LAWSON DEMANDS THOROUGH PROBE

Says He Will Name Leak Beneficiaries if Congress Decides to Act.

transactions. Lawson promised to furnish competent testimony. "Will you give their names?" Chairman Henry asked. "I will name names of money; great amounts of money. More than $1,000,000."

Representative Garrett then demanded that Lawson give the names and when he reiterated his refusal Mr. Garrett introduced a motion to compel him to answer. It was laid aside for action with the three pending contempt resolutions. After Lawson had promised to divulge the names of men he said are implicated in stock market forays, if the house ordered an investigation, the line of examination turned to the stock exchange and Lawson's own operations particularly during the month of December, 1916, during which the "leak" occurred.

Bad Break Was Due.

Lawson said that bad as the break on the market was when the leak came, it probably would have been worse if there had been no leak. "My opinion is that the leak gave certain operators an opportunity to prepare for the crash," said Lawson. "They were left in a position to know just what to do. If the market had broken without that preparation made possible by the leak, the break would have been made more disastrous to the country. We didn't have any bank or stock exchange failures accompanying this crash. So I think the leak really was a good thing in one way."

His Deals.

Representative Chipfield questioned Lawson, seeking to show he was a beneficiary of the falling market. Lawson denied he was connected with any stock brokerage firm, but admitted he operated occasionally as an individual through brokers.

"My purpose," said Chipfield, "is to show that Lawson, who says he was not the recipient of any leak, dealt largely on the exchange during this break. I want to show up his transactions which were conducted independently of a leak. If he can operate successfully without a leak, then I condemn the effort being made here to indict other men for operating successfully on that same market. Give us the names of your brokers," he demanded.

Lawson's Brokers.

After a wrangle Lawson said one brokerage firm with which he operated was H. Content & Co., 111 Broadway, New York.

Chipfield then asked a series of questions to show that Lawson began a selling campaign in December and asked if his transactions in steel did not aggregate as much as $300,000. Lawson said he had no idea what they aggregated. He would not give a direct answer when asked if he had operated a selling campaign.

Third Contempt Charge.

A third motion to report Lawson for contempt was entered by the committee on demand of Representative Chipfield when Lawson continued to refuse to tell who gave him the names of three men alleged to have been involved in the leak. Lawson insisted that his informant, a congressman, had said the names should not be made public because it might be disastrous to the nation and the administration.

He Promises.

In answer to a question by Mr. Campbell if in case an investigation of the leak was ordered by the house he would agree to give the new committee the names of the member of congress he had in mind and of the cabinet official whom he said had been a beneficiary of the leak, Lawson said emphatically, "I will."

Doesn't Know What He Made.

Further efforts by Mr. Chipfield to induce Mr. Lawson to state the amount of his profits on the stock market during December were futile. Lawson maintained he did not know whether he made $1,000,000 or $500,000. Answering Mr. Chipfield, Lawson again declared he had no direct knowledge through a "leak" of the coming of the president's peace note. "Veren't there others throughout the country who might have foreseen a break in the market as you did?" "Hundreds of them."

No Direct Knowledge.

By a process of elimination Chipfield then established by questions that Lawson had no knowledge which would be accepted in court of any broker, including Bernard Baruch, who was operating on a "leak," or any officer of the government who had any knowledge of a "leak," or of any member of either house who operated on the exchange during December either on a "leak" or otherwise.

Representative Chipfield then urged Lawson to give the names of the "leaker" he was reported to have given Chairman Henry in confidence ten days ago.

Again Lawson refused to answer on the ground that to make public the name would result in more serious consequences to the country than his being punished for refusing to answer.

In Confidence to Henry.

"Did you give any name to Chairman Henry?" persisted Mr. Chipfield. "Whatever I said to him was said in confidence," interrupted Mr. Henry. "Did you mention any name to Mr. Henry as that of the leaker?" repeated Chipfield. "I did not."

FACING A MINUTE IN THE HOLY LAND

Conditions Serious There Because of War—Too Much Paper Money.

London, Jan. 9.—Advice received here indicates that this winter is looked forward to with the greatest dread by relief workers in the Holy Land. The situation is no better than it was a year ago, and the greatest suffering is caused by the want of fuel and light.

The cold in Jerusalem during January and February is intense, and the scarcity of fuel is so severe that it is difficult to have a fire even to cook with. Petroleum, formerly brought in abundance from the Russian oil fields as well as from American sources, is not to be purchased at any price. Coal, formerly obtained from France and Wales, is nowhere obtainable even in the smallest quantities. The only fuel remaining is wood, and very little of this is to be had, and that at a very high price. Even before the war the wood supply had become very scanty, owing to neglect of proper forestry work and the lack of forest laws. In many districts even the fruit trees are being cut down to provide wood requisitioned by the government for the operation of trains.

Although the harvest throughout Palestine has been fairly good the people have derived little benefit, owing to the requisitioning of all the crops by the military authorities. Sugar has long been practically unobtainable. There are no stores of food available for the peoples of the towns this winter, but the peasants in the country districts have in many cases been able to hide a part of their crops from the military. In the towns the destitution and exhaustion are so severe that actual starvation seems the inevitable lot of a considerable part of the inhabitants.

The Turkish government's introduction of paper money has caused great hardship. The inhabitants of Palestine are unused to such money, and have no desire to become accustomed to it. In spite of the most stringent government regulations against any preference being shown for coined money, no shopkeeper will give change for paper money, and change is only to be obtained secretly at a heavy loss to the owner of the notes.

HIGH SCHOOL ANNEX TOPIC OF TRUSTEES

Suggestions to Be Made Tonight to Make Plunge of Use to Community.

The new high school annex will be the principal topic at the meeting of the board of trustees of the Butte district this evening. In the first place the trustees will have something to say on their formal inspection of the building last Friday morning. In the second place Physical Director Cooke will have a report of his suggestion as to how the swimming pool may be converted into a sort of community enterprise, or at least be available for some portion of the city at times when the students will not need it.

Mr. Cooke is not prepared to divulge his plans, believing that this is a matter to come before the trustees first. Principal Millikin of the high school is of the same opinion. However, it is understood that the suggestion will follow the lines of a club, which may be formed by those who are desirous of using the plunge at certain hours. Mr. Cooke is prepared to co-operate in every way and give his services to the public at special hours.

HUH!

"A man should have enough ambition to want to lead the procession and not to follow it," remarked the Old Fogey.

"That depends on whether a black vehicle with glass windows is heading the procession, doesn't it?" asked the Grouch.

It should be known," Sabin replied. Sabin was excused from telling the source of his information about the German peace proposal because he said it had been given to him in confidence by someone absolutely without connection with the government of the United States. He was released by the committee from further attendance.

Otto H. Kahn of Kuhn, Loeb and company, New York, followed and read into the record a statement denying all connection with any "leak." He was excused.

Allan Curtis of Boston followed Mr. Kahn and denied authorship of the "A. Curtis" letter upon which Representative Wood based his charges.

RUSSO-RUMANIANS ARE UNABLE TO STAND

Teutonic armies in the operations of yesterday and the previous day is now reported by Berlin as approximately 5,500 together with three cannon and 10 machine guns.

While Russians are continuing their offensive in the region between Dvinsk and Riga, along the northern end of the line in Russia, they are meeting with no further successes in the vicinity of the River Aa.

On the Franco-Belgian front there have been only raiding operations and artillery duels.

RUSSIANS PREPARING FOR BIG OFFENSIVE IN NORTH

London, Jan. 9.—The Russians are preparing to launch a new offensive in the Riga sector, according to a Copenhagen dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company, quoting German newspaper correspondents at the eastern front. The Russian troops are said to be equipped with great quantities of munitions and backed by large reserves.

Near Mitau and south of Riga the artillery fire is reported to have constantly increased on both sides during the last few days and to have become extremely violent. The weather is frosty and clear and the country covered with snow.

The correspondent of the Tageliche Rundschau says that the Russians attempted a surprise attack on Sunday near the Riga bridgehead. Great masses of the attackers, with white shirts over their uniforms, succeeded during a violent snowstorm in entering the German trenches on a front of a thousand meters. The correspondent says that evidently an attempt was being made to break through the road between Mitau and Riga.

The Germans, seeing the danger, sent all available reserves into the battle, which reached a pitch of tremendous fury. The two armies fought with bombs and bayonets until sunset, when, according to the correspondent, the Russians retreated to their previous positions over the snow that had been reddened with blood.

In November the total was 2,305, of whom 806 were killed, 1,388 wounded and 111 are missing.

The experience of those who have used "Mother's Friend" should merit special consideration at this time.

"Was the means of banishing morning sickness and nausea during conditions before conception."

"Proved its great value during delivery by the absence of all severe pains, occasioned by such an event."

"Being an external remedy is the greatest assistance in preparing the system for such a change."
