PRESIDENT NAMES CLUB COMMITTEES

THIRTY-ONE SEPARATE GROUPS TO LOOK AFTER MARSHALLTOWN CLUB AFFAIRS.

SIX NEW COMMITTEES ON SCHEDULE FOR THIS YEAR

Election, Greater Marshalltown, Ad Club, Retail Clerks' Welfare, Young Men's Social and Music All New Selections—Convention Committee One of Most Important.

Thirty-one standing committees of the Marshalltown Club, which include practically every member of the organization, have been appointed for 1916 by President Fred M. Wilbur. The committees named embrace every subject and department which has been looked after in the past, besides six new committees, which the president believes should have a place in the club activities.

The new committees named are the election committee, Greater Marshalltown, retail clerks' welfare, young men's social, music, and ad club.

To Have Ad Club. To reorganize the ad club, which formerly existed here, and make it a club within the Marshalltown Club, will be the purpose of the ad club committee. The most important committee of the year will be the convention committee. Members of this will have charge of the many conventions which are to meet here this year. The committee has been divided into two sections, one of finance and one of entertainment. The first named person in each committee list is chairman.

Wilbur Instructs Chairmen. To show the committee chairmen that each committee is expected actually to do something, President Wilbur has sent to each chairman a letter, telling him of his appointment as chairman of a certain committee. The chairman is urged to have at least one meeting of his committee before Feb. 15, and talk over with the various members on the committee the work which should be done. A dinner for the chairmen of all committees will then be held in February, and plans discussed for the best way to continue the work which each committee should have started by that time.

HAMMOND MILL IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

OLD FLOUR MILL AT LEGRAND BURNS—LOSS $10,000; INSURANCE, $8,000.

BUILDING FALLING IN WHEN FIRE DISCOVERED

Property Was Owned by Hiram H. Hammond & Son, and Was Only Flour Mill in the County—Elder Hammond Has Owned and Operated Mill For More Than Fifty Years.

The Hammond & Son Mill, near LeGrand, the only flour mill in the county, was destroyed by fire late Tuesday night. The loss is total. Hiram H. Hammond, the senior member of the firm, estimated the loss at $10,000 today, with insurance of $8,000 on the stock.

The origin of the fire is not known. The mill was discovered on fire about midnight. It had been burning for some time then and was about ready to fall in.

Stock of Wheat Burned. The building was of wood. In addition to the usual flouring machinery there was quite a large stock of unmilld wheat in storage. Hammond estimated there were 3,000 bushels of this grain, but no sacked flour in the mill.

This forenoon, as soon as the ruins had cooled so that the safe could be reached, it was dug out. The books and records of the partnership were found unharmed and intact.

It is conjectured that the fire may have been caused by coal heating and breaking out in flames, or it might have been caused by a fire in the building from the fire under the steam boilers.

Was an Old Grist Mill. The mill was among the first grist mills built in the county. It had been operated continuously since 1856, and had outlived all the other mills.

It was built in 1856 by Thomas and "Ich" Schofield, who operated it for several years. In 1864 Hiram H. Hammond, one of the present owners, bought an interest. At a later date his son, L. A. Hammond, one of the present owners, acquired an interest.

Mr. Hammond could not say whether or not the mill would be rebuilt.

LOCAL MAN SECURES PATENT. Peter Swedberg Granted Patent on Circular Barn Construction.

Peter Swedberg, 1508 South Sixth street, a stone and brick mason, has been granted a patent on barn construction which the holder of the patent believes will prove popular among farmers and stock growers.

The barn is circular in shape, of fire proof construction, built of cement and brick, with hollow tile walls. Circulation of heat thru the walls is arranged by air spaces extending around the building, and if the barn is built for horses or cattle a silo is built in it. The silo is not included in the plans if built for hogs and chickens. An automatic feeding device, arranged to prevent waste of feed, is another feature of the construction.
