ANOTHER SCANDAL
AMONG NOBILITY

Countess Indiscreetly Showed Her Jewels.

Given by a Croesus, Not Her Husband, and the Count Will Seek for His Release.

NO NAMES ARE VOUCHSAFED

Paris, Nov. 21.—The names of one of the most beautiful and aristocratic women in England, a countess, and one of the wealthiest private individuals in the world are linked in the latest scandal of British high society, which now is startling even jaded Paris. Although no names are mentioned publicly, nearly every one in Europe and America knows the powerful peer who is believed to be contemplating suit for divorce. Nearly every one also knows the Croesus whose name is connected with that of the peer's wife.

An English peer who has visited the United States is a brother of the countess with whom gossip is dealing at the moment. Lacking money, he sought to retrieve his fortunes by a method infinitely more risky than speculations on the bourse. He married not long ago a young woman whose figure, face and voice are much admired on the New York stage.

Diamonds Lead to Scandal.
The countess in the case indiscreetly wore diamonds worth $1,250,000, which had been given to her, at the annual ball of her husband's county, of which, of course, she was patroness. As the peer is not rich, it was impossible for his wife to buy such gems.

He questioned her. He angrily demanded an explanation. She was silent.

The multi-millionaire who may be a correspondent in this newest scandal has been a widower for several years, and draws a tremendous income from real estate in New York and investments in London. Both his children have married within recent years, and both matches, which have turned out most happily, apparently were made against his wishes. Never before has scandal attacked him.

Although he has been industriously courted and flattered, it seemed since his wife's death his love for a woman was buried in New York.

This Croesus, who has dabbled in politics and literature, has long made his residence outside of America. He owns a most noted mansion in England, full of historic memories.

The peer whose wife is concerned in the gossip takes his title from the name of a county in the north of England. For the last two years his wife has rented a country house near the millionaire's English residence, but lately she gave it up and now is living at a quiet watering place.

FAMOUS OLD HYMN.

Pathetic Origin of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

A pathetic and yet charming story is told of the origin of the well known hymn, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," which was written by Rev. John Fawcett, an English Baptist, who died in 1817, having spent nearly sixty years in the ministry.

It was in 1772, after a few years spent in pastoral work, that he was called to London to succeed the Rev. Dr. Gill. His farewell sermon had been preached near Moinsgate, in Yorkshire, six or seven wagons stood loaded with his furniture and books, and all was ready for departure.

But his loving people were heart-broken. Men, women and children gathered and clung about him and his fatally with sad and tearful faces. Finally, overwhelmed with the sorrow of those they were leaving, Dr. Fawcett and his wife sat down on one of the packing cases and gave way to grief.

"Oh, John," cried Mrs. Fawcett at last, "I cannot bear this! I know not how to go!"

"Nor I, either," returned the husband, "and we will not go. The wagons shall be unloaded and everything put in its old place."

His people were filled with intense joy and gratitude at this determination. Dr. Fawcett at once sent a letter to London explaining the case and then resolutely returned to his work on a salary of less than $200 a year. This hymn was written by Dr. Fawcett to commemorate the event.

Columbus and the Compass.

That Columbus was not, as is popularly supposed, the first to note the declination of the magnetic needle has recently been graphically demonstrated by the discovery of three sundials, dating from a time anterior to Columbus' first voyage, and bearing on the compasses accompanying them lines indicating the declination of the needle.—Exchange.

Congress Enters Into Contract With Bankers

Extension of System From La Paz to Arica on Pacific Coast—Will Cost $30,000,000.

WILL BE 780 MILES IN LENGTH

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 21.—The congress of Bolivia has ratified the contract made by the government with James Speyer & company, the New York bankers, for the construction of a system of railroads in that country, and construction work has already begun. The money to pay for them is in the bank, amounting to $10,000,000, which was paid by Brazil to her neighbor for relinquishing certain territorial and other rights. These railroads are of the greatest importance to the future development of Bolivia. One of them runs north-eastward from La Paz to the head of navigation on the Amazon river; another runs southeastward to connect with the Argentine railway system at the boundary between the two republics, and the third is to connect the principal cities of the country with each other. The Argentine Republic guarantees 5 per cent interest upon any bonds that may be issued to complete the line in its direction in order to draw the export products of Bolivia to tidewater through Argentine territory, and Chile is already building a railway from Arica, a port on the Pacific, to La Paz, the capital of Bolivia, which it agrees to maintain and operate for sixteen years. At the end of that period that portion of the road which lies within Bolivian territory is to become the property of Bolivia, and the remainder will continue to be the property of Chile.

The proposed system will include about 780 miles of road, and the estimated cost is $30,000,000. To begin with Bolivia has a working capital of $10,000,000 cash deposited in the banks of London and New York. When that is exhausted the remainder of the money necessary will be raised by an issue of bonds guaranteed by Chile and the Argentine Republic.

As everybody knows, Bolivia is a country of wonderful richness, but its resources have remained undeveloped for lack of transportation facilities. The proposed roads will not only enable the products of the gold, silver and copper mines to reach markets, but will make accessible the vast rubber forests that lie on the eastern slopes of the Andes. Rubber is very scarce. The demand is increasing very rapidly and the price is very high. Bolivia has rubber enough to supply the world for centuries if it could only be reached, and these roads will open up the forests.

Shoopang Salad a Fad.

Washington society has a new fad. It is the preparation of shoopang, or chrysanthemum salad, according to a recipe furnished by the Chinese minister. Chrysanthemum salad is "food for the gods;" the piece de resistance of oriental banquets and under the guidance of Sir Chentung Liang-Cheng, society misses and matrons are preparing the favorite dish of the gastronomers of the flowery kingdom. Here is the recipe for the mysterious dish:

Twenty-four selected hearts of the shoopang or Chinese chrysanthemum.
Twelve "fish wings," collops from the flanks of the moy wen, or sun-fish.
Two broiler chickens.
Four young pigeons.
Cutlets from three lobsters.

Bake the fish with flavoring of ki-long, a spice resembling saffron.
Broil the fowl with a flavoring of hood, another Chinese herb.
Then steam all ingredients together for three-quarters of an hour with a strong infusion of the woy flower and serve with garnishing of Chinese greens.

The woy flower may be omitted, as it is very pungent and not agreeable to some American palates, though highly prized by the Chinese.

Although called a salad the shoopang is a formidable dish, and in the proportions given is enough for eight persons. It is primarily intended for the principal course of a banquet. It is possible to prepare it in a chafing dish, but a Mongolian cook seems to be essential for a successful conception. Those who have tasted the salad pronounce it delicious. Many of the ingredients cannot be obtained outside of Chinatown, and the high prices of most of them place the dish beyond the reach of the ordinary household.—Record-Herald.

SCIENTIST SLAIN BY ANARCHIST
"Red" Kills Italian Savant and Talks of Wholesale Murder Plot.

Naples, Nov. 21.—An anarchist named Lagana, who returned here recently from Paterson, N. J., yesterday and stabbed and killed the famous zoologist, Giovanni Rossi, of the University of Naples, because Rossi in a recent lecture condemned anarchist crimes as barbarous. The murder has aroused general indignation, as the victim was held in high esteem. Lagana, after the crime, boasted that he was glad he committed the deed, and said if he were free he would begin again on other enemies of anarchy, all of whom already were condemned and would be killed at the earliest moment it was possible to carry out the plan arranged by the anarchist party.

It isn't what we want to know that worries us so much as what we would rather not know.

WOMAN SAVES EDITOR.
Interposes When Crowd Is Beating Newspaper Man at Walnut, Ill.

Sterling, Ill., Nov. 21.—The pluck of Mrs. Odell, mother of a reporter employed by Fred Tucker editor of the Mail and Express, of Walnut, saved Tucker from a beating that might have resulted in his death. Tucker in his paper had been waging war on the disorderly element in the town. Recently while on his way home from his office he was attacked and knocked down by a number of persons. At this moment Mrs. Odell rushed through the crowd and told the men that if they touched Tucker again it would be over her body. Others then interfered and Tucker was taken to the office of a physician and his wounds dressed. Twenty war-
