

END ALL MOB LAW CRY IN GEORGIA

Since Lynching of Leo Frank Sentiment Has Undergone Change.

Marietta, Ga., April 14.—The lynching of Leo M. Frank has done more to crystallize sentiment against mob vengeance in this state than any other single event or propaganda.

Less than 20 months ago Frank was hanged from a tree in a small woods two miles from here, and two miles from the grave of Mary Phagan, of whose murder he had been convicted.

Today sentiment has changed, not only in regard to the lynching of Frank, but in regard to the lynching of any person in any case.

Today the belief in Frank's guilt has not lessened. The words where he was hanged is called "Justice Park."

At first, when the rest of the country assailed Georgia for her lawlessness, she bitterly rejoined. It was the favorite occupation of Georgia editors to picture New York and Chicago as criminal strongholds and to hold up her own manhood as that of fearless and all-daring defiance to law.

Think Lynching a Disgrace. So too with "average" citizens, bankers and clerks, merchants and teachers, mothers of families and—less generally, of course, by far—with the more illiterate population, this sentiment has taken hold.

Before Frank was put to death Newt A. Morris was judge of the Blue Ridge circuit, containing this and other counties.

Ever since this former Judge Morris's influence has increased. Today he is once again judge of the Blue Ridge circuit and is more favorably viewed by North Georgians than at any time before.

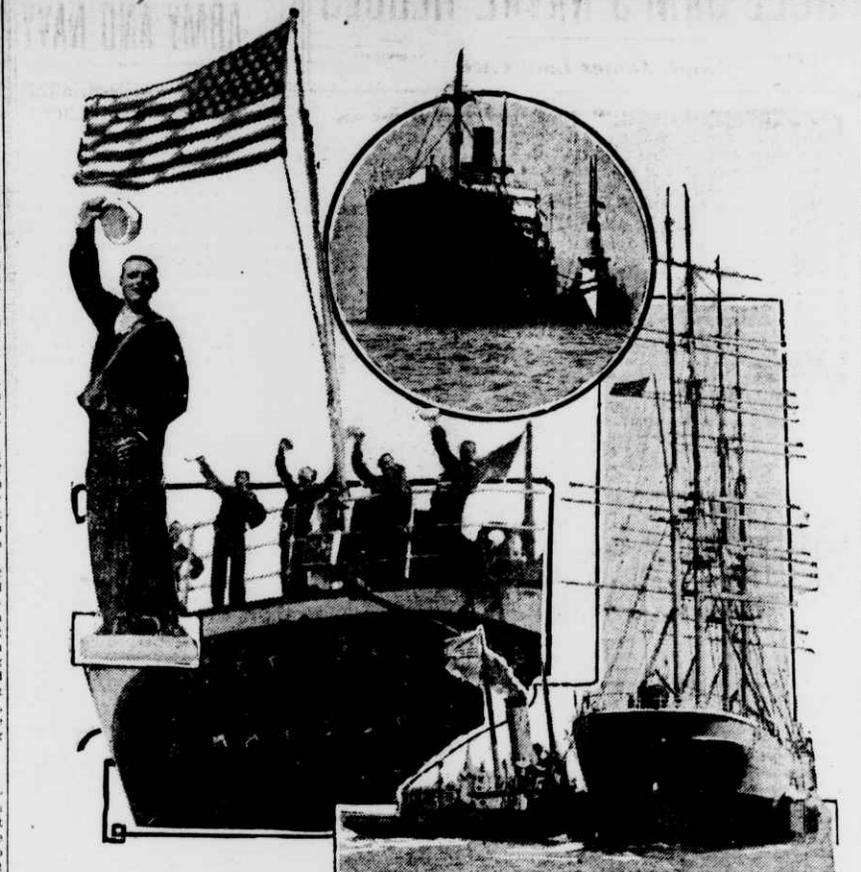

Los Angeles, Cal.—Miss Georgia Mabel Ransom refused to get married the other day, although the wedding ring was about to be slipped upon her finger.

Justice Summerfield was engaged temporarily. While the couple were awaiting him, the girl suddenly arose and exclaimed: "I won't do it, that's all. I simply can't," and rushed out of the courthouse building.

They gave their address on the marriage license as the Hotel Hart on East Fifth street.

And even if you could give your wife everything she wants, the chances are that she wouldn't want it when she got it.

WALKS AROUND AFTER FAST TRAIN HIT HIM

Japanese Section Hand Was Thrown 15 Feet and Escaped Injury.

Kemmerer, Wyo., April 14.—What is deemed by men who saw the accident as nothing short of a miracle, occurred the other morning when extra freight No. 2014 struck a Japanese section hand named Kumiji Tongu as the latter endeavored to get off the track this side of the tunnel.

The laborer was thrown about 15 feet across two tracks and when Engineer Wilcox alighted to pick up the man he expected to find the latter dead, as the train had been running at a good rate of speed down hill.

TOOK EVERYTHING BUT HIS OVERCOAT

New York.—Not only did four men rob him of $1,000 in United States currency and 500 gold rubles, Trofim Lochaza told the police, but they stripped him of a new suit of clothes and placed him in the street without anything to wear save an old overcoat.

THIS GERMAN CONSUL IS HAVING HARD LUCK

When he arrived at Nagasaki the Japanese refused to allow him to land. The Thomas' officers had no authority to carry him further. At length he made arrangements through the Swiss consul to land and agreed to go to China.

By the time he reached China that country had broken with Germany and he went to Honolulu and decided to take his chances with the United States as the least likely of all the powers of the Pacific to make things uncomfortable for him.

He has placed himself in the hands of the Swiss consul in San Francisco. He will probably remain there until the arrival of 200 German consuls from China, and will return home with them.

London, April 14.—One of the most reckless feats of daring reported during the war is recorded in a list of military awards just issued.

April's changeable weather causes colds that lead to expensive doctor bills—bills that could be avoided if the cold were checked in time.

Glad to Learn of It. The same list mentions awards to six men who picked up live shells and threw them over the parapet.

SOLDIERS TAKE TO AGRICULTURE

Helping to Supply Demand for Food—Retaken Land is Utilized.

French Front, April 14.—The beginning of spring this year has produced the spectacle of thousands of soldiers of the French army, together with their comrades of the British and Belgian armies, forsaking the rifle, the bayonet, the hand-grenade and the machine-gun to take in hand temporarily the hoe, the spade, the harrow and the plough in many of the districts of eastern and northeastern France.

The reconquest of large tracts of territory from the Germans and the return of the civilian inhabitants from the places where they had taken refuge confronted the authorities with the problem of restoring these lands to cultivation.

The zone occupied by each army was sub-divided into small districts, each containing about 25 villages or hamlets. The commanding officer of the troops stationed in each district was directed to get into touch with the civil official and place at his disposal as many men as are needed or can be spared for agricultural labor.

The result of these arrangements is that, almost up to the firing line, all available land in France is now in cultivation, and soldiers in uniform, whenever they can be spared from the trenches and dugouts and their main task of destroying the Germans, work cheerfully with the women, children and older men behind the lines.

Beaumont, Cal., April 14.—A fight to a finish between two leopards occurred on the circus ground at San Jacinto, 14 miles south of here.

Armed with iron bars, circus employes worked desperately to separate the maddened beasts, but their efforts were ineffectual. After a fight for nearly half an hour one of the beasts was killed.
