

DR. T. J. NEWELL DIES SUDDENLY AT BROWNSVILLE

Former Pastor of Broadway Methodist Church Succumbs to Heart Failure at Midnight—Was Apparently Well Until Supper Time.

HELD STEWARD'S MEETING.

The Rev. T. J. Newell, formerly pastor of the Broadway Methodist church, died suddenly last midnight in bed at his home at Brownsville, Tenn., where for a year he had been presiding elder.

His illness was only of a few hours. Yesterday afternoon he held a conference of the trustees and preachers of his district, and about supper time was seized with a chill. A physician was called and ordered him to bed, but no alarm was felt over his condition, as recently he had been in the best of health. About midnight Mrs. Newell noted his labored breathing, and got up to see him, but by the time a light was procured Dr. Newell had breathed his last.

He was about 55 years old, and was a native of Granada, Miss., where for a number of years he was president of the female college. He was married when a young man to Miss Sarah Turner, of Mississippi, who survives him. This is the first break in the family circle, which, besides the father and mother, consists of Mrs. Richard Dunlap, of Paris, Tenn.; Mrs. J. O. Walker, of Jackson, Tenn.; Mrs. Bowmar Sweeney, of Granada, Miss.; Miss Virginia Newell, of Paducah, and Miss Hattie Newell, of Paris, Tenn.; Mr. Plummer Newell, of Texas, and Masters Thomas and Edward Newell. Only Mrs. Newell and Edward Newell were at home when the end came. Miss Hattie Newell is teaching in Paris, Tenn., and Thomas Newell is at school at McKenzie, Tenn.

Miss Virginia Newell left on the early morning train, being accompanied as far as Fulton by Mr. Will Scott.

Dr. J. T. Blackard left this afternoon for Brownsville to attend the funeral, which will probably be tomorrow morning.

Distinguished Minister.
Dr. Newell had distinguished himself by highest competency in every relation to which his church had assigned him, and well could be called "an all around fine man." As president of the girls' college at Granada, Miss., he left a definite impression for good on all who came under his charge.

He was called from his work in the North Mississippi conference to the Memphis conference and the church at Paris, Tenn., at a time when a wise head and a strong hand were especially needed there. He served acceptably four years at Paris and went from there to Brownsville for another four year term. He was known as a "four-year man." In the conference, which term is high conference praise; but his one year at Dyersburg, where he went from Brownsville, was a departure from his procedure as the Broadway church in this city presented a situation sufficiently critical that year to cause the presiding bishop to lay the case before Dr. Newell and urge his acceptance of the charge.

The work at Broadway during the four years of his pastorate was exceptionally fine and thorough. While much of it was known to the public, a great deal only his official board and the faithful men and women who labored with him, knew; while only his family and his Master knew of the heavy burden of the church he carried on his heart. He received the indorsement each year of his official board with an earnest request to the bishop for his return. His report at the end of his four years was one of the finest ever carried up to the conference from the church.

Dr. Newell did not confine his interest to his own church. He ever stood for the highest good of the entire community. His fight against the distribution of obscene pictures in the schools and his efforts in behalf of Sunday closing are memorable.

He left a wide circle of friends in Paducah and the deepest respect of those who knew him even but slightly.

Went to Brownsville.

From Paducah Dr. Newell was sent as presiding elder to Brownsville, Tenn., district. His report at the recent session of the Memphis conference was one of the finest made. Dr. Newell held a high position in the conference and was chairman of the conference board of edu-

They had arranged the money in rolls so that it could be easily carried and were just about

PREFER RIVER WATER.

Temperance Loving Students of Missouri State School.

Cape Girardeau, Mo., Nov. 26.—A

picturesque procession of students from the state school today carried water in pitchers from the Mississippi river—and the pitcher could not go to the well too often to please these youthful temperance advocates. "Water, pure water," is the cry now in Cape Girardeau, and river water is preferred to any sort of beer, booze, or hotted cider.

In the old days nothing short of a drought would drive a citizen of Cape Girardeau to the river for a drink, but now that the stream is purified by the inflow of crystal drops from Lake Michigan, via the drainage canal, the natives drink it eagerly.

Former Promoter of Big Enterprises Locked in Jail Because He Has Neither Money Nor Friends Here.

Would Like to Stay at Palmer House, But Has Not Funds to Pay Expenses of Himself and Officer.

Without money and apparently friendless in a city in which he had spent money like a prince while promoting deals of large proportions, Peter Arlund is in custody of the county jailer, awaiting on a charge of obtaining fraudulently goods and money to the amount of $11.

Arlund was brought to Paducah from Louisville last night by Detective Sexton, of the Louisville department. He arrested Arlund at his hotel in the suburbs of Louisville yesterday on a warrant issued by Judge Cross at the instance of Joseph Desberger, the clothing merchant, who cashed two drafts drawn on Peter Arlund & company, Louisville, one in payment for goods bought by Arlund and one for which cash was given, both being returned by the Louisville bank marked "not found. No such company known." The checks were placed in the hands of Detective T. J. Moore and later a warrant issued by Judge Cross for Arlund's arrest.

When presented in police court this morning Arlund wore a fine suit of clothes and a fancy vest, but his unshaven face and swollen eyes indicated that he has spent sleepless nights. He requested that the case be continued until he could communicate with Louisville friends and secure money, which he says is on deposit there. He asked the judge to appoint an officer to go with him to the Palmer House and remain there until the trial, but it developed that he did not have the money to pay for the service of an officer and he was sent back to the county jail and the charge continued until Friday.

Before leaving the court room Arlund stated to a reporter that he was innocent of any attempt to defraud anyone, having given the drafts in good faith and would have paid them had they been presented by the Louisville bank for collection.

Mr. Charles Reed cashed two drafts for many times the sum of the Desberger drafts," he said, "at the same time they were given in September, and I paid the Reed draft when it was presented. Certainly, I would have taken care of the smaller draft if it had been presented.

The statement that Mr. Reed had cashed a draft for Arlund on the occasion of his trip here in September was born out by Mr. Reed, who stated that he supposed the draft was paid as it had never been returned.

Mr. Desberger, who preferred the charge against Arlund stated that the first draft was accepted in payment of a suit of clothes Arlund bought for a little boy who was with him. The second check was cashed by the clothing dealer a few days later.

A Noted Promoter.

Arlund at one time was a noted promoter, some of his first operations being in Paducah, where he promoted the Paducah iron furnace at Third and Norton streets, which ceased operations a few weeks after it began. Later he attempted to put on foot a deal to buy the New Century hotel at Dawson and turn it into a winter and summer resort, but the project failed. He came into notoriety recently by an encounter in a St. Louis hotel with Col. Moses Wetmore, the tobacco manufacturer. He was knocked down by Wetmore because of some remark about a lady.

Arlund's history in Paducah dates back ten or fifteen years ago when he was the proprietor of a drug store at Bardwell, where he settled after coming from his native home in Germany. Many Paducah wholesale merchants sold him goods then.

Jailer Baker allowed Arlund to stay with him in his office at the jail this morning, while he is waiting for a telephone call from Louisville friends.
