

CALL OUT METAL TRADES AT MINES

Action Does Not Necessarily Mean Shutdown of District.

company and the Timber Butte Milling company; J. L. Bruce, of the Butte and Superior; William L. Creedon, of the Davis-Daly and Butte and Detroit Mining companies; Paul Gow, of the Tuolumne and Butte and Main Range; Joseph Manwaring, of the Hallakava Copper company; Oscar John, of the East Butte; W. D. Gibson, of the Butte and Zenith; L. D. Frink, superintendent of the North Butte, and George Decker, of the Mines Operating company and the East Side Mining company, and Mr. Rodgers.

None This Afternoon.

The report that a conference would take place this afternoon between the Montana Power company and the electrical workers proved to be incorrect. No conference of that kind was held. Except the developments following the walkout of unions in the metal trades, the situation remained unchanged today. More men went to work in the mines today than yesterday, indicating that the new Tom Campbell union is steadily losing ground. It became evident some time ago that this I. W. W. organization would fall in itself to close the mines of the district. If the mines go down, it will be because of the strike inaugurated by the electrical workers and the subsequent developments in which the metal mine workers union has figured only indirectly. This union has figured only indirectly. This union has figured only indirectly.

How They Went Out.

After the men quit work at the Black Rock this morning the business agent was next able to reach those employed at the Elm vein. The blacksmiths went out. Up to noon the only men in the metal trades out in the Anaconda company's mines were the machinists at the Leonard. At noon a number of union men at the Anaconda company mines quit work. At the Tramway and Barus the blacksmiths and machinists quit work at noon; the boiler-makers left that mine at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Work was going on as usual this afternoon at the Timber Butte mill and several small mines.

According to President O'Brien of the metal trades, the men are being notified as fast as they can be. "Some of them may finish their work today, but I'll guarantee there will be none at work tomorrow morning," is the way O'Brien put it. Besides being president of the metal trades council, O'Brien is business agent of the machinists' union. After the metal workers laid down their work at the Black Rock, O'Brien called a meeting of the metal workers strike committee in machinists' union headquarters in Carpenters' hall. This is composed of one member from each of the organizations affiliated with the metal trades. At the meeting it was decided to call out all metal workers on the hill and the order was issued.

Telephones the Order.

President O'Brien of the metal trades council spent the greater part of this morning and afternoon in telephoning the strike order to the men working on the hill. He declared this afternoon that all the metal workers with the exception of the engineers will obey the order. He expressed the opinion that the engineers will swing into line after their strike vote tomorrow night. Asked if the unions called out had voted to strike, President O'Brien replied that with the exception of the engineers, they did. "But we don't need their strike vote," added O'Brien. "Our men don't have to work with the men filling the places of the striking electricians. We have the right to order them out."

Asked if this can be done without the consent of the international organizations of the various unions, O'Brien replied: "We assumed that we have that right and acted in accordance." The stand of the strike committee is that the troubles are purely local and, that for this reason, the men can be ordered out without the consent of the international organizations. "If the international organizations want to revoke our charter," declared one man prominent among the strikers, "let them do so."

Should the international organizations take this step, it will place the offending unions in the same outlaw position as the I. W. W. metal mine workers. In that event union men affiliated with the international organizations can take the place of the strikers. The international organizations could follow this up by placing new unions in Butte. The engineers are in a unique position. While today's strike order includes them, they had already set tomorrow night for a vote on the question of walkout. Consequently President O'Brien does not expect them to quit until after they take their referendum. Like other organizations, the engineers must also secure the consent of their international before they can strike.

At last Wednesday night's meeting the engineers decided to hold a referendum on the question of endorsing the electricians' strike. Later it developed that the referendum resolution as passed by the union included the question of recognition of the I. W. W. metal mine workers. This caused President James Snell to order an indefinite postponement of the referendum.

In Trades Council.

Important steps bearing upon the situation are expected to be taken by the Silver Bow Trades and Labor council at its meeting tonight. Report has it that the committee which attended the allied labor conference last week will recommend that the council recognize the outlay Metal Mine Workers' union. If such recommendation is made, it will meet with opposition as there are a number of unions affiliated with the assembly which, it is said, will resist recognition until the metal mine workers organize properly and affiliate with the American Federation of Labor.

Vote of Blacksmiths.

At their referendum yesterday the blacksmiths and helpers voted to sustain the electricians in so far as the strike against the Montana Power company is concerned. No recognition was given to the mine workers union backed by the I. W. W.

The structural iron workers at a meeting last night refused recognition to the present metal mine workers organization. Resolutions were adopted pledging support to the electricians in the strike, in so far as the support does not involve recognition of the outlay union of miners. The structural iron workers also decided that they will not work on jobs where they deem unfair have taken the places of the striking electricians.

With the Engineers.

While Chairman Dunne of the electrical strike committee is still bringing pressure to bear upon the engineers, it became known today that an immediate walkout of the engineers is out of the question. Leaders of the engineers declare that at tomorrow night's meeting of the union the question of taking a referendum is necessary and before action the sanction of the international union must be secured. This means that there will be no walkout of the engineers for at least a week, even though they should decide to strike.

Representatives of several international unions are now en route to Butte. P. W. Dowler, general organizer of the carpenters and joiners of America, arrived last night. E. J. McNulty, president of the International Electrical Workers' union, is not coming, but reports that he is rushing a representative here. Representative Taylor of the international body of machinists is expected in Butte before night.

James Lord, president of the mining department of the American Federation of Labor, is also expected here in a few days. He is still in Cobalt, Canada, but local labor leaders look for him to reach here at any time.

Want I. W. W. Literature.

Evidence that the I. W. W. is behind the Metal Mine workers again became apparent at the meeting of the union yesterday when Tom Ritter moved that the union subscribe for 10 copies of the Industrial Socialist Review and six copies each of the Appeal to Reason and Milwaukee Leader. These papers are known to be the organs of the ultra-radical socialists and give hearty support to the I. W. W. movement.

A spirited discussion followed before Chairman Tom Campbell ruled the motion out of order. Dan Shovin and Campbell made speeches in which they strongly upheld the publications, but they urged that the union wait until the demands made by the miners are granted. Shovin and Campbell declared that if the papers are subscribed for it will give further evidence that the union is identified with the I. W. W. Shovin added that after the miners have settled their strike the papers can be brought here in sufficient numbers to supply each member. Campbell took the same stand as Shovin. He was strongly in favor of the papers, but wanted the union to wait for the present.

A motion was made in the union meeting to purchase 1,900 copies of Solidarity. This is the official organ of William D. Haywood, head of the I. W. W., published at Chicago. The Solidarity is devoting much space to the Butte affair, and frankly exults over the fact that the developments here have been due to organizers and members of the I. W. W. The organizers have been "on the job" in Butte from the start and are prepared to keep the agitation going. The motion to buy copies of Solidarity was lost after a spirited discussion.

Campbell Presides.

Campbell presided at yesterday's meeting as usual. Shovin protested against the popular characterization of the organization as "Campbell's union." Campbell upheld Shovin in his stand, declaring that he merely acted as chairman so often as he did not want to give the Butte papers a chance to say he is a coward. He added that at the next meeting he proposed to step down and give someone else a chance at the chair.

Shovin of the mediation committee reported that the committee has seen Mr. Rodgers, the federal mediator, and laid its side before him. A motion by Dan Shovin that the union buy 5,000 buttons reading "We are on strike" and distribute them to its members was voted down. A report brought in by Ed Bassett, chairman of the executive committee, was adopted. Under this report all members in good standing shall be given a union button.

Intimidate Workers.

A telephone message to the sheriff's office at 6:30 o'clock this morning brought the information that men were lurking about the Pittsmead for the purpose of intimidating men going on and off shift. Undersheriff Jack Meila, with Deputy Mike Boric and others, immediately left in an automobile for the property. There Steve Sooder, Matt Geltnen and Luke Geitner were found about the outside of the gates and they were brought to the county jail, where they will be held awaiting action by the county attorney's office.

GIANTS OFF WITH A FLYING START

Two Home Runs Off Bonner, With Men on, Give Visitors Big Lead.

Bill Leard and his Seattle Giants made their first appearance at Helgen park this afternoon during the present season and the men from the coast city were out to strengthen their stand in the league race at the expense of the locals. Manager McGarr promises to have something to say in the outcome and believes that the hitters will be able to come out on top of the series. Leard sent Dally to the mound while old Al Bonner was on the hill for the locals. There was a good-sized week-day crowd on hand when the kong sounded.

During the first two innings there was no scoring by either team and the playing was of the air-tight order. In the third frame, however, the spell was broken when Grant made a wobble of Murphy's drive, which filled the bags. With two down Dally sent out one for two sacks. Leard was walked and then Grant slipped. Gardner, the veteran Coast first-sacker who is too old to be conscripted, landed on the pill for a home run to the center field fence and cleared the sacks. Butte made one when Kafora scored on a passed ball. The inning was remarkable in that Dally hit two men and struck out three. Garriety, Leifer and Hilliard were the strikeout victims, the latter fanning with the sacks congested.

In the first of the fourth Seattle duplicated the score of the third. Morse scored first on a fielders' choice and reached on Catcher's error, while Cunningham's double to left. Leard hit just short and Cunningham scored. Murphy jotted a homer over the right field fence and drove Leard in ahead of him.

The Miners began to pick up a little with their clotting and sent three over before they were turned back. Kafora reached first on a fielders' choice. Bonner singled to center and Garriety singled, scoring Kafora. Johnson slugged scoring Bonner, and Leifer drove out another single, scoring Garriety.

The Giants were not to be stopped and added another in their turn in the fifth. Carman was walked and took second on Garriety's error, scoring on W. Cunningham's deep drive to center. Butte went scoreless. In the first of the sixth Harrington replaced Hilliard in left. Hilliard has been ill for the past few days. Seattle was blanked in this frame. Butte was retired in order.

The score at the first of the seventh was: Seattle, 9; Butte, 4.
