Favorite tonic is White's Cream Vermifuge, the cure for worms and all children's diseases. It not only kills the worms, but removes the mucous and slime in which they build their nests. Its action on the child is mild and leaves him in a healthy condition. CHINAMAN GETS HONOR.

Emperor William Confers Cross on Yuan Shih Kai.

Pekin, Dec. 7.—Emperor William through the German minister to China, has presented Yuan Shih Kai, one of the grand councilors, with the Grand Cross of the Order of Red Eagle. This distinction was conferred upon the Chinese statesman ostensibly on account of the conclusion between Germany and China of the agreement concerning the Tientsin-Ching-Kang railroad but it in reality marks the end of two years of successful diplomacy to conciliate the Chinese government and eradicate the bad impression left in China by the German military policy during the Boxer troubles.

DES PLAINES NAVIGABLE.

Governor Deeney Signs Bill to Out Power Company.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 7.—While en route to Flora today Governor Deeney signed a bill which declares the Des Plaines river navigable. Attorney General Stead will commence proceedings at once to oust the Economy Light and Power company from the river. It is likely that three actions will be brought. One will be on the ground that the state owns the bed of the Des Plaines river, because the title to meandered streams can be conveyed only to the meander line; the second on the ground that the Des Plaines is navigable and the company's dam is an obstruction. Third that the lease given the Economy company is invalid because the compensation is not adequate.

He was a veteran of the civil war, served in the Philippines and for the last two years he had been stationed at Seattle.

Women Who Wear Well.

It is astonishing how great a change a few years of married life often make in the appearance and disposition of many women. The freshness, the charm, the brilliancy vanish like the bloom from a peach which is rudely handled. The mairon is only a dim shadow, a faint echo of the charming maiden. There are two reasons for this change, ignorance and neglect. Few young women appreciate the shock to the system through the change which comes with marriage and motherhood. Many neglect to deal with the unpleasant pelvic drains and weaknesses which too often come with marriage and motherhood, not understanding that this secret drain is robbing the cheek of its freshness and the form of its fairness.

As surely as the general health suffers when there is derangement of the health of the delicate, womanly organs, so surely when these organs are established in health the face and form at once witness to the fact in renewed complexion. Nearly a million women have found health and happiness in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Ingredients on label—contains no alcohol or harmful habit-forming drugs. Made wholly of those native, American, medicinal roots most highly recommended by leading medical authorities of all the several schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments.

ISAAC JOHNSON

SUCCUMBS TO THE TERRIBLE INJURIES AT SHARP.

Well Known Saw Mill Man, Crushed Under Tree Last Week Near His Home.

Mr. Isaac Johnson, who was seriously injured by a falling tree last Tuesday near Sharp, died Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at his home. The injuries Mr. Johnson received were fatal but his death was hastened by pneumonia setting in as the result of a rib penetrating his lung. One leg was broken so that the bone protruded through the skin. Several ribs were crushed, his back hurt and internal injuries sustained. Mr. Johnson was 54 years old and is survived by his wife, three children, Miss Dora Johnson, Mrs. Mattie Roundtree and Mr. Thomas Johnson, and one brother, Mr. F. F. Johnson. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at his home. The burial was in Bethlehem cemetery.

ENGLISH WORK IN THE SCHOOLS.

No. 8 J. A. Carnagey.

The Daily Exercise.
Composition is an art acquired not by precept, but by use and habit. Pupils learn to write by writing. Hence five or ten minutes each day, or on several days of the week, should be devoted to writing.

The daily exercises should be worked up orally at first, and the spelling carefully studied. In the first two grades one or two sentences made with letter-cards or written with pencil or pen are sufficient. The child should be encouraged, however, to express his own thought. In the third grade, paragraph writing may begin. The paragraph should be short and simple at first, but grow in length and complexity higher in the grades. The child in the upper grammar grades, may, perhaps come to an understanding of the term "topic sentence."

There are many reasons for the choice of the daily paragraph, or short composition, in addition to the practice it affords. The paragraph is a complete unit, a miniature essay. It may embody any form of the sentence, whether grammatical or rhetorical. It may illustrate any of the forms of discourse, and is subject to the laws of discourse. By its use the child gains practical knowledge of every feature of literary invention. He has, also, the pleasure of being able to complete his exercise at one writing. He should, however, not be made conscious of all this. After the child has become at ease in this large expression, probably about the fifth grade, his attention should be called definitely to sentence construction.

There are few composition exercises which should not be worked up orally in a general way before the writing is begun. Even after this oral preparation the class should be given time for a second mental preparation, in which each member organizes the material to suit his individual needs.

The Occasional Long Composition.
About twice a month the child should prepare an essay of at least a page in length, in order that he may learn to discuss a subject somewhat fully and logically. For this a study of outlining is necessary. The material gathered in the daily practice may often furnish the subject-matter for this formal writing.

Outlining or plan making is an invaluable exercise in the arrangement of ideas. It will teach the pupil how to create a form out of a mass of material. This work must be so simple in the primary grades that the pupil scarcely realizes he has been following an outline when he tells about the plant as a whole in one paragraph and the various parts in other paragraphs. Gradually, however, he should learn to analyze a subject for himself, in order that his sentences and paragraphs may show a logical sequence. Walter Pater in his essay on "Style" emphasizes this necessity for conscious form. He says: "In literary, as well as in all other art, structure is all-important—that architectural conception of work which foresees the end in the beginning and never loses sight of it, and in every part is conscious of all the rest, till the last sentence does, but with undiminished vigor, unfold and justify the first."

In grammar grades the class should practice making outlines upon various subjects and several outlines upon the same subjects from different viewpoints. The analysis of models and examinations of the arrangement of the contents of various chapters and books will be valuable. The experienced writer often fills in the details of his plan as he proceeds, and sometimes modifies it, but he never writes without at least a mental outline of the important divisions of his subject and their relations. The child cannot learn to carry a mental analysis until after considerable practice. He should not, at any time, be compelled to write from an outline that has been worked out so fully in detail that all spontaneity is taken from his writing. By prac-

CONSUMPTION.

Its Cause and Suggested Means of Recovery.

Consumption is not always an inherited disease, and a large percentage of cases may be attributed to the following causes:

First, defective digestion. Second, imperfect nutrition as a result of the first. Third, the accumulation of morbid product in the lungs as the result of imperfect nutrition, and this in turn breaks down the function of respiration and consumption is an established disease.

The first step toward a cure is to restore the function of nutrition, and to this end nothing in the world excels Vinol. It is for this reason we want every person in Paducah, Ky., to know about our delicious cod liver preparation, Vinol, which is far superior to old-fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions because it is made by a scientific, extractive and concentrating process from fresh cods' livers, combining with peptonate of iron all the medicinal, healing, body building elements of cod liver oil, but no oil. In pulmonary diseases, it nourishes the body, increases vigor, checks the cough and often mitigates the disease. As a strength-creator for old people, delicate children, weak, run down persons, and after sickness, Vinol is unexcelled.

We ask Paducah people to try Vinol on our offer to return their money if it does not give satisfaction.—W. B. McPherson.

He can learn to make outlines that will fit his individual needs and thus become his servants.

Each teacher will have her devices for arousing attention, but her success will depend upon the measure of her own culture, her enthusiasm and her power to interest a class.

A teacher may stimulate her pupils, as well as increase her own power, by writing daily with them on the subjects assigned. They will be most anxious to hear what she has to say. The monograph on "The Conduct of Composition Work in Grammar Schools," by Clapp and Putnam, contains this excellent suggestion: "Let the teacher, if discouraged, ask the principal to come to her school, and assign a subject. Then let her sit at her desk and write on it, too, the principal to see it. What will be the result in her estimation of the work of her pupils?" The teacher who has had this training will see, all about her, material which may be used for composition work by her class. Lists of subjects from books may suggest to her lines of thought. Her power to discover subjects for herself will, however, be of far greater value to her, because in these subjects, she being interested, can interest her class.

Much may be done toward teaching unity and coherence in the entire composition by treating a single broad subject for several days. It will be well to draw the material for such work from history and geography, for here the matter can be treated in such a manner that violations of the two principles to be installed in the children's minds will be obvious even to their immature powers. The teacher should look to it that even in the preliminary lessons, where the necessary subject-matter is reviewed, no single topic is allowed to overshadow the general subject.

Why Snow is White.
The reason snow is white is that all the elementary colors are blended together in the radiance that is thrown off from the surface of the crystals, which may be examined in such a way as to detect these colors before they are mingled together to give the eye the impression of whiteness.

The whiteness of the snow is in some degree referable to the quantity of air which is left among the frozen particles. Considerably more than a thousand distinct forms of
