

The Advantages of Being A Country Boy.

By John Wamamker, President David Starr Jordan, of Leland Stanford, Jr. University; President Charles F. Twing, of Western Reserve University; Bishop Boyd Vincent, Late Governor Mount, of Indiana, and Jessie A. Fowler.

FACE TO FACE WITH NATURE
Rt. Rev. Boyd Vincent, P. E. Bishop So. Ohio.

The dweller in the country is brought more constantly face to face with God in nature than the dweller in town can ever be. "In the cities," said Sydney Smith, "all is man's work apparently—we see only Caesar and his power. In the country God's hand is seen oftener, and closer too." The townsmen's business leads him to deal chiefly with secondary causes. His own human shrewdness and skill are the things he constantly depends on for success; so that he comes finally to feel as if all his own comfort and happiness depended on himself. In the markets and in the office, he handles by the wholesale all the great natural food products, clothing and the materials of wood and stone out of which houses are built. They all mean to him only so many thousands of dollars. In his business mind and processes God is left out of the account altogether. Of course, if we were to stop and think back a little, he would see that he could not put even a bite of bread into his own mouth unless God had first caused the seed to spring and the wheat and corn to grow. He couldn't put a coat on his back or that of his children if God had not first created the sheep with the wool on its back. He couldn't put shoes on his feet except for the hide of the cattle nor build his house unless God had first provided the forest and the stone quarries. So with all the philosophies and sciences with which the city dweller is so much occupied.

NATURAL LIFE MEANS HEALTH
By Jessie A. Fowler, Scientist, New York.

The country boy has a much better chance to make his way, in the world if he is brought up surrounded by the country fields, the woolly glens and the riverside. He has a chance, and a better chance, than the city boy to develop his lung powers, and his circulation is increased, his sleep is sounder, his opportunities to live a natural life are greater, and he is not surrounded by the same temptations that multiply about the city lad.

He is brought up largely upon eggs, milk, grains, fruit and vegetables, and consequently has a much better physique and a more enduring constitution, and more robust health to start the battle of life than the city lad. The latter is surrounded by evening excitement, late hours, social entertainments, evening studies and irregular and unsteady sleep. The atmosphere is often too hot or too cold for health, and generally less pure than that enjoyed by the country lad. The diet of the city boy is largely made up of highly seasoned and rich food, of meats that are stimulating, of sweets that are clogging to the system, and often stimulants in the form of tea, coffee, and unfortunately beer and wine are added to the list, while in a social way the city lad is allowed to smoke, and sees the example set him by hundreds of other lads who contract the same habit. Thus, taking him all in all, the country lad has a better start in life than the city lad, although on first examination of the subject one would think that the city lad had more opportunities to develop his intellect. Even if this is the case, he has not such a fine preparation for a physical standpoint as his brother in the country. By using the brain too early in life we simply unfit it for its grand performance of mental duties in after life. There must, therefore, be a proper preparation for the years of intense mental labor that are to follow, hence the physical constitution calls for and demands healthy surroundings to start with.

The farmer's Sunday, if he is a religious man at all, is a better Sunday than the city man's. It is more completely the Lord's day. In the city even on Sunday, the business houses, if they are not open, are still forever before your eyes, suggesting man's business and not "the Father's business." Streets are crowded with people; street cars and railroad trains are running; saloons and theaters and dance halls and billiard halls are wide open; baseball or football games, horse races and prize fights go on; men must have their Sunday business letters. No wonder the city man has to fight hard to keep his religion, and, above all, the Lord's day, as he ought to. But the farmer, even the most worldly, seldom thinks of working on Sunday, after the neces-

BECKHAM TURNS DOWN ONE PARDON
Lincoln, Neb., March 1.—The state penitentiary building, except one wing, was destroyed by fire this morning early. The buildings were almost new. The loss is $300,000. The state militia is guarding the convicts in a stockade. It was a most exciting fire, a dash for liberty of the convicts being momentarily expected for some time.

Major G. W. Saunders is now in full charge of the deputy United States marshal's office at this place. He will return to Mayfield tonight or in the morning, and be back again Monday.

Mr. Richard Moran, formerly superintendent of the Illinois Central here, and who recently resigned as superintendent of the Memphis terminal of the same road, has accepted a position as superintendent of the Gulf and Ship Island road, with headquarters at Gulf Point, Miss. He entered into his new duties today.

Trainmaster J. J. Flynn said goodbye to his friends and left last night for Memphis, to enter into his duties as trainmaster of that division. He will not move his family from Paducah, and his many friends hope that his promotion will not prevent his often coming to Paducah.

Trainmaster T. A. Eanks left last night for his first trip over his division.
