STATE HOSPITAL HEAD DISCUSSES PECULIAR CASE

Recovers After Five Months and After Repeated Efforts to Cure Him Failed—State Institutional Heads Meet and in Interesting Review of Cases Discuss Treatment of State Wards.

Special to Times-Republican.

Des Moines, June 6.—The peculiar case of a man who became suddenly dumb after being arrested and charged with a crime and who continued in this state for five months, when he appeared to come to himself just as suddenly as he had lost his senses, was discussed by Dr. R. G. Eaton, assistant superintendent of the hospital at Cherokee, at the quarterly conference of the heads of state institutions held in the board of control rooms today. The man was arrested on the charge of embezzling considerable money and jewelry from the American Express Company. He disappeared suddenly from his place of employment and was next heard of about 1,000 miles away, embarking on a new enterprise. When he was arrested and charged with the crime he became suddenly dumb and appears to have had what the experts term a "total amnesia" for about five months. While he was in that state he was confined in the hospital and the attendants tried a number of things to arouse him. One night while he was sleeping a huge pile of bricks were allowed to fall near his bed with a clattering noise but he did not awaken. Similar tests were made both while he was asleep and awake but they seemed to arouse him only for a moment. After about five months of this he came to all at once. But he denies having any knowledge of the theft of goods which took place two months before his arrest.

Discusses Feeble Minded.

Dr. George Morriss, superintendent of the Iowa institution for feeble minded children at Glenwood, gave a resume of the present knowledge in regard to feeble minded persons. He spoke of the numbers at large, and called attention to the dangers of their presence in any community. He stated that the high grade feeble minded, or so-called morons, if mated, would produce an average family of seven as against a family of normal people of four, showing they are much more prolific. He spoke of the relation of feeble mindedness to insanity, epilepsy, crime and pauperism, and of the danger of prostitution. He argued that it would be good public policy and in the interests of political economy if all the feeble minded were segregated in institutions or colonies.

He called attention to the generally accepted theory that "the fruits of mental degeneracy in a community will disappear in proportion to the reduction of feeble minded individuals and that the most urgent need in the work of reducing degeneracy is the elimination of the feeble minded."

Dr. Mogridge quoted an authority as stating that "restriction of marriage counts very little because the feeble minded do not care for marriage. Sterilization is not popular and the general feeling is against it; states where laws have permitted it have not practiced it to any great extent, so that we have to rely on segregation and education."

In a paper on vital statistics Dr. G. H. Sumner, secretary of the state board of health, declared that such statistics formed the very basis and foundation of any attempt to better the general health. Such facts, he said, gave us a knowledge of what was killing us before our time and constituted the first step toward saving our lives.

"Vital statistics mean the proper registration of births, stillbirths, deaths, marriages, divorces and diseases," said Dr. Sumner. "Every individual has a reasonable right to demand that his or her birth, death, marriage or divorce (should there be a marriage or divorce), shall be recorded somewhere besides in the old family bible for in many instances the absence of such record works a hardship besides inconvenience in many instances."

AUTO KILLS NEWTON GIRL.

Car Overtakes and Breaks Neck of Miss Louise Morrison.

Newton, June 6.—Four young people on Saturday afternoon took advantage of the fine weather and roads to auto to Des Moines.

Miss Louise Morrison, of Newton, and Miss Vina Numanaker, of Ames, occupied the Morrison car alone with Miss Morrison at the wheel. They were preceded by another car which held Miss Morrison's brother and Ted Rossing, of Ames. They were on their way to Des Moines from Newton and had covered about four miles of their journey when they reached a hill. They were descending this hill when Miss Morrison lost control of the car she was driving and it began to pick up momentum. Suddenly the wheels struck a deep rut and in an instant the large touring car had turned over burying its occupants beneath it. Miss Numanaker, who occupied the seat with the driver, was thrown to the ground and when the car turned over, she found herself under the body, imprisoned but protected by the sides of the car.

Miss Morrison was not so fortunate. Crowded behind the steering wheel and unable to leave her seat in time, the unfortunate victim was pinned to the ground by the wind shield. Her neck was broken, and she suffered other injuries which in themselves would have been serious. Death was instantaneous, and the happy girl of a moment before now lay a victim of the implacable angel of death.

A Progressive City.

Cities that are worrying over narrow streets and sidewalks may take a lesson from the recent action of Montevideo, capital of Uruguay, which has passed an ordinance requiring that all buildings be erected at least 32.8 feet from the boundary line, except in the business district, where 18.12 feet setback must be allowed for walks and parking, and must be cut away from steps, balustrades and ornaments.

RAILROADS APPLY FOR RETRIALS IN TWO DAMAGE SUITS RECENTLY DECIDED.

GREAT WESTERN CLAIMS VERDICT IS EXCESSIVE

Estate of Engineer Spillman Secures Judgment For $11,150 and Company Asserts This is Too Much—Northwestern Objects to Paying Double Damage For Killing Horse.

Des Moines, June 6.—The Chicago Great Western Railroad Company yesterday petitioned the supreme court for a rehearing in the case of the estate of John J. Spillman vs. the Chicago Great Western in which a verdict of $11,150 was rendered against the railroad. The case was tried in the Polk county district court and affirmed in the high court.

Spillman was an engineer on the Great Western. He was killed when his train was wrecked March 28, 1910, on his run between Des Moines and Oelwein. Suit was filed for $20,000 damages. The jury granted $11,150. The railroad company complains that the judgment is too high and that the statute of limitations had run against the claim. The company also claimed that an amendment to the suit took the case out from under the state workmen's compensation law and placed it under the federal employers' liability act. Spillman was 53 years of age when he died and was making $175 a month.

The Northwestern railroad asked the supreme court yesterday for a rehearing in the case of George L. Pierce vs. the Northwestern, appellant. The case was tried in the Marshall county district court and affirmed in the high court. Pierce was given double damages for the killing of his horse on the railroad right-of-way. The suit took the case out from under the state workmen's compensation law and placed it under the federal employers' liability act. Spillman was 53 years of age when he died and was making $175 a month.

The section in question provides that where live stock is killed on the right-of-way by failure of the railroad to maintain fences or cattle guards, if the company shall fail to settle for damages within thirty days after notice in writing of the loss is given to the proper representative of the railroad, the owner of said stock may recover double damages from the railroad.
