

HANLY-LANDRITH PARTY STOPS HERE

DRYS' CANDIDATES FOR PRESIDENT AND VICE PRESIDENT ADDRESS MEETING.

SOME SAW PURPOSE TO BOOST MEREDITH

Party Traveling Across Iowa in Special Train Spends an Hour Here Late in Day — Hanly Discusses Party Platform — State Issues Mentioned by Mystic Language.

Speaking in Marshalltown, the home of the third party prohibition candidate for governor, with said candidate sitting by their sides, the national candidates on the prohibition ticket for president and vice president avoided reference to the prohibition party's candidate for governor in the state by name, but instead repeated the mystic language used at Council Bluffs and in Des Moines, which many took to mean that prohibition votes to be effective should be cast for Meredith in the present campaign in this state.

They did not say so unequivocally. Their urging was for the candidate who is the drier, but at Council Bluffs they urged all voters to scratch their tickets in the Iowa campaign and at Des Moines they said they understood the local situation in Iowa. At no place did they name the third party candidate for governor in this state.

Eastward bound across the state in their coast-to-coast campaign the Hanly-Landrith party spent about an hour in this city late Friday afternoon. J. Frank Hanly, of Indianapolis, prohibition candidate for president, and Rev. Ida Landrith, of Nashville, Tenn., candidate for vice president, spoke here. Earlier in the day the members of the party had stopped at places west of this city. After leaving they stopped at Tama, Belle Plaine and Cedar Rapids.

A crowd of 200 or 300 listened to the short talks that Hanly and Dr. Landrith delivered from an improvised stand in the court house yard. The soldiers' home drum corps played.

Warn Against Wets.

Hanly discussed platform planks of the party in a general way and neither he nor Dr. Landrith touched on state or local issues except by inference.

Referring to the liquor issue in the state Hanly said the dries' "Your battle in Iowa is not yet ended. Do not be too sure you are in control. Vigilance still remains the price of liberty. Elect no man to office, put no man in control, and put your trust in no man who does not stand four square on the liquor issue."

"I would not send any man to the governor's chair who was not eternally and everlastingly against intemperance and the saloon. Such a one should not be voted for in Iowa," was the warning on the same subject Dr. Landrith left.

Drys Only Progressives.

Hanly described the dry party as the only progressive party in the field.

"It stands," said Hanly, "for woman suffrage, not as a political expediency, but because it believes the ballot to be the woman's just right. The prohibition party stands for reasonable preparation, a preparedness to protect our shores from foreign invasion. It stands for the establishment of a world's court of arbitration and a world's police force to enforce world peace."

"The party stands for a national non-partisan tariff commission. The prohibition party believes in the Monroe doctrine. We stand for an honest civil service, an eight-hour working day, the extension of the employers' liability acts and the conservation of our national resources."

Dr. Landrith Jovial Speaker.

Dr. Landrith devoted much of the time allotted to him in telling stories and jokes. He kept the audience laughing.

He blamed the churches and societies organized to fight the liquor traffic with spending too much time fighting each other and not enough time fighting the traffic.

"Our campaign," said he, "is to clean up America. Nineteen states are already dry. Nine have gone dry since Jan. 1. Twelve million people have lived in dry territory in the last eighteen months.

"Hughes is as dry as a bone. He's so dry he can't even put punch in his campaign," was Dr. Landrith's description of the republican hope.

"Wilson is as dumb as a wooden Indian on the liquor subject," he continued.

Local Workers With Party.

Hanly was introduced by Oliver W. Stewart, of Chicago, chairman of the national committee. Others in the party were Mrs. Hanly, Mrs. Stewart, Dr. D. M. Bottoms, of Battle Creek, Mich., medical attendant, press representatives, and stenographers. The special train arrived in this city about 3:45 and left an hour later. O. D. Elliott, of this city, party candidate for governor, E. H. Buchanan, and W. M. Collins, the latter local committeemen, spent part of the day with the party.

Commends Meredith's Candidacy.

In an interview at Council Bluffs, following his public address there, Dr. Landrith explained why conditions in this state made it inadvisable to come out flat footedly for Meredith. "The Council Bluffs Nonpartisan of Friday evening says:

"In a statement following his public address, Dr. Landrith declared that it was not considered good policy in states where the prohibition party has a tacked of its own to increase any candidate of another party. "Were it not for this fact," he said, "we should certainly have come out and formally commended Meredith as the dry candidate for governor of Iowa in every speech we make in this state."

LOCAL COMMENT

The farm show to be held in Marietta township is the forerunner of social activities which are to make farm life in Iowa a community life in the future. With the advent of the auto the isolation of the farm is to vanish. It will be gone when the auto can travel on any day or night in the year. The curse of loneliness for women and young folks which has hung over farm life is to disappear and a community life is to take its place. The business of farming is hereafter to be promoted by the farm club just as the commercial club in town is the organized booster movement for business in town. The consolidated school with its agricultural experimenting grounds will be associated with the community entertainment course, the agricultural expert, the farm show, farmers club and the women's club of the farms. Why not? Are people any different in the country than in town? Conditions of life are different but those are man made. Get ready for the change that is coming and watch the children begin to stay on the farm.

State agents are demonstrating what could have been done with delinquent auto owners if there had been a vigorous enforcement of law. It is a mistake to extend leniency to such a degree that contempt for law becomes general. One or two vigorous applications of enforcement is all that is required to breed respect for law. It was true in the old days of the district school. The application of law enforcement during the first three days of the term always determined whether the teacher was to be respected and obeyed or ducked in the creek. Times have changed but human nature is much the same.

That gravelled road to Albion by way of Marietta is still paved mostly with good intentions.

The public will rejoice at a police quarantine of the Italian's home suspected of harboring a case of paralytic. The proper thing to have done would have been to have rushed the patient off to the detention hospital. Here is a disease that has killed one in every four out of 8000 cases in New York. No smallpox epidemic in modern times has ever approached that degree of deadliness and it becomes ridiculous to use an isolation hospital for a disease which has been practically conquered by medical science and neglect to use it for a more modern scourge as yet unconquerable. Let the police stand guard and let there be no weakness in the mayor's office as to enforcement of quarantine wherever ordered.

Rev. Hurlburt is to leave the Methodist church here by transfer to a superintendent's duties. The demonstration among the members of his church leaves no doubt as to the wide number of friendships he has made. Mr. Hurlburt has proved himself to be one of the most scholarly preachers who has ever been assigned to a ministry in Marshalltown.

For three days in December Marshalltown must entertain 1,000 boys as delegates to a Y. M. C. A. convention. They will come from all over the state. At the age of 15 they are less than ten years from the period of constructive citizenship which makes a town go forward or backward. From a strictly commercial standpoint it would be a better investment of time and labor to impress these potential town builders with the attractiveness of Marshalltown than the same effort expended upon older delegates whose homes have become permanently established elsewhere. Let's give the lads a good time because a Y. M. C. A. boy deserves it but let's not forget that there is also a main chance in cultivating the rising generation.

People who are dissatisfied with the roughness of the new paving have a right to complain for there is no excuse for the kind of finishing that has been done on some of it but everybody should know that a concrete pavement should not be trowled smooth like a sidewalk because there must be a grit and coarseness to its surface in order to afford a firm footing for horses. This can be obtained, however, without leaving humps to jar vehicles.

Mr. Binford has become so enthused with the possibility of selling town lots in quantities that another slice of his farm is to go on to the market. The opportunities for people to own a lot on the small payment plan were never so plentiful in Marshalltown as now. Judged by the steady rise in lot values in the past they are a safe and sure method of saving money at one end and making more money at the other. There is a vast gulf of difference between the buying of an automobile or other luxury on the installment plan and the investment in permanent property of rising value by weekly payments.
