LOSS OF REVENUE $25,000 A YEAR

Closing of Redlight District Means Substantial Cut in City's Income.

Taxpayers of Butte must pay $25,000 per year more than at present owing to the closing of the Butte redlight district, according to City Treasurer Neal A. Ward, who spent the morning figuring out how Butte is going to "get off."

"Each inmate of the redlight district paid a fine of $10 per month," said the city treasurer. "This amounted to about $25,000 per year. With this income eliminated, it will mean funds must come from some other source."

Butte's redlight district is now first cousin to the city's graveyard, as far as activities are concerned during the past 48 hours. There is not a woman remaining in the district that was once the liveliest section of the city.

One woman was fined $10 in police court this morning for transferring her place of business to a downtown rooming house. Mayor Lane said this morning he intends to transfer the redlight policemen to the uptown sections and that all women known to have been inmates of the twilight zone, will be arrested, when caught playing their trade in the business district.

and the owners of the land in the decision and order filed with the clerk of the district court here today.

The supreme court also dissolved the temporary injunction which was granted while the case was before that court. In part, the supreme court in the decision of Chief Justice Theodore Brantly said:

"The plaintiff appears to be a naked trespasser upon this ground without even a semblance of a claim to the right-of-way occupied by it and without any defense whatever for its high-handed and unlawful act. If the maxim, 'He who comes into a court of equity must come with clean hands,' ever possessed any virtue, present circumstances command its application."

Justice Sumner and Holloway concurred in the decision.

The Jessie claim near Rocker is about a mile long and includes 1,100 acres. It is crossed by lines of the Montana Power, Mountain States Telephone and Butte-Zenith companies, which crossed it after securing permission.

OFFICERS TO AID IN SEARCH FOR AVIATORS

Weather Interferes With the Flights and Parties Leave in Automobiles.

San Diego, Cal., Jan. 15.—Twenty-five officers and men in automobiles, three army trucks and three motorcycles left the North Island base shortly before noon for Calexico to aid in the work of searching for the missing aviators, Lieut. Col. Harry G. Bishop and Lieut. W. A. Robertson, Jr., lost since Wednesday without food or water in the desert country of Mexico.

Because of weather conditions the proposed flight from the North Island aviation base to Calexico by Capt. Herbert Dargue and Byron G. Jones and Chief Civilian Flying Instructor Albert Smith has been postponed. In order to negotiate the mountains between San Diego county and the Imperial valley it will be necessary for the aviators to achieve a height of at least 9,000 feet. Colonel Glassford, commander at the North Island base, stated at noon today that the three aviators would attempt the flight as soon as conditions permit.

LAWSON SAYS HENRY TOLD HIM ABOUT THE LEAK

Harvey Fiske & Sons, New York. The senator, Lawson said, was known to him only as "O."

A Go-Between.

Asked by Representative Henry whom he meant when he said he would give the name of a go-between who received a large sum of "his bit," Lawson said he referred to the name given him by Miss Visconti as "Secretary Tumulty."

The Public Man.

Lawson also declared that the firm of C. D. Barney and company of Wall street, Malcolm McAdoo, brother of Secretary McAdoo, and Stewart C. Giheney of New York knew of the leak, and that a public man who knew the "leak machinery" was Paul M. Warburg of the federal reserve board.

Dragging Names in.

Lawson indirectly brought the names of Secretary Lansing and Ambassador Bernstorff into the hearing, but not in connection with the leak. When Henry charged him with dragging in the name of Lansing, Lawson indignantly replied:

"I have held the names of Lansing and the German ambassador out of this."

Lawson also said Representative Henry told him of rumors that Barney Baruch was connected with the "leak."

Lawson Suggestions.

Lawson suggested calling J. R. Rathon, editor of the Providence Journal, in connection with an article "on leaks," which appeared in his paper, and also the editor of the Boston Transcript, which he said had made a "flat-footed" statement that a certain brokerage firm had dealt in 800,000 shares of Steel on Dec. 20, which netted a profit of $8,000,000.

Didn't Think it True.

Lawson further said Henry had told him information had come to the committee that the German ambassador had profited over $2,000,000, but that he did not think it was true.

In a long description of his visit to Chairman Henry, Lawson said that Henry had told him of rumors that Lawson Lansing had gone to the Biltmore hotel in New York to meet Barney Baruch four times, but that he, Henry, thought his visits were perfectly legitimate.

"I told Henry," said Lawson, "that I would stake my head on it that Secretary Lansing was not telling anything he ought not to do."

Lawson declared that Henry had asked him late in December to say nothing more about the "leak" charges on patriotic grounds, saying he owed it to the country not to mention them further for the present.

"At no time," Lawson insisted, "did he ever say that he had any direct information relating to a 'leak.'"

Henry on Stand.

Chairman Henry then took the witness stand.

Henry emphatically denied that he ever had mentioned to Lawson the name of any cabinet officer.

"Not during our whole three hours' conference did I mention to Mr. Lawson the name of any cabinet officer that he has mentioned here today."

Henry asserted again and again that he had not given Lawson such information.

Turning to Lawson, Henry repeated he had told him nothing. Lawson did not reply, but shook his head as if to say that he stood by his statement.

Henry also declared he never had mentioned the name of a member of congress or a banker to Lawson as having been involved in the "leak."

This made his denial of Lawson's testimony complete.

When Henry had concluded his testimony, Lawson rose and dramatically asserted that every word he, Lawson, had uttered today was the "truth, so help me God, without variation."

Two resolutions to strengthen the power of the rules committee to compel witnesses to answer questions were presented by Representative Garrett, a member of the committee, and were adopted soon after the house met today. One of them was general in character but the other would compel Lawson to give names specifically.

Representative Campbell, republican, today introduced a resolution for a committee of five to deal with the "leak" situation.

WILL PROBABLY NOT QUESTION AMBASSADOR

Statement by Mr. Francis at Petrograd is Confirmed by State Department.

Washington, Jan. 15.—Practical confirmation of Ambassador Francis' statement at Petrograd that the closer commercial relations with Russia can hardly be brought about if the "principles or resolution of the economic conference of the allies last June are confirmed and carried out," was given at the state department today with the statement that an inquiry "probably would not" be sent to the ambassador about his remarks.

In two recent cases—Ambassador Gerard's speech in Berlin and Minister Van Dyke's statement at The Hague—the department made inquiries.

The Paris economic conference has been viewed with alarm here as suggestive of exclusive trade agreements—a war after the war—dangerous to American foreign trade.

COMMERCIALIZED VICE NOT ALONE COVERED BY ACT

McReynolds took no part in consideration of the cases.

The plain terms of the case must take precedence over the report that accompanied it to congress," said Justice Day. It is said it will open the door to blackmail, but that is to be considered by congress. We think the power of congress to regulate transportation of passengers affords ample basis to exercise authority in the case of this statute.

Justice Day's majority opinion said: "In none of the cases was it charged or proved that the transportation (of the women involved) was for gain."

"There is no ambiguity in the terms of the act. It is elementary that the meaning of a statute must in the first instance be sought in the language of the act as framed and if that is plain the sole function of the courts is to enforce it according to its terms."

"To cause a woman to be transported for debauchery or for an immoral purpose, for which Diggs and Caminetti were convicted, would seem by the very statement of the facts to embrace transportation for purposes denounced by the act. While such immoral purpose would be more culpable in morals if accompanied with expectation of gain, such considerations do not prevent the lesser offense against morals from the execution of purposes within the meaning of the law. To say to the contrary would shock the common understanding of what constitutes an immoral purpose."

Whether the women involved become accomplices, argued in behalf of the three defendants, was not directly decided by the court. It disposed of that feature as follows:

"It is urged as a further ground for reversal of the judgments below that the trial court did not instruct the jury that the testimony of the two girls was that of accomplices and to be received with great caution and believed only when corroborated by other testimonies in the case."

"While this is so, there is no absolute rule of law preventing convictions on the testimony of accomplices if jurors believe them."

In conclusion the court says: "Much is said about the character of the test adduced and as to certain facts tending to establish the guilt or innocence of the accused. This court does not weigh the evidence in a proceeding of this character and it is enough to say that there was substantial testimony tending to support the verdicts rendered in the trial courts.

BOTH PROMINENT MEN.

San Francisco, Jan. 15.—F. Drew Caminetti, who with Maury I. Diggs, lost the appeal to the United States supreme court today from a white slave conviction, is the son of Anthony Caminetti, commissioner general of immigration of the United States. He is at present on a ranch in Amador county.

Diggs at present resides in Berkeley with his wife, who was Marsha Warrington, the girl he took to Reno, Nev., with Caminetti and Lola Norria in March, 1913. Diggs married Marsha Warrington, a Sacramento girl, a year ago.

Throughout the prosecution of Diggs and Caminetti, following a raid on their cottage in Reno, the case claimed national attention. Diggs was formerly state attorney.

Attorneys said today the next step would be certification of today's decision to the federal courts here and in forcing the two men to serve their sentence unless pardoned.
