Bobbitt Throws A Bouquet Or Two.

CRAB ORCHARD, Aug. 16th.—An elegant wedding in high life occurred in Stanford, at the home of the Methodist minister, Ross. The ceremony was most beautifully pronounced that made one the rich Southern widow (Mrs. Anne Austin) of Mobile, and the brilliant young law student, P. F. Kennedy, the gifted and youngest son of G. C. and Mrs. Jennie Kennedy. At first the friends of the groom thought that he was to be congratulated because of the bride's great wealth, but upon a more intimate acquaintance they found that the bride alone was a priceless jewel and peerless gem. This union of two souls with but a single thought; two hearts that beat as one, was most stubbornly resisted and opposed by different ones, male and female. The enemy contested ever inch of ground, burnt every blade of grass and the last entrenchment of opposition was their grave, and in game chicken parlance, there is now more than one dead cock in the pit. The battle on our side was most gallantly fought, the victory most gloriously won. A garland of glory now encircles the noble brow of the gallant groom and a diadem of delicate myrtle garlands the bride's lovely brow. The ablest lawyer (Col. Hill) that ever shone in the foremost ranks of the Kentucky bar, was a half century accumulating a $100,000 fortune, but P. F. Kennedy, by four months' study of law, ornamented with a few verses of choice poetry has duplicated his princely fortune in one short hour. What encouragement for the young to read under Bobbitt! Yesterday evening when the great diurnal luminary was almost ready to pillow his weary head upon the broad bosom of the West, the elegant rubber-tired buggy left the stately Kennedy mansion with the prospective bride and groom. They left as two, but returned as one, and the regal banquet was enjoyed in the Kennedy halls and is still going on with noisy revelry. I have given the student a well-earned vacation until Monday and then he will resume the serious reading of law. The writer was called upon, who quoted "Lord Ullin's Daughter," etc. He also said this case had been agitated, discussed and procrastinated till all had put on mother Hubbard and he hoped the bride, if not wearing one now, would appear at the breakfast table with a mother Hubbard gracefully wrapping her lovely form.

The bride wore so many different silks from China and lovely Cashmere shawls from Persia that I shall not attempt to describe her apparel; and as for Faulkner, all know that he is a perfect Apollo of manly beauty and half a hundred maidens were sighing for his love. May their future days be successful, glorious and prosperous is the sincere desire and earnest prayer of a true friend. FONTAINE FOX BOBBITT.

Pessimists, who declare that the world is growing worse and that there are no honest men, are cited to a case in Barren County. In 1857 W. W. Palmore loaned Martin Skaggs, of Edmonson county, $180. Skaggs was quite a young man and at the beginning of the Civil War enlisted. Palmore heard that Skaggs was killed and gave up his $180 as lost. The incident had passed out of his mind till a day or two ago Skaggs appeared at the home of Palmore and said he was ready to pay that note. Palmore didn't know him nor did he recall the loan. Skaggs insisted on paying it with 10 per cent. interest, but Palmore declined to accept more than 6 and that rate of interest was finally agreed on. The note with interest for 48 years amounted to $698 and it was paid. Skaggs' patronymic is not a very euphonious one, but it deserves to be written in letters of gold and pictures of silver.—Kentucky State Journal.

News of the death of Will W. White in Dallas, Tex., was a great shock to the parents and host of friends of the young man here in his old home. Last Saturday's Courier-Journal printed a fine double-column cut of our compositor, Miss Katharine Warren, showing very well she looks the typical Blue-Grass belle. All that have seen samples of her ability and speed in a printing office can attest to her fullest efficiency as a typesetter. Miss Warren has been with the Mountaineer several weeks and is popular with those in Somerset who have been fortunate enough to get acquainted with her. She comes to Somerset from Stanford and is of one of the old and well known families of Lincoln county, being a grand-daughter of Col. Silas Anderson, one of that county's wealthiest citizens. It is a secret not generally known that we are to lose her soon to a prominent young attorney here, but such is believed to be a fact.—Somerset Mountaineer.

A Warning to Mothers.

Too much care can not be used with small children during the hot weather of the Summer months to guard against bowel troubles. As a rule it is only necessary to give the child a dose of castor oil to correct any disorder of the bowels. Do not use any substitute, but give the old-fashioned castor oil, and see that it is fresh, as rancid oil nauseates and has a tendency to gripe. If this does not check the bowels give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and then a dose of castor oil, and the disease may be checked in its incipency and all danger avoided. The castor oil and this remedy should be procured at once and kept ready for instant use as soon as the first indication of any bowel trouble appears. This is the most successful treatment known and may be relied upon with implicit confidence even in cases of cholera infantum. For sale by all druggists.
