

M'Creary Announces Candidacy for Governor

Man Who Can Unite and Harmonize All Factions of Party And Win Easily in Final Election, to Make Aggressive Campaign for Non-inflation

EX-SENATOR JAMES B. M'CREARY.

Richmond, Ky., Aug. 4.—In answer to the call which has come to him from democrats in every section of the State to be their standard bearer in the next State election, and lead them in the effort to redeem the State from a republican administration, former Senator James B. M'Creary to-day formally announced himself an active candidate for the democratic nomination for Governor. Many reports have been current that he would make the race, but not until he was completely convinced that the party wanted him did Senator M'Creary finally determine to respond to the call which has come to him from democrats of all factions and all kinds from every part of the commonwealth.

With his heart completely enlisted in the cause of the harmonizing of all discordant elements in the party and leading a successful fight for rescue of the State from republicans, Senator M'Creary will wage a vigorous campaign for the nomination and will speak in every county in the State if necessary. His two years' retirement from the political arena has put him in fine fettle. He is vigorous and strong and will make an aggressive whirlwind campaign from now until the nomination is decided. His headquarters have been opened here and will be in charge of energetic and competent men. Senator M'Creary's formal announcement of his candidacy is as follows:

To the Democrats of Kentucky. I have received so many letters requesting me to announce that I am a candidate for Governor, and so many democrats have in person said to me that if I am nominated I will have the unanimous support of the democrats of Kentucky, and such a large number of newspapers have published editorials suggesting and endorsing me as the proper candidate for Governor, that I have decided to announce that I am a candidate for Governor, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

I believe the party which has honored me so often and to which I have belonged all my life, and whose principles I have ever advocated and upheld, is entitled to my best service whenever needed or demanded.

I have always been in favor of straight, pure democracy, law and order, honesty and economy in public administration and educational advancement, at my record and my efforts to serve the people faithfully and efficiently, I hope and believe, are well known to the people of Kentucky.

At the proper time I shall be pleased to make speeches in behalf of democratic principles and democratic government and democratic victory in every part of the state and in every county, if desired, and I will be grateful for the support of my brother democrats.

(Signed) JAMES B. M'CREARY, Richmond, Ky., Aug. 2, 1910.

That is almost coincident with history of the commonwealth for the last half century. A gallant confederate colonel of cavalry, speaker of the Kentucky legislature twice, six times in Congress from his district and once Governor—and his administration so popular and successful that he has since been known as the "model governor"—M'Creary has during his entire career proven himself eminently the man for every call his party and people have made upon him. And his friends over the State declare with emphasis that in this last great mission of reuniting the discordant and factional elements of the State democracy once more so that it shall present a solid front in the next State campaign, he will accomplish that which no other Kentuckian in sight can do, and prove himself grander than any service he has hitherto rendered his party.

Almost sixty of the country newspapers of the commonwealth of democratic faith, have said that he is the leader who can lead the democracy out of the wilderness, and are urging his nomination by the party. His candidacy, it is said by many, will undoubtedly be the last, that a confederate soldier will ever present to the people of Kentucky for such a distinguished position, for the reason that the "thin gray line" is fading fast and the time for "Taps" has come for the great majority.

SAVED FROM AWFUL PERIL.

"I never felt so near my grave," writes Lewis Chamblin, of Manchester, Ohio, R. R. No. 3 "as when a frightful cough and lung trouble pulled me down to 115 pounds in spite of many remedies and the best doctors. And that I am alive today is due solely to Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. Now I weigh 160 pounds and can work hard. It is so curative for coughs and colds, it's the most certain remedy for lagrippe, asthma, desperate lung trouble and all bronchial affections, 50c and $1. A trial bottle free. Guaranteed by G. L. Peany, druggist.

IMPROVEMENTS IN MAIL SERVICE

CONGRESSMAN HELM WORKING FOR BETTER FACILITIES TO PEOPLE OF LINCOLN.

Congressman Harvey Helm has just received notification from the Post-office Department that the two petitions he filed there for amendment of the rural route service in Lincoln county have been referred to the Chief Inspector. Mr. Helm has taken up the matter of connection of Rural Route No. 1 out of Stanford, with Waynesburg route No. 1, at a place near the intersection of Stanford and Ottenheim turnpikes. Should such connection be secured, the service between Stanford and the Southern end of the county would be greatly facilitated, and mail be delivered at Waynesburg almost twelve hours in advance of the time it now reaches there from here.

The other route amendment which the people affected desire is continuation of Route No. 2 out of Stanford, on the Danville pike on to the junction of the Danville, Stanford and Lancaster pikes. There are many who get their mail from Stanford along this pike who would be greatly benefited. Congressman Helm hopes to have the Inspector here very soon to go over the proposed changes, and believes as soon as the feasibility of the changes can be seen, they will be made.

Another improvement the popular Congressman is working on, is to have a mail clerk placed on the L. & N. train which reaches here from Louisville at 10:30 o'clock in the morning and goes on to Richmond and returns here at 2:40 in the afternoon. As the mail service now runs, letters from this section to Louisville and points between cannot leave here until the 5:45 train. Several hours would be gained by having a mail service on the earlier train and the change would prove a very popular one.

Congressman Helm is always on the lookout for improvements which will redound to the assistance and convenience of his constituents, and he intends to exert every effort to get these improvements through.

"The Mayor of Maywood"

WRITES INTERESTING LETTER FROM THAT SUMMER RESORT

Maywood, Ky., Aug. 4. Editor of the Interior Journal remembered friend—Enclosed find my check for $1 on my subscription to the I. J. I have been a subscriber to the Interior Journal for 27 years and Bro. Walton has often said I never was a week behind with my subscription and I see no reason why a person should be behind with his dues on subscription to your semi-weekly, as good a paper as ever was printed for a $1 a year, is a question that would puzzle Solomon in his day and generation. I have a comfortable home in Maywood, Ky., and the best neighbors that live on earth. My brother partner and special friend W. P. Stephenson is an exceptionally good man and neighbor, honest, energetic and as truthful as the days are long and his wife Mrs. Stephenson is truly a good woman, feeding the hungry and donating to calls of charity and religion.

All the folks of Maywood are bustling. The continued rains have injured our crops, however we are blessed with health. I have a pleasant home near the depot, which is elevated 200 feet above high water mark, where I get the pure air off the mountain tops that can be seen for miles around.

Mr. L. T. Smith drilled for me a well 39 feet deep and at 35 feet struck a stream of water as cold as the snows of Mt. Sinai and as pure as the icy gems that sparkle upon it in fact I have plenty to drink without cream of hops and red eye.

Should anything happen in this peaceful village, worthy of your cognizance, will let you know and should your foot steps wander to this summer resort, call and see me and I will treat you royally. Your old subscriber, Thos. C. Ball, Mayor of Maywood.

MAKING THE THIRTEENTH CENSUS

PULASKIAN TELLS SOME INTERESTING FACTS OF THE WORK TO I. J. READERS.

Leslie Anderson, a popular Pulaski county boy, who holds an important position in the census bureau at Washington, writes the I. J. some interesting facts on making the 13th census. He says:

To the average citizen who knows but little about the work of preparing the U. S. Census except to answer the questions asked him by the enumerators, the amount of work done by the census bureau at Washington before the facts and figures can be given to the public must be very vague and indefinite. The Census Bureau is under the control of the Department of Commerce and Labor, and employs at present about 3,000 clerks. The law passed by congress providing for the thirteenth census specifies that the work must be completed by June 30th 1912. So a large part of the present force have temporary appointments, and their services will be dispensed with on or before the date fixed by law. The first reduction of the force will occur next March, and thereafter from time to time as the needs of the work demand. There are as many or more women than men employed in the Census Bureau. There are some negro clerks here but their number is very small when compared with the number of white employees. The appointees come from all parts of the United States, but principally from the States east of the Mississippi. California sends only a few while Pennsylvania sends many. Fully three-fourths of these in the census bureau have been school teachers. Many of these have come to Washington only to work through the summer months during which time they can see all places of interest in the Capital City, and will return home in September. The first appointments were given to those making the highest grades in the examination, and this may explain why so many teachers are now employed here as clerks.

June 30th, 1912 may seem a long way off to the outsider for the completion of the present census, but if done not seem so far away to one who views it from the inside and knows of the work that is to be done. The enumeration returns from more than 59,000 enumerators in all parts of the United States must be gone over several times for errors and omissions, and thousands after thousands of letters for information must receive replies before the schedules are marked with final O. K. and passed on to the Chief Statistician. The work of the Census is divided into three divisions. The agriculture division has the work of correcting the farm schedules and of collecting all of the statistics to be obtained therefrom. The population division counts the people and gathers the data concerning the population of our country. In this division there is much work on what is known as card punching machines. After each schedule is fully corrected it goes to these machines where the operators reduce all the information about each person to a small card by punching certain symbols into the card. There must be one card for each person in the United States, and as the average operator can punch only about one thousand cards a day, this work alone will take 500 operators for the greater part of the twelve months. After one month's experience in operating the machines during which time they are expected to learn the details in full, each machine operator is placed on the piece-price basis and paid 25c and 25c per hundred, according to the machines they used, for the cards they punch. Each operator must stand the loss for each card punched wrong. This makes the work rather unpleasant and much objection has been made against the piece-price basis of pay.

I am in the Geographer division. While I have learned something of the work of the other divisions in a general way, have tried to familiarize myself of the work of this division in detail. Does it seem that geographers would be much needed in making the census? Nevertheless there are 60 clerks in this division and 30 of them are on the permanent force, and remain here from one census to the next. This division must see that all people living in an incorporated town are not enumerated as living in the country are not returned as being in an incorporated town. The greatest difficulty lies principally in the West where young towns are springing up rapidly and are being incorporated since the last census. If any city has changed its wards since the plans for
