

SEEK WOMAN IN MURDER MYSTERY

New Angle Presents Itself in Investigation of Death of Unknown.

"Look for the woman" is the advice the police have adopted in their quest of a solution of the mysterious killing of the unknown man whose body was found beside an axe with which the head had been crushed in at the rear of an Italian boarding house at 24 South Arizona street early yesterday morning. The unknown has not been identified thus far, although the body has been said to resemble Omer Phelan, a Finlander who is said to have disappeared from his boarding house, 111 East Broadway, and C. Hoff, a German, who until Wednesday lived at 11 1-2 East Mercury street. These identifications, however, are not positive enough to satisfy the authorities. The condition in which the body was found and other circumstances unearthed by the police have led to advancement of a theory that the unknown was killed in a fight over a woman or was slain while in company of one. Lack of anything to indicate that the clothes were searched and the absence of circumstances to indicate robbery have led to disapproval of that theory. Coroner Lane will hold a formal inquest into the death of the unknown on Tuesday.

ITALY'S TRIBUTE TO UNITED STATES

Noted Italian Poet, Serving in War, Notes America's Entrance.

Rome, April 7, Via Paris.—General (Antonio), the Italian poet, who is now serving at the front as a captain in the aviation corps, has issued the following statement in connection with America's entrance into the war.

"The group of stars in the great republican banner has become a constellation, a propitious star to soldiers armed and unarmed and a spiritual token for all nations fighting in a righteous war. Italy salutes the glorious spirit which has led the people of the American Union to recognize and reveal their part with liberty."

"I, alone among the allied nations having the possibility to avoid war and remain an inert spectator, arise freely in arms, not so much for the recognition of her heritage as for the salvation of all that which, in the features born of Rome, has represented the nobleness of free men. She armed herself as the American nation does today, for an ideal reason and heroic claim. Her spontaneous and like that inspired today by the people of George Washington, had the beauty of sacrifice offered in the hope of mankind."

"Well, my lord," answered the prisoner, "all I can say is that a man with such a thin skull as that man had no business at Tipperary Fair."
