All But Four Are American Tourists On Way to London—Engine Jumps Track.

London, July 2.—The American line special from Plymouth, carrying forty-seven passengers, who had departed last night from the steamer New York, from New York June 23, was wrecked at Salisbury, eighty-three miles from London at 2 o'clock Sunday morning. Twenty-three passengers were killed and four trainmen.

The train had passed Salisbury station at high speed. On a sharp curve just beyond, the locomotive jumped the track and plowing the rails crashed into a westbound freight. The engine mounted the girders of the railway bridge over the river Avon and turned turtle.

There were three passenger coaches in the train. The first shot past the locomotive crashed into the railway bridge. The second and third car, toppled over and were completely destroyed.

Rescue parties were at work instantly but were of little purpose and the injured remained in the debris a long time.

The bodies extricated were laid in rows on the station platform awaiting identification.

All physicians in Salisbury were summoned and devoted themselves to the wounded.

Patriotic Service.

Patriotic services were held at the German Evangelical church by the pastor, the Rev. William Bourquin. In the morning his subject was, "Our Flag" and in the evening he chose "Our Country" as his topic. Each was a fine discourse and a large congregation was present at each service.
