

When You Buy Clothes Buy From a Tailor

The expression "tailor made" has been so used by ready-to-wear houses who handle only factory wares that to the folks who really patronize the tailor the expression has become meaningless. Would you wear a perfect-fitting suit? Then have it made to your measure by tailors right in the city where you live, where the wages paid demand the best product. If you have it made at this shop you will get clothes made the Jonas way—the one right way

PROHIBITION FORCES WIN IN MIDDLE WEST

Capitals of Illinois and Wisconsin and Many Other Cities Go Dry.

Chicago, April 4.—Dry forces won their greatest victory in the history of the prohibition movement in the middle west yesterday when the capitals of two states and one of the principal cities of a third, in addition to a number of small towns, voted to close their saloons.

Springfield, Ill., and Madison, Wis., were the capitals which went into the prohibition columns, and Duluth, Minn., the third city of the state and one of the principal Great Lakes ports voted the same way. Practically complete returns show that 21 towns other than Springfield voted dry in Illinois, while 11 granted license. Eleven of the towns voting dry already were dry, while nine of those favoring the saloons had them during the past year. In Wisconsin 42 towns are shown to have favored prohibition and 24 voted to license saloons.

LADIES' AID TO MEET.

Are Your Teeth Sound?

It is really remarkable how comparatively few people realize that in spite of daily cleansing with pastes and powders, the teeth, and particularly the back ones, frequently become decayed and hollow.

If YOUR TEETH have become decayed and hollow—If YOUR TEETH are aching and CAUSING YOU MISERY AND DISCOMFORT, you should have them overhauled right away—restored to a sound, beautiful condition.

MAGNIFICENT MEMORIAL TO MRS. MARY BAKER EDDY FINISHED AT CAMBRIDGE

MARY BAKER EDDY MEMORIAL.

The beautiful monument built at a cost of $100,000 by the Christian Scientists of the United States marks the grave of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy. While differing greatly, the memorial was taken from a famous building of the ancient Greeks built in Athens and called the Clepsydra of Cyrrhus Andronicus, known as the Tower of the Winds.

MEN IN UNIFORM CROWD STREETS

French Soldiers in Great Numbers on Duty Now in Algiers.

Oran, Algeria, April 4.—There are more French soldiers to be seen in Oran than in any town in France. Those in France are at the front or in the points of concentration near the front. They are there right enough, but one does not see them—at the front—because they are in trenches. But in Algeria it is different. The streets are full of soldiers; so are the cafes, the street cars, the stores, the docks, the public gardens. The official figures give the population of Oran at 136,000. To the casual visitor there seem to be at least half as many soldiers besides.

And they are all French—French or French colonial, not allied troops. Besides the casual, familiar army types there is every kind of exotic fighting man, including native troops from Indo-China, looking more like Japanese than anything else, uniformed as ordinary French colonials of the line. There are the Zouaves, with their baggy red breeches and khaki puttees, now a days, instead of the white galton of the old parade days before the war. Their short, black-braided jackets, sashes and blouses, however, are unchanged. There are the Chasseurs d'Afrique—the African light cavalry—with sky-blue uniform and red fez, the most elegant of French military horsemen. More gorgeous, however, are the "tirailleurs"—the sharpshooters, equally in sky-blue uniforms, faced with yellow, and also wearers of fezzes. On active service this magnificence is supplanted by khaki and khaki fezzes upon which a star and crescent indicate that the wearer is a follower of the prophet. More characteristic of the country are the "spahis"—Mohammedan troops, officered by Frenchmen. They wear flowing scarlet cloaks and the soldiers wear turbans and native costumes; the officers, unequal to coping with the turban, content themselves with fezzes, but sacrifice nothing of the resplendent scarlet cloak. The most picturesque and the most numerous are the "roums," the Arab cavalry regiments raised by the Arabs themselves. They wear the flowing white garments, the "bourous" of the desert.

At tea time any sunny afternoon the Boulevard Seguin, the principal street of Oran, is crowded with these uniforms and more besides. The terrace of the Cafe Continental hasn't a vacant table and the tables cover the sidewalk almost to the curb. There are no regulations about the hours at which drinks may be served in Algeria, for the war is far away and the garden of Africa is for those who are sent to rest, to forget the war for a while, for the convalescents and for those who stop a few days or a few weeks between service in France and service in Macedonia or Egypt or wherever else the world of war may send them.

There are French sailors in Oran, too, for Oran is France's nearest naval port to the Straits of Gibraltar, and the great amphitheater harbor, so full of ships of commerce, whose constructed wharves are piled with stacks of grain and acres of wine casks, is also an important naval base.

MINE ON LITTLE BOULDER WORKING

After 12 years of effort devoted to development work and the completion this month of a 100-ton concentrator the Shields and Ironside Mining and Milling company has been put on a paying basis. The mine is located 15 miles east of Butte. During the past year the company, which is a close corporation, has expended about $100,000 in installing modern equipment on the property, which includes the 700-ton concentrator and complete electrical equipment.

CHURCH GROWTH IS CUT IN HALF

Despite Reawakening Since War, Decrease is Shown in Contributions.

BY THE REV. CHARLES STELZLE
New York, April 4.—Although religion has been making great strides forward, especially since the beginning of the war, figures show the church in the United States has grown in membership only half as fast as before the war.

During 25 years before 1914 the growth of membership in all churches averaged 3.6 per cent a year. But during the two years of the war, the churches, instead of increasing 3.6 per cent in each year, have grown just 2.4 per cent in both years. This slackening speed represents a loss of about 1,300,000 persons that the church would have gained had it increased normally.

During the past year there was a gain over the previous year—the first year of the war was even worse than the one just closed.

While there has been a great increase in contributions toward foreign missions, contributions for work in this country have fallen off.

During 1916 the gifts for foreign missions increased over $2,000,000 above those for 1915, but the gifts for home missions, for the support of the churches, and for church and parsonage building decreased about $2,345,000.

What are the causes for this slump in religious interest, so far as the churches are concerned?

One reason may be the great decrease in emigration from Catholic countries; for Catholic immigrants usually continue their church relationships here.

Another reason is the terrific strain—industrially and commercially—to which our people have been subjected because of unprecedented prosperity.

Men haven't had time to think about the church and religious obligations. However the war may have affected the soldiers in the trenches so that they have become more religious in their thought, its effect upon Americans has been to make them more materialistic.

And it is seriously to be questioned whether the war has made the average European soldier more pious.

It is well known that great revivals of religion in this country have immediately followed periods of business depression.

Whatever might have been the effect of hard times in this country a few years ago, there is no doubt the revival in religious matters.

And yet there is a feeling of real religion developing in this country. It may not show itself in increased church membership or in increased contributions toward church work, but men are everywhere being drawn toward more serious things.

These are perilous times. We are awaiting real leadership. This is a day when prophets are needed!

DIES FROM INJURIES SUSTAINED YEAR AGO

Edward H. Hughes, aged 32 years, a miner of Butte, died this morning in a local hospital from injuries received while working in the Black Rock mine May 18, 1916. He was caught in a fall of ground and his back was seriously injured. It is believed that part of one of his vertebrae was fractured. He was confined to the hospital since that time. He is survived by his parents and a sister in Butte. The funeral will be held on Friday at an hour to be determined later. Coroner Aeneas Lane was called and after making an investigation said that he may hold an inquest later.

FORBES FUNERAL.

Funeral services were held today for Earl W. Forbes, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Forbes, 244 Anaconda road. Mrs. Forbes was in St. Mary's church and burial was in the family plot in the Holy Cross cemetery.

MANY FRIENDS ATTEND MRS. HARRIS' FUNERAL

Hundreds of friends attended the funeral of Mrs. Maud Harris, which was held today. The casket was banked in the beautiful floral offerings of many friends. The cortege proceeded from the home of her mother, Mrs. Rose Kendall, 416 Quartz street, to the Sacred Heart church, where a mass was celebrated. Burial was in the Holy Cross cemetery.

ROBINSON FUNERAL.

A long procession of friends made up the cortege of William Robinson, whose funeral was held today. There were many beautiful floral tributes. The funeral proceeded from the home, 53 Missoula avenue, to St. Andrew's Episcopal church, where the Rev. R. J. Jensen conducted the ritualistic services. Burial was in the Mount Moriah cemetery.

MAKING HIM VAIN.

George—Mother, Mr. Smithers, across the street, is very fond of me.
Mother—What makes you think so, son?
George—Why, I heard him say to Mr. Smithers, "I just wish I had that little George Brown for about 10 minutes."
