GERMAN LEGATION PROTESTS AGAINST ACTION BY NORWAY

London, June 27.—Reports received here from Norway say that the German legation at Christiania formally protested against the breaking of the German official seals on the baggage of Aron Raulenfeld, a German who is among those arrested in connection with the conspiracy to blow up seized ships. The legation demanded the surrender of his trunk but without success. There is no confirmation of the statement in Paris that Germany asked Norway to apologize for the breaking of the seals.

THE THEATRICAL WORLD

SCENE FROM "THE LIBERTINE," SHOWING AT THE RIALTO THEATER TONIGHT AND TOMORROW

SCENE FROM "THE LIBERTINE"

To the Silver Bow Amusement company and its progressive managers, C. S. Jensen and J. G. Von Herberg, must be given the double honor of both introducing the first American Master organ in the west and bringing to Butte the largest orchestral organ in the world. The Rialto organ is many times larger than any organ before constructed by the American Master Organ company, and represents the first application of this distinctive mechanism to practically every known musical instrument.

The aggregate shipping weight of the two cars containing the organ was 24,000 pounds, this independent of the blowing apparatus, weighing 6,000 pounds and consisting of three motors totaling 25 horsepower. The largest blower is 18 feet long, six feet high and four feet wide.

The standard American Master organ, as known in the east, has only one console, usually a two manual grand piano console, but the resources of the Rialto organ are so in excess of anything ever before conceived that two musicians playing together would have to extend themselves to make the fullest use of them so that the second four manual organ console has been added. This is the first organ in the world having two consoles each operating the same organ independent of the other. This feature is one of great interest to the musical world, opening to the organ, as it does, a wide range of orchestral compositions impossible of interpretation by one organist limited to what he can do with but ten fingers.

The main sections of the organ are located above the proscenium arch and a very complete echo organ is placed in the ceiling at the rear above the balcony. The music from the echo organ carries also under the balcony through a sound conductor placed under the balcony floor.

The switchboard is 14 feet long, 7 feet high, has 168 switches controlling the different instruments or stops. The material details of this organ are, however, of secondary interest to the item of prime importance—the soul of the instrument, the melody and new tones of beauty that lie in its depths, responsive to the musician's touch. In that connection this little story in its simplicity gets to the heart of the matter and argues well for the permanent popularity this organ will surely enjoy.

It was in the summer of 1915 that the first American Master organ, one with the grand piano console or keyboard only, was placed on exhibition in a loft building opposite the Metropolitan opera house, New York, and was open to the inspection of anyone who cared to climb three flights of stairs on a hot day in August to see it. The sensation created by the new instrument soon attracted the attention of several prominent business firms to its commercial possibilities, among them the John Wanamaker store, an institution noted for its most conservative policy.

The Wanamaker organist, Alexander Russell, a musician notoriously opposed to the usual orchestral organ and its innovations, was delegated to look into the American Master organ and render an opinion. Mr. Russell's report in its simplicity of analysis struck home and proved prophetic in its appraisal both of the artistic and commercial value of the instrument. He said: "For generations we have had the organ, the piano and the orchestra, and a love for their music has grown to be universal. We can never tire of these instruments, and the permanent value of the American Master organ lies in the fact that its grand piano represents no alteration that lessens the tonal beauties of the piano as we know it. Its chimes and its orchestral effects are sensitive, musically and true enough to their prototype in the orchestra to be entirely lacking in monotony."

The great organ at the Rialto theater will be formally opened next Sunday at 12 noon. While it is pre-eminently the last word in completeness of resources for the furnishing of delightful picture music, and for the proper accompaniment of everything in screen life from comedy to tragedy, it is more—it has a deeper side; it will prove a real asset to the musical life of Butte. It will attract the real musician and win a permanent place in the heart and affection of our citizens.

NESTOR AND MOORE AT EMPRESS TODAY

It's great. What? The new show at the Empress.

Six big vaudeville acts are on the program which started at the popular theater this afternoon. This classy show will run until Saturday night and every one in Butte will want to see it. Ned Nestor and Charles Moore, with their sweethearts, head the new list of attractions, and the girls not only are pretty, but can sing and dance to perfection. This is an act which can be thoroughly enjoyed from first to last.

Edwin and Lottie Ford have a terpsichorean revue which would be hard to equal. They demonstrate some of the latest steps in the dancing line. Henry Rudolph, the famous tenor, will be heard in a delightful repertoire of his favorite songs. He knows just the sort of songs his audiences enjoy.

Melville and Milne have a great song comedy called "Bungalow Love." This party of entertainers must be seen and heard to be appreciated.

Sherwood and Sherwood present a very laughable sketch entitled "The Nurse and the Scout." It is a military offering and is thoroughly enjoyable.

William DeHollis and company make up a very pleasing aggregation presenting the successful skit, "The Admiral's Reception." There is something doing every minute of the time in this act. Don't miss it.

The Empresscope will portray the latest news events of the week, as well as a bright new comedy.

PANTAGES ARTISTS IN PERFORMANCE FOR THE AID OF RED CROSS

Today's matinee at the Broadway theater was a Red Cross fund benefit affair, all the artists appearing in the present Pantages show there donating their services and the Broadway management agreeing that all the proceeds be given to the Red Cross fund.

This Pantages show, by the way, will conclude its local engagement with tonight's presentation. It is a really delightful affair with one of the niftiest musical comedies in it. The latter offering is entitled "Wanted, A Wife" and is a sure enough hit.

Miss Elizabeth Keith, a prominent young lady of Butte, is a principal in the comedy playlet, "Women."

In fact all the offerings on the list are delightfully high class and very entertaining.

FOND FAREWELL TO MAURICE J. ENGLISH

Old Friends Tender Banquet and Present to the Well-Known Attorney.

Attorney Maurice J. English, who leaves the latter end of the week for New York, where he has been appointed to a lucrative and responsible position with a leading investment company in the metropolis, was guest of honor last evening at a banquet given by a number of his personal friends at the Butte hotel. Mr. English was presented with a very beautiful and handsome moerschaum pipe and the very best wishes of his associates and close friends in this city for the past number of years were accorded him. "Maurice," as all his friends called him, was very popular, and testimony was given to his many good qualities of heart and mind, his sterling American patriotism and his many unheralded charities.

Judge J. J. Lynch presided at the banquet at which the following were present: Rev. M. J. Hannan, John J. Crowley, T. J. McCarthy, Walter J. Sewell, James B. Mulcahy, John Caplis, Charles H. Gallagher, Thomas J. Fenlon, Judge J. J. Lynch and Daniel J. McGrath. It was a very pleasant evening, one that will long linger in the grateful remembrance of Mr. English. In addition to his duties as head of the investment company's business, Mr. English will travel through the New England states, Pennsylvania and Maine, and it is hoped that he will often come to Butte.

The murder case of Nathan Brooks, set for July 5, was changed to July 9, while the case of J. Harvey Jackson, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, set for July 2, was continued to July 12.

Mr. Jahreiss' sister doesn't know her brother is on his way and John is planning many surprises for her.

The local man has a special joke to play upon his chum of 30 years ago. He is going to pretend to be a purchasing agent for a big concern. His chum is a manufacturer, and after Jahreiss gets him all excited about a big order, then he will reveal himself. "Thirty years is a long time," said Mr. Jahreiss this morning. "My sister won't know me. Now that I have made up my mind to go it will seem 80 years more before I get back."

R. A. KUNKEL RESIGNS FROM THE DALY BANK

He Will Devote Himself to the Business of an Auto Company.

Richard A. Kunkel, who, for 29 years, has been associated with the Daly banking interests, has resigned as assistant cashier of the Daly Bank and Trust company of this city to devote himself to the business of the Montana Auto and Garage company, of which he is half owner. Ralph Place will succeed Mr. Kunkel as first assistant cashier and former State Treasurer W. C. Mao will succeed Mr. Place as second assistant cashier. Mr. Kunkel will continue as a director of the bank.

Mr. Kunkel has been interested in the Montana Auto and Garage company since its organization in January, 1914. When the business was sold to C. V. Fulton last year the bank retained ownership of the building, which has recently been sold to auto company. Directors of the bank are Mr. Fulton, president; Mr. C. H. Brown, vice president; and C. H. Brown, secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Kunkel first entered the banking business in Montana at Butte in 1888 with Hope, Day & Co. The Brownlee bank in Butte and the Brownlee bank in Butte and maintained with that institution its various changes in the present.
