

RENTS ROOM FOR DIME; DIES RICH

Ten-Cent Hotels for the Hard-up Workingmen Brought Fortune to Burton.

ECONOMY IS SECRET

Operated Hotels Cheaply and was Able to Profit.

(By The Associated Press.)
St. Louis, Mo., May 22.—Ten-cent hotels for the hard-up workingman of his transient brother, brought a fortune of $150,000 to William F. Burton, who died recently at the age of 50 years.

Coming to this city in 1882 after high water had washed away his plantation fortune in Mississippi, Burton found himself almost penniless.

All for a Dime.
Starting his plan of giving a clean 10-cent home to the unfortunate, Burton's enterprise spread rapidly until at one time he owned almost a dozen 10 to 20-cent lodging houses in the lower downtown district. For many years he was the nightly host to several thousand men who depended on his philanthropy for shelter against the rigorous weather in winter. Even in summer, when the migrant workers had gone to the harvest fields, the hotels cared each night for approximately a 1000 lodgers.

What Dime Brought.
For a dime he gave the men a bed, bath, hot and cold water, soap and basin for washing clothes, clean towels, new linens, and a hot breakfast. Information about employment agencies; shoe polish and brush to aid the jobless men in putting up their best appearance, when seeking work and a place to loaf for those who failed to obtain employment.

Profit in 20 Cent Rooms.

Burton said economy in operating the hotels made the low rate possible. A few roughly partitioned rooms for those seeking privacy brought the high prices—15 and 20 cents a night but the majority of lodgers slept in double deck iron beds set close together in large rooms. Light were candles; every man his own bellhop; a single clerk at a time looked after the entire hotel bed linen was changed once or twice a week, and only a few employees were needed to keep the establishment clean.

Disposed of the hotels several years ago on account of his advanced age, but continued his acts of kindness, including giving picnics or automobile trips to the country for blind or crippled children.

DELEGATE TELLS OF ARMS PARLEY

Australian Gives Review of Washington Conference at Dinner Party.

FEAR OF WAR GONE

Cannot Describe Accomplishments of the Conference.

Sydney, N. S. W., May 22.—A review of the recent Washington conference was given here by Senator Pearce, Australia's delegate, who was the honor guest at a dinner given by the "Get Together Club," at which T. Sammons, the American consul-general, presided. Premier Hughes, in introducing Senator Pearce, said that the conference had removed the present danger of war and that the hope of the world lay in a good understanding between the two English speaking nations.

Did Not Like "Alien."
Senator Pearce said that the most distasteful experience of his American trip occurred when he was compelled to write himself down as an "alien." He said eloquently could describe the magnitude of the accomplishments of the conference.

"The United States and Japan were drifting fast toward a war which would have been more terrible than the last war, because there would have been introduced into it not only the implements of destruction invented and used during the last war, but others more destructive than the mind of man had conceived hitherto," he declared. "This was made plain at the conference."

British Sacrifice.
"It was fine to hear the British delegates agree to the proposal that Britain should accept naval equality with the United States. This was a terrible sacrifice for an empire that lived by sea power. The United States would live without a single ship of war, but it is vital to the life of the British empire that it should maintain its supremacy on the seas unless its integrity was guaranteed in some other way."

"I hope that in the near future we may see the United States a member of the league of Nations, taking part in the reconstruction of humanity."

Church Advertising.

It pays a church to advertise for present and future reasons. It pays a merchant. A merchant advertising to keep his present customers coming into his store and to win the good will of new ones; and that is precisely what the most progressive churches are doing. A merchant soon finds that if he advertises he is getting more business. A church advertising pays well rounded, unshakable dividends.

Dr. Christian E. Reiser, of New York City, a widely known authority on church advertising, and chairman of the church advertising department of the advertising clubs, will preside at the conference, and will speak on "Why the Church Advertising Department of the Associated Advertising Clubs."

In a few words, that covers the story of the international church advertising conference which will be held in Milwaukee during the annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, June 11 to 15. Attending this conference, and speaking on the program, will be ministers and laymen from all parts of the United States and Canada—men who have made church advertising pay well rounded, unshakable dividends.

Dr. Christian E. Reiser, of New York City, a widely known authority on church advertising, and chairman of the church advertising department of the advertising clubs, will preside at the conference, and will speak on "Why the Church Advertising Department of the Associated Advertising Clubs."

"The food will be the best, amusements clean, sports plentiful, swimming, boating and pleasure hikes and jaunts to surrounding lakes—a chance for the boy to shoulder responsibility, an opportunity to develop leadership, which will help him in business later on—all in all, a chance for a clean, wholesome summer vacation."

CANDY IS OLD AS PYRAMIDS

Pharaoh May Have Munched Bon-Bons While Decreeing Death of Infants.

HAD NO SUGAR THEN Honey was Used as Sweetener for Early Confections.

(By The Associated Press.)

Chicago, May 22.—Kipling has observed that "when Egypt loved the sphinx's visage, favoritism governed kisses;" now from the National Confectioners' association comes a statement which reveals another condition which obtained then "even as it does in this age." The statement, which announces the candy show and confectioners' conventions to be held here this week, incidentally calls up visions of Pharaoh munching bon-bons while decreeing the destruction of Hebrew infants. For it asserts that the Egyptians made candy as well as pyramids. It asserts further that the taskmasters who made their vassals make candy without sugar.

Naah Is Inventor.
"In fact," says the statement, "there are some who contend that Naah invented candy and that his sons were the first manufacturers of confectionery. Sugar and chocolate were unknown to the Egyptians. They used honey as their sweetener and flour and crude starch were the basis of their confectionery. The first notice of chocolate was when Columbus carried back to Spain samples of cocoa. Chocolate was popular among the women of Mexico in 1648. The first chocolate was sold in England in 1657 and in France in 1661. The French were the first to mould chocolate into hard tablets."

Work on Fruits.
"In the middle ages what we would call candied fruits were the principal confection. They were boiled in honey. As a business the druggist was the first candy maker and for two centuries candy was sold in drug-stores. Sugar at that time was considered a drug, and from eating drugs with sugar the pharmacist learned to eat nuts and other things. In the sixteenth century sugared roses were considered the best of confections. It was not until the seventeenth century that sugar became a big industry and it was in the latter part of the century that confectioners were recognized as a distinct class. The first chocolate machine was made in 1763. In the first half of the eighteenth century the first real candy factories appeared. It was about that time that lemon and peppermint drops became popular. Cocoa nut was first used for confectionery in the eighteenth century."
