

DAN LUCEY'S PLEA

He Says He Is Not Guilty of the Offense With

WHICH HE IS CHARGED

His Trial Set For June 26--Alleged Cabin Looters on Trial--Tom Higgins Cut.

In Judge Clancy's court this morning Dan Lucey pleaded not guilty to a charge of having murdered Patrick L. Regan in Silver Bow canyon last September and his case was set for trial on the 26th of this month. It is expected that the trial will consume two or three days. After it is over the judge will discharge his jury and not call another until about the 5th of August.

The trial of the case of the state against Peter Normandie and Elmer Ensminger, charged with the larceny of some articles of value from the cabin of J. G. Mudd on the Big Hole river on the 26th of March, was commenced in department 2 of the district court this morning. Although jointly informed against, the defendants were given separate runs for their liberty, Ensminger being started first with the understanding that the result in his case would determine the course of the other. The jury comprised George M. Allen, James Morris, Charles Anderson, James Naughten, Ernest Rodgers, George Holbrook, Dudley C. Smith, W. P. Griffith, John Riley, W. E. Schweinfest, Dan Cameron and R. W. Whitman.

In presenting the case to the jury the county attorney said he expected to prove that prior to the robbery Ensminger had worked for Mudd, and Normandie for another rancher named Osborne, who lived a short distance from Mudd's place; that Mudd went away with the expectation of being gone ten days, but before starting had paid Ensminger his wages and locked the house to the outside world; that during his absence Ensminger made a proposition to Normandie to rob Mudd's house and both were afterwards seen going toward the Mudd ranch; that afterwards they were seen with a rifle and some other goods belonging to Mudd.

When the case was ready for the submission of testimony the attorney for the defense objected to further proceedings on the ground that the information charged two offenses, stealing and burglary, which was not in conformity with the statutes of Montana.

In deciding the matter the judge said the statutes of Missouri permitted such a thing and he would overrule the motion; and over it went.

Mr. Mudd testified that his place was 65 miles from Butte and Ensminger had worked for him about two weeks. He enumerated the articles taken from the house--they consisted of a Winchester rifle, a 45-calibre revolver, some blankets, groceries, quilts and snow shoes--and then related the substance of a talk he had with Ensminger while the latter was in jail at Anaconda a few days after the robbery. During the conversation Ensminger had admitted to him that he was "in for it," and told where some of the goods taken could be found. He had not, he said, promised to drop the prosecution on condition that the defendant would disclose the whereabouts of the goods. Asked on cross-examination if he had not told the prisoner's mother he would drop it on the conditions stated, the witness answered that he had never seen his mother.

The Winchester was offered in evidence and identified by Mudd as the one that had been taken from his cabin. The stenographer marked it as an exhibit and at the request of the judge turned it over to the clerk, the mysterious disappearance of Nicholson's gun from the court room after a trial a few days ago suggesting the precaution.

Martin Ferrick was arrested during the night on a charge of having assaulted Tom Higgins in North Wyoming street. He is now in the county jail. Word was brought down today to the effect that Higgins was in a precarious condition, as Ferrick had used a razor or other short instrument on him. Ferrick denies having even assaulted Higgins. He says that yesterday afternoon he went out to Columbia Gardens and returned last night. On his way home he struck a pane of glass in the window of Higgins' house and knocked it out. Higgins saw him do it and told him he might as well break the other window, too, while he was about it, and Ferrick promptly smashed it. "That's all there was to it," said Ferrick.

A Mrs. Rodgers called on the county attorney today and asked him to take some action that would compel her husband to assist in the support of herself and children. She said she had arrived from Scranton, Pa., only three weeks ago; that her husband and one of her sons had been here some time and the only help she had received for the family, (consisting of nine children and herself) since her arrival was what the boy had provided. He, however, was out of work at present. She further said her husband was going by the name of James Sloan, but his true name was Matthew Rodgers.

As there is no law covering the point involved the attorney could do nothing for her.

Bicyclist Dropped Dead.

Joseph Grady, an employe of the Standard Carriage works, fell from his bicycle, near the corner of West Park and Crystal streets about 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. As he did not rise several persons immediately rushed to his assistance and he was removed to Campana's store, and Dr. Wells sent for. Before the physician arrived the unfortunate young man expired without regaining consciousness. Dr. Wells made a superficial examination, and said the cause of death was probably heart failure. The grade of the street at the place where the man fell is steep and the extra exertion necessary to propel proved too much for a heart naturally weak. Coroner Julien was notified and will hold an inquest on the remains at Sherman's undertaking rooms this evening.

Frank Grady, proprietor of the Standard Carriage works, and a brother of the dead man, says the deceased was a native of Chesterfield, Ontario, was 27 years of age, unmarried, and had been a resident of Butte for three years. He was not strong but Mr. Grady did not know of the existence of any heart trouble.

POLICE MATTERS

Nash Was Jostled About His Spanish Sombrero.

MCCARTHY'S FAST RIDE

Was Expensive--An Abbreviated Costume Caused An Arrest--A Penitent Celebrator.

John W. Nash's sombrero was the cause of an altercation on East Park street last evening. It is a beautiful hat, the kind that is the pride of the Mexican buccaro who rides the cattle ranges of New Mexico, and Mr. Nash only wears it on special occasions, such as yesterday. He met Mike O'Malley in front of the Owsley building. Mike was celebrating the 21st birthday of the Miners' union, and proceeded to josh Nash about his sombrero.

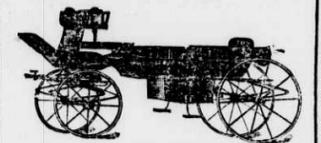

"That's a purty lookin' Katie fur an Amerikin citizen to wear," said he, "I wouldn't be caught at a dawg foight wid it on me head."

And Nash smashed him with an umbrella and was arrested. In police court this morning he was charged with assault to which he entered a plea of "not guilty, self defense," and the case was continued until Tuesday afternoon, when he will tell his version of the episode.

Patrick McCarthy also celebrated yesterday, and as a final to a day of fun he helped himself to a horse and buggy that he found in front of the Olympia Brewery, in South Butte and drove up town. When he reached Park street the thoroughfare was crowded and he drove his horse west on the run, creating a panic among the pedestrians. Detectives Murphy and Ray happened along about this time and jumping into a buggy started in pursuit. In front of the Parochial school McCarthy ran over a man, knocking him down, and seeing that the officers were gaining on him jumped out of the buggy and ran down an alley. The officers were compelled to fire several shots before McCarthy would stop. He pleaded guilty this morning, and was dismissed with a $20 fine and a lecture.

Minnie Bruso, a Galena street woman, was in police court this morning, charged against her being that of conducting a house of prostitution. After a long tirade against the officer who arrested her she pleaded guilty and was fined $5. She exposed the charms of her person, unnecessarily yesterday, and the police propose that the attire of the demimonde shall be within the bounds of semi-properly.

O. F. McKenlie was charged with creating a disturbance in the Free Coinage lodging house. "I suppose I got a litle full yesterday, judge," said he, "but I have had a heap of hard luck during the past few years, and I have a large family to support."

Judge Sullivan sagely remarked that drinking whisky was a hard way to support a family.

"Yes it is your honor, but if you will let me go this time I will behave myself in the future."

He was discharged.

FOR AFTERNOON OR EVENING. If Your Dress Allowance Is Very Limited This Is What You Should Have.

It is fortunate for the woman who has only a small sum to spend for summer gowns that one dress can be made to answer two or three purposes. After all Mother Fashion is not as heartless as she is represented, and where, seemingly, she is severe in one direction she makes up for her rigidity in another in a most gracious manner.

A DEMURE DESIGN IN PALE GRAY.

A woman with only a small amount of money to expend upon summer toilettes could not possibly afford to have more than one gown of this description; yet she can make it answer two purposes.

The waist has a vest and detachable yoke of the gray chiffon embroidered in polka dots of a darker shade of the same color. The yoke can be removed for evening wear and the gown, still smart and beautiful, is suddenly transformed into a full dress toilette. Over the vest is worn a shirred bolero in gray chiffon, which fastens invisibly at the front.

The sleeves reach to the elbows, where they are met by long gloves. Embroidery over silk is used to develop the overskirt which falls gracefully over an accordion plaited underskirt of polka dotted chiffon also lined with gray silk. The belt and collar are of gray silk caught at the back with a small jeweled ornament.

A satin chipped straw picture hat is worn with the gown in its service as an afternoon toilette, trimmed with figured silk and velvet leaves.
