ACTOR E. J. MORGAN DIES SUDDENLY

Had Been in Ill Health for Several Weeks.

Was a Young Star of Much Ability and Promise, and Was Widely Popular.

IN PADUCAH TWO SEASONS AGO.

New York, March 12.—Edward J. Morgan, the actor, died Saturday at the Hotel Bellevue in this city. Mr. Morgan arrived at the hotel on Monday. He was found dead in his room Saturday.

Mr. Morgan's death was the result of heart failure.

Mr. Morgan's last appearance in New York was in a dramatization of Hall Caine's "Prodigal Son," which closed its season about the first of the year. From that time reports of his failing health have been heard and it was said at one time that he had lost his mind and was kept in a sanitarium.

About a month ago he was able to go to Chicago to join his wife, Helen Bertram, comic opera singer, who was filling an engagement in that city. Upon his return to New York, however, his health began rapidly to fail.

During his appearance as John Storm in "The Christian" and later in "The Eternal City," he became very popular. He was striking in appearance, tall, dark and handsome. He leaves, besides his wife, a little daughter.

Mr. Morgan was a morose, moody sort of a fellow, but was always admired for his exceptional ability. For several years he had been addicted to the opium habit which had undermined his health.

His first wife was Adelaide Cushman, grandniece of Charlotte Cushman, from whom he was divorced in Chicago in June, 1901. For some time thereafter the troubles of the two continued to appear in the courts. A year later Morgan appealed to the superior court of Cook county, Ill., for protection from his young wife, to whom he was paying alimony of $25 per week. He charged that his wife followed him about in New York, threatened him, and abused him, before his friends in many ways and interfered with his private life and business affairs.

In 1903 Morgan was married to Helen Bertram, a comic opera singer, who already had had two husbands. Her first husband was Sig. Tomassi, the musical director, who obtained a divorce and committed suicide. Her second husband, E. J. Henley, lost his power of speech after a short married life with Miss Bertram, and then became partly blind.

Wife Faints on Hearing News.
Galesburg, Ill. March 12.—Helen Bertram, leading woman of "The Gingerbread Man" company, which is playing here, fainted at the telephone in her hotel when informed of the death of her husband, Edward J. Morgan, the actor. She remained unconscious for more than an hour.

Morgan Known Here.
Edward J. Morgan was known in Paducah. Two seasons ago he appeared in "The Eternal City" at the Kentucky theatre, and won many admirers.

Headaches and Neuralgia From Colds

Tom Johnson is Satisfied.
Cleveland, O., Mar. 12.—Mayor Johnson has been suggested as a vice-presidential candidate on the democratic ticket in 1908, since his election as a national committeeman from Ohio, but puts the talk aside, saying he would rather be mayor of Cleveland than vice-president, and that the suggestion comes from unfriendly sources.

Theatrical Notes

Robin Hood Tonight.
The well known comic opera, "Robin Hood," which is here tonight, was presented no less than two thousand times while The Bostonians were on tour during a period of over twenty years. This is remarkable when one considers that they had used a repertoire of dozens of operas. "Robin Hood" throughout the life of the organization known as The Bostonians, always maintained its record as the most popular opera in their repertoire as well as playing to the most phenomenal receipts.

This season's tour of "Robin Hood" under the direction of The Aborn Production Co. has proven no exception to this rule, as the opera is playing to capacity houses nightly. "Robin Hood" should crowd the local playhouse to the doors tonight.

Robin Hood Takes Cairo by Storm.

The Robin Hood opera company arrived yesterday morning from Cairo, where it made a hit at two performances Saturday. It is a large company, and the members are distributed at the various hotels of the city. The Cairo Telegram says of its presentation there Saturday: "The company is a large one, well costumed and good looking. But the Aborn company is not traveling on its good looks or reputation. There are real good singers in the cast and chorus and the matinee proved a real musical treat to those who were fortunate enough to be there. "The parts are all in most capable hands and the chorus is one of the strongest and best appearing of the many that have graced the Cairo stage this year."

Concerning Eva Tanguay.

During the two hours and a half it takes to play "The Sambo Girl" Eva Tanguay is a particularly busy woman, as she has 12 changes of costume to make in that time. A special temporary dressing room is always erected on the stage for her use, as some of the changes have to be made in such a short space of time that it is absolutely necessary to save the half minutes lost in going to and from the regular dressing room. At The Kentucky on Saturday night.

The Eagles' Minstrel

The first full rehearsal of the Eagles' minstrels was held at The Kentucky yesterday afternoon. The orchestra and all end men and ballad singers were present and the rehearsal was a success.

From indications the minstrels will be by far the best local talent minstrels ever given here. The talent is the best and the greatest variety of specialties by local talent programmed for the afterpiece. There will be another full rehearsal on Tuesday night preceding the regular performance. The lodge intends to give a street parade the same as regular minstrels on the day of the show.

Earthquake in India.

Lahore, India, Mar. 12.—An earth quake occurred at Simla and it is stated many buildings were demolished, eight persons killed and twenty-six injured.

The life of a loafer is not worth living.

Backache, "The Blues"

Both Symptoms of Organic Derangement in Women—Thousands of Sufferers Find Relief.

How often do we hear women say: "It seems as though my back would break," or "Don't speak to me, I am all out of sorts?" These significant remarks prove that the system requires attention.

Backache and "the blues" are direct symptoms of an inward trouble which will sooner or later declare itself. It may be caused by diseased kidneys or some derangement of the organs. Nature requires assistance and at once, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound instantly asserts its curative powers in all those peculiar ailments of women. It has been the standby of intelligent American women for twenty years, and the best judges agree that it is the most universally successful remedy for woman's ills known to medicine.

Read the convincing testimonials of Mrs. Holmes and Mrs. Cotrely.

Mrs. J. C. Holmes, of Larimore, North Dakota, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:— "I have suffered everything with backache and female trouble—I let the trouble run on until my system was in such a condition that I was unable to be about, and then it was I commenced to use Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. If I had only known how much suffering I would have saved I should have taken it months sooner—for a few weeks' treatment made me well and strong. My backaches and headaches are all gone and I suffer no pain at my monthly periods, whereas before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered intense pain."

Mrs. Emma Cotrely, 109 East 12th Street, New York City, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:— "I feel it my duty to tell all suffering women of the relief I have found in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

The Highest Salaried Baseball Players Who Adorn the Diamond of Today.

Who is the highest salaried baseball player in the world? That is the interesting question that has arisen since the report was sent out recently from Cleveland to the effect that Lawrence Lajoie had signed a contract for next season at a salary known to exceed that of any player in the National or American leagues. Just how much Lajoie draws down under his contract is not known, but it is about $7,500 a season, which is within $2,500 of what the president of the largest bank in Germany gets a year, and is more than many American bankers receive for an entire year.

But the Cleveland claim that Lajoie's salary is "the biggest" is denied in other cities. Without furnishing figures to substantiate their assertions, Pittsburg declares that Fred Clarke receives a higher salary than that called for in Lajoie's contract, while the New York Nationals maintain that John McGraw, the scrappy one, is better paid than the Cleveland Frenchman and the New York Americans would have the fans believe that Willie Keeler is paid close around $8,000 per season.

There are other names famous in baseball annals to conjure with, and it is declared by their partisans that they also draw such princely stipends that they hesitate to make the figures public for fear of exciting national envy. Certain it is that Jimmy Collins gets his in large bunches and so likewise does Christy Mathewson and Hans Wagner, not to mention several others.

That these baseball stars are worth the money paid them is shown in two ways—first, in their playing and managerial ability; and, second, which is the "meat in the egg" to the managers, their great drawing power. Think of the effect the announcement that Mathewson is to pitch has upon the fans whose money supports the game, how they fill the cars leading to the park, almost fighting for the best seats. Then compare the lack of interest in the same fans when it is said that John Doe, from the Buses, is to do the twirling.

The names of the great baseball stars are valuable drawing cards. Just as the name of Mansfield raises the price in theaters where he is to appear, so the name of Roosevelt shines out over that of Parker, of Nelson over Brit. They are the fellows who have "made good" who are at the top. Therefore they are entitled to the top price in the salary line.
