PIONEER IS SUMMONED ACROSS GREAT DIVIDE

David C. Irvine, Resident of Deer Lodge Valley 51 Years, is Dead.

Deer Lodge, Jan. 2.—David C. Irvine, one of the pioneers of Deer Lodge, died Sunday after an illness of three months. Mr. Irvine was 72 years of age. He was confined in St. Joseph's hospital until a short time ago, when he was removed to an out-of-town institution, where death took place. Mr. Irvine had resided continuously in the Deer Lodge valley for the past 51 years. He was born at Richmond, Ky., in 1844, and came to Montana at the age of 20, first settling in Alder Gulch and the following year locating, together with other members of his family, on Race Track creek, about eight miles south of Deer Lodge. Later he took up a homestead about a mile from the city and lived there for a great many years. He was one of the best known of the old pioneers and had many friends throughout the county. He is survived by a brother, Thomas C. Irvine of Phillipsburg, and a sister, Mrs. O. E. O'Bannon of Berkeley, Cal. Funeral services were held at the Christian church this afternoon.

PICTURE FILM CAUSE OF FIRE IN PRISON

Deer Lodge, Jan. 2.—A small fire in the dining room of the state prison was caused about 5:30 New Year's eve, when a moving picture film caught fire in the course of a show which was being given for the prison guards and their families and a few other invited guests. The picture machine was located on a platform near the ceiling, and the flames quickly burned a hole through the ceiling and spread along beneath the next floor, making the fire especially hard to fight. A large quantity of water was turned on, which was apparently effective. At 3:30 a. m., however, an inspection showed signs of the fire again breaking out and another flooding was necessary.

THE POST FOR THE NEWS

Further than to reply that the Hobson resolution will 'get the votes.' If, however, one is permitted in strictly private conversation to urge his question until a complete answer has been given, their defense and philosophy, stated in its fullest terms, is in substance this: 'We know that the Hobson resolution will not work, but it will get the votes. The votes will create the interest, the interest will get the subscriptions, the subscriptions will get the money, the money will create the organization, the organization will have the power and when we get the organization and the power we will write a proposition that will work.' 'He neglects to add the very patent fact that, in the meantime, he and his associates will die of old age on the payroll, drawing princely salaries out of money contributed by the Christian men, women and children of America, who believe that those whom they trust as their leaders advocate only that which they themselves believe and denounce only those persons who refuse to support a genuine proposition, submitted in good faith.'

GREENFIELD NAMED SUCCEEDS S. MAXWELL

Newspaper Man is the Commissioner of Agriculture and Publicity.

Jan. 2.—C. D. Greenfield, Sr., the veteran newspaper editor and writer of Montana, until this year with the Helena Independent, has been appointed commissioner of the state bureau of agriculture and publicity by Governor succeeding Seth Maxwell in the office two years. In turn, J. M. Kennedy, Mr. Greenfield's long-time associate, has made his home for 10 years and has been knighted and watched its development. The appointment, which was made, meets with general favor. Mr. Greenfield's new work appointee began his newspaper at the Baltimore Sun, and during that city was connected with the big papers of the west and was the Montana Stockman and which he later sold. Before Montana he was in Denver and a friend and contemporary of Eugene Field when the latter came into prominence in the city of the plow, and was a special column in the Denver Post. Mr. Greenfield was Helena Independent for many years and later with the Montana Independent to return to the Independent time ago. Mr. Greenfield was keenly interested in politics. Greenfield did not seek to hold a term in the legislature as a representative from Lewis and Clark several years ago and to member of the Helena school board. The appointment to the state bureau of agriculture and publicity came without solicitation, and Mr. Greenfield was reluctant to accept it. Governor Stewart had Mr. Greenfield as one of the available men for the office, and he was thoroughly qualified by long residence in the state, acquaintance and understanding of conditions, as well as his intimate connection with publicity work and interest in farm life.
