Thursday, April 20, 1893.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hopkins are rejoicing in the advent of a little girl at their home and so the population increases." (Edna Hopkins, who died at the age of 5 months.)

"Complaint didn't do much good yesterday. The weather even got beyond Uncle Sam's control, and he wasn't able to get any deal fixed up for today until the last minute. And even then he didn't hit it right, for never an inch of clear sky was visible last night or this morning. Show continued to flutter down nearly all day yesterday and in small quantities even last night and today. A good deal has already thawed, and the streets are muddier than the law allow."

Thermometer only 23 degrees last night, but the chilly wind and the flying snow ho late in the season made prudent people very much averse to sauntering abroad. Trains north and west of Marshalltown have been badly delayed. East and south of us there has not been much trouble."

Spring Hints—

"Lettuce hope that the early onion will survive."

"Wishes Stern wishes all his friends a Merry Christmas."

"Flowing goes right on despite the storm. It is confined to the railroads, however."

"The advantage of having another winter lies largely in the fact that you will have another spring."

"W. W. Adams, an employe of the Marshall Building Company, met with a very unfortunate accident at about 1 o'clock this afternoon, catching his left hand in the machinery and mangle it so badly that three fingers had to be amputated."

Before a good-sized audience at the Baptist church the Baptist Young People's Union entertained at a social. Besides elegant refreshments there was also a very delightful literary and musical program. Miss Libbie Hall sang a solo. Misses Margaret Galbraith and Nellie Hudson a duet and Misses Galbraith and Hudson and Messrs. Rodney C. Wells and Howard Kellogg a quartet. Dr. L. P. Kellogg played a delightful flute solo. There were recitations by Misses Lizzie Whinery, Winnie Cousins, Pearl Harris, and Margaret Johnston and Master Howard Wilbur. Misses May Wason and Cora Wilbur played piano accompaniments for the vocal music. The members of the B. Y. P. U. are to be congratulated on their several successful socials."

James Ross, an inmate in the county jail, 35 years of age, who had been injured in a fight in Boone county, died at the jail following an operation performed to raise a depression in the skull, caused by being struck over the head with a hammer.

Saturday, April 22, 1893.

In an article looking into the future, and seeing much in store for future generations Mrs. Mary E. Lease, of Kansas, then becoming well known as a Farmers' Alliance advocate, quoted Victor Hugo, the celebrated French poet and writer, as follows: "In the twentieth century war will be dead! Royalty will be dead! Famine will be dead, but the people will live! For all humanity there will be but one country, that country the whole earth; for all the people one hope, that hope all heaven!"

Mrs. A. E. Hanes, aged 37, died at her home on South Twelfth street, leaving a family consisting of her husband and seven children. Burial was in Timber Creek township.

Sunday April 23, 1893.

Miss Lulu Lynch, aged 21, a lieutenant in the Salvation Army, died as a result of having been badly burned on April 5, when her clothing caught fire while she was working over a gasoline stove. The body was sent to Pueblo, Colo., for burial.

Monday, April 24 1893.

A small sized tornado passed over the south end of the city at 9 o'clock in the morning, doing considerable damage a mile south of the court house on Center street. One barn and a small house were destroyed.

"The champion hunters are Messrs. W. B. Kibbey and H. P. Densel. Friday night and Saturday, along the river and ponds northeast of this city, they shot 185 snipe and one lonesome duck. The snipe record is certainly broken by this wonderful shooting. This isn't a spring hunting yarn either. It's the gospel truth."

Commercial pilgrim's column: "Frank Thayer, the gentlemanly representative of the Marshall Printing Company, made the Illinois Central from Ackley west with his usual good success. He is looking more handsome than usual this spring, and if he does not do a wonderfully increased business it will not be because he hasn't a very pleasant way of going about it."

As an evidence of how times have changed: James A. Reilly, "America's sweetest singer and German dialect comedian," appeared at the Odeon in his new play, "A German Soldier." Among Mr. Reilly's song hits were "I Love Mein Paierland" and "Remember You Vas a German Soldier."

Tuesday, April 15, 1893.

Marshalltown people awoke to discover that, at an early hour, a gang of workmen had commenced tearing unsightly holes in the new pavement on the west side of South First avenue, in which were being placed "cheap looking, unsightly posts at intervals of four to six feet, the row extending nearly the whole length of the block." When it finally dawned on the citizens that the posts were hitching posts, "they rapidly grew 'red headed'." It was explained by the newspaper that the board of supervisors had ordered the work done and Chairman A. N. French, in justification of the act, said that the city had failed to provide a suitable place where farmers might hitch their teams; that such a place was necessary, and that the county owned a portion of First avenue. At 2:30 in the afternoon Mayor Kibbey stopped the proceedings temporarily and ordered the work discontinued. For several days thereafter much space was devoted to the hitching posts, which the Times-Republican urged be removed. [On the night of May 2, when theatergoers were on their way home the notorious and much undesired hitching posts, "all stood like white sentinels in the moonlight. When dancers wandered away from the May party a little later many of them were down. When business men opened their stores this morning (May 3) all lay prostrate in the street, and before 10 o'clock they had been hauled away." The city administration was criticized in some quarters because the work had been done at night. Mayor Kibbey said that in view of the contention over the posts he thought it better to have the work done at night when the streets were clear of traffic.]

Wednesday, April 26, 1893.

"The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Charlese Kline, formerly of this city but now of Pon du Lac, Wis., will be pleased to learn of the arrival of a little girl at their home. (Lovena Kline, now Mrs. Goodwin Garat, of Coon Rapids.)

John McElrath and Miss Charity Ingraham, both of Laurel, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents.

Charles Tait and Miss Anna Albers, also of Laurel, were married at the Albers home.

Thursday, April 27, 1893.

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Crabtree, of East State street, Rev. J. E. Keyes united in marriage Miss Adeline Crabtree, and Maximilian Kruskopf. Forty guests witnessed the ceremony, being "met at the door by the bride's charming sister, Miss Laura, and received in the parlor by the devotees of Hymen. The bridal costume consisted of an emerald gown of fawn color, trimmed with darker velvet and rich Irish point lace, with orange slippers and gloves to match. 'Love in a cottage' will reign at 9 North Sixth street."

Laurel correspondence: "Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Paul welcomed the arrival of their first born, a girl, on Wednesday, April 15."

At the home of the bride's parents, at Topeka, Kan., Miss Agda Watts, of that city, was given in marriage to John W. Noid of Marshalltown, a clerk employed by George P. Powers.

TRANSFER RADIO STUDENTS.

Three Marshalltown Boys Sent From Great Lakes to Minneapolis.

Richards; and William Flower, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Flower, have been transferred to the radio school at Dunwoody Institute, Minneapolis, for advanced instruction in radio.

The course of instruction at the institute is for eight weeks, and at the conclusion of the course the boys will be sent to complete their radio training, probably going to Harvard University or some other school where the finishing course in radio is afforded the candidates for the radio service. Rosengren, the receipts of the city from all sources during the year ending March 31, were $190,697.12 plus a cash balance April 1, 1917, of $35,526.83, making a total available of $226,223.95. The expenditures of the city during the year were $171,890.78 and the cash balance March 31 was $54,393.17.
