Daily Thought.

Life is a movement outward, an unfolding, a development.—Elbert Hubbard.

The Weather.

Cloudy and unsettled with occasional showers tonight and Tuesday. Colder tonight.

THE SENATORIAL RACE.

Some appear to take it for granted that Senator J. S. C. Blackburn will walk away with the democratic nomination for United States senator next January. The appearance on the scene of Judge Paynter, backed by the state machine, means that Senator Blackburn will get a run for his money, even if he does not get left. The fight will finally narrow down to a conflict between the machine crowd and the "antis."

Another thing, there is no reason that a legislator may not change his mind when he reaches Frankfort. With a bitter fight over six years at Washington at a fat salary, there will likely be something else change up there at Frankfort besides people's minds, before the fight is settled.

It is by no means certain that a democrat will land the next senatorship, for the republicans may elect enough to have something to say themselves. But if the democrats do control the legislature, it will be of interest to see the fight between the machine and the "antis."

The Louisville Herald says significantly:

"The announcement by the Hon. Thomas H. Paynter of his candidacy for the senate against Senator Blackburn is made in excellent temper and taste. He is the great undefeated. He had the late Senator Goebel as an opponent once and took that scalp into camp with the others. It ought to be easy to lead Blackburn, who has been defeated, and is out of joint with the times in his own party and everything else."

OPINIONS ALWAYS DIFFER. After all, it is usually in how people look at things. Up in Louisville they have the saloons as wide open on Sunday as on any other day,—front doors and all.

The Louisville Herald is considered the only moral, reform paper in Louisville, except the Post, and yet the Herald is for Sunday opening,—at least, partial opening on Sunday.

It says: "Governor Folk, of Missouri, is going to try District Attorney Jerome's idea of finding out what is the matter with the laws, and whether there are certain laws that ought to be repealed or altered. He has issued instructions to enforce "every law on the statute books," and has ordered the authorities to rigidly enforce the Sunday laws concerning the closing of saloons and beer gardens, and all other laws that are disregarded by tacit consent.

"It is Jerome's idea that certain laws, like Sunday closing by saloons, are not really demanded by public sentiment, and that their presence on the statute books merely gives the corrupt police authorities a lever to pry blackmail out of all saloons that keep open against that law. If there was no dead-letter law the police could not enforce the blackmail. He argues that the saloonkeeper is entitled to protection against the blackmailer. To stop this he has offered a law permitting saloons to open at certain hours on Sunday. If that is adopted an enormous supply of blackmail will disappear.

"Governor Folk is beginning the application of his idea early in his administration. It will make him immensely unpopular, but if it results in the passage of laws that people really want enacted and enforced, there will be a reaction before his term expires. It is an experiment to be watched with interest. There ought to be laws that will give the saloonkeeper some rights on Sunday. There is a great popular demand for open saloons at some hours on Sunday, and it is absurd to ignore the plain tendencies and demands of the people. Saloonkeepers of the better kind favor liberal and fair regulation of their business, and they ask in return protection against oppression."

Complaint is loud over the habit some one in the employ of the city has in driving the "smallpox" wagon through the most public places. This wagon, it is alleged, is driven straight out Broadway whenever possible, then down Ninth street, and through other thickly populated places. It is dangerous to the people living in the localities through which it passes, and even if it is not, they don't like it, and think the city should have the smallpox vehicle always take the shortest cut from where it gets a patient to the outlying districts, and thus go to the pest house. The general public is getting very much disgusted with the manner in which the city handles things affecting the public health.

The Missouri legislature elected a republican senator on the last day, and Mayor William Warner captured the plum. He is a good republican, and Missouri is to be congratulated on being redeemed in the eleventh hour, when chances seemed so slim of choosing a senator.

Held to Await Trial.

Fred Edmonds, the youth arrested here Saturday for grand larceny at Cairo, seems to be a pretty bad sort. He entered the home of Miss Margaret Fitzgerald, at Cairo, it is alleged, and took $50 in cash and a watch and chain from her trunk. He was seen to enter the house and when the property was missed was soon suspected. He was found on West Kentucky avenue in Paducah and spent the money. He comes of a good family but is said to be so depraved that repeated leniency has only made him worse. He was sent to jail at Cairo to await trial.

Practical Lessons in Banking No. 7.

The only way to keep from spending money is to put it where you can't get it. At least where you can't get it without some trouble.

The reason young men spend more money than they probably should, and do not save as much as they might, is because they attempt to make their pockets perform the functions of a bank. To have money on hand always will almost invariably result in spending more money than is necessary.

If the young man with a fairly good income opened an account with this bank, and deposit his salary here, then pay his bills with checks, he would soon find a surplus to his credit. Its having money on hand that makes such a temptation to spend. Once the account is started his interest in it would prevent him spending money recklessly.

THE REUNION

Camp James Walbert, Confederate Veterans, will hold its regular meeting tomorrow evening at the city hall, and among other things will discuss the advisability of inviting the Second Brigade here this October for another reunion, such as it had here two years ago.

The probabilities are for a large crowd to the Confederate reunion at Louisville this summer, but no definite arrangements have yet been made.

In regard to restoring flags in battle to the states that own them, Adj. J. V. Greif said today that no flags would be returned to the two regiments from this section, as they had none captured during the war.

IN THE CHURCHES

TWO WEEKS REVIVAL BEGAN AT FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

Other Rabbis to Come Soon Before Pastor is Called—News of Other Churches.

Rev. W. H. Pinkerton began a two-weeks' revival at the First Christian yesterday with every prospect of a most successful meeting. Large crowds were in attendance at both services, especially was the night audience an unusually fine one.

Mr. Pinkerton will be assisted by Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Kendall, of Columbus, Indiana, with whom he was recently in a 3-weeks meeting at Kenton, Ohio, that was attended by large results. Mr. Pinkerton will do the preaching, and Mr. Kendall has charge of the opening song and praise service especially. He has a fine stereopticon and will hold an illustrated song service each evening.

Mr. Pinkerton preached two strong sermons yesterday. In the morning the subject was, "The First Protracted Meeting," and at night, "The Supremacy of Christianity," was his theme. Mr. Kendall's song service was a feature of interest.

There will be services each night, but there will be no day service, for the present at least.

The board of trustees of Temple Israel have invited several Rabbis to come to Paducah and preach on trial and within the next month will probably call a minister to the church.

Rabbi Raisen, of Mississippi, has already preached and another from Omaha has been invited and will come in a few days. The board will invite probably as many as four or five and after all have been heard, call a meeting of the congregation to make a call.

At the Broadway Methodist Sunday school yesterday there was a test count of the boys and girls to see which had the strongest representation, and it resulted in a tie of 120 each.

Rev. G. M. McNeilly, of Russellville, Ky., filled the pulpit of the First Baptist church yesterday. Mr. McNeilly formerly lived in Paducah, and has many friends here to welcome his return to the city.

During Lent Rev. D. C. Wright, of Grace Episcopal church gives his Bible class lectures in the church at 4:30 p. m. instead of 3:30 as before. He will lecture on the Psalms. The attendance is quite large, many of the public school teachers being able to come by the change in hour.
