Investigation Nearing Close and Indictments Due by Wednesday—Federal Inspectors Released.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—Secretary Redfield today resumed his inquiry into the Eastland disaster and avoided conflict with the federal court by calling witnesses not called by the federal court. Edward C. Gillette, of Washington, superintendent of naval construction of the lighthouse service, was the first witness called today by Secretary Redfield. The witness said he had examined the wreck and was of the opinion that the estimated load she carried at the time of the accident was not too great if the water ballast had been properly handled. Gillette said that the air ports on the Eastland were not more than fourteen inches above the water and that a small list would bring the gangways awash.

Gillette said that of 113 vessels under his jurisdiction only three use water ballast. He said he would design all boats to be safe without the use of water ballast.

"Have you ever allowed a boat to pass inspection which depended on water for stability?" asked Lieutenant Governor O'Hara.
