QUITS PULPIT FOR BIT IN VAUDEVILLE

Ohio Divine Abandons Vestments to Go Into Two a Day.

Zanesville, O.—From vestments to vaudeville. That's the jump just made by the Rev. Frank W. Gorman, pastor of the Congregational church here. He left for New York to open a seven weeks' engagement on a vaudeville circuit. In August he'll be back in his pulpit here. The Rev. Gorman's stage-specialty is singing.

The last time he played Broadway, literally, was between sermons. He came to the church here one year ago next month, preached his first sermon, went back to New York, finished the vaudeville engagement, and was in his pulpit here the following Sunday.

As a minister he has drawn great crowds here by his plain preaching and singing. In fact, he has increased attendance until the church has named a committee to plan an addition. Each Sunday evening for several weeks past when he sings as well as preaches—a city fireman has been stationed at the church to control the crowds.

The "singing person" was born in Plymouth, England, and worked as a shipwright until he was 21. He then studied for the ministry. He came to America seven years ago.

There is no finer institution in the world than the church, the Rev. Mr. Gorman believes. Her ministry is today based up with the higher interests of every form of life. Now and again one meets a "great swallower," but the man and file of the members of the ministry are broad minded, clearheaded fellows, he says.

The finest university he knows in America is "the street." Here he rubs shoulders with everyday men. He says he cannot afford to trim his sermons even if the official board threatens to trim his salary.
