"THE SILENT SUFFERERS"

In the sunny Old-World countries, the scene of the New World's play,
Where Beauty and Mirth abounded, stalk Famine and Death today.
There are charred and crumbling ruins where the cot and the castle stood,
And who shall delve in the furrows when the furrows are drenched in blood?

Gone are the fathers and husbands, pawns in War's ruthless game,
Gone the sons and the lovers; ah, sweet Christ, whose the blame?
Only the women, useless for strife or stratagem,
And the babes who cling to their garments are left. And what of them?

Smoke from a hundred battles sullies the autumn skies,
Greens of the maimed and starving, stench of the dead arise,
All the world in the conflict, no nation's heart to rue,
Or hand to help. O my brothers, shall America not stand true?

Not theirs the blame transcendent, theirs but the 'whelming loss,
Touch our hearts with thy pity, O Lord Christ on thy cross!
Crazed, and helpless, and hopeless. Bodies and hearts like ours,
Shall we not bend to their service all of our God-lent powers?

Give with the heart of the prairie wind, generous faring forth!
Give with the warmth of the Southland, give with the strength of the North!
Freedom and Peace and Plenty grace our land's diadem,
Look in your children's faces, and give as you would to them.
—Eleanor Duncan Wood in the Christian Herald.

THE MOUNTAIN JOURNAL DEVOTED TO HOME, FARM AND SCHOOL

Is the one Journal that should be in every home in the Mountains. It deals with just such matters as every man, woman or child should know. Look out for the next numbers. They will contain some articles that you cannot afford to miss. The November issue will contain the first installment of a continued article on "Love, Courtship, and Marriage" as experienced and observed in the Kentucky Mountains. If you want to laugh it will pay you to get it; if you want to think, you will have a chance; if you want to cry, the cause will be there.

There is also running through this Journal a series of articles on the study of Farm Animals that every farmer should read. Then there is the Trustee Department that every progressive school man or woman wants to see. There are many other articles that will help to scatter sunshine and good cheer wherever this Journal may go. Brother farmer, or fellow pedagogue, you cannot invest a dollar better than to send it to the editor, Prof. W. B. Ward, Paintsville, Ky., and become one of the great host of readers of this our own Mountain Journal, edited and run by Mountain Men and Women. Mr. Ward is spending his life in the interest of the girls and boys of Kentucky. He is not running this Journal for a money making scheme, or for any other purpose than to serve his people, but of course it takes some money to defray the expense of publication, and he is thoroughly confident that his fellow Kentuckians will cheerfully rally to his support as hundreds
