ROOSEVELT FLAYS THE HALF-BAKED PATRIOTS

ordinate the actions of the country of which they were nominally citizens, the United States, to the needs of the country for which they cared, Germany.

Moral Treason.

"Now we are at war with Germany, yet many of these persons, supported, of course, by professional pacifists, continue to say that we are fighting against the cause for which we are fighting. This is moral treason to the Republic, and all who engage in it are in fact, although not in law, traitors who have no right longer to be treated as American citizens.

ors is that to attack America's allies, while we are at death grips with a peculiarly ruthless and brutal foe, or to champion that foe against our allies, or to apologize for that foe's infamous wrongdoing, is to be false to the cause of liberty and to the United States.

"There can be no half and half attitude in this war, and no honorable man can afford to take such an attitude. We are bound by every consideration of loyalty and good faith to our allies, and any opposition to them, and any aid given to their and our enemy, is basely dishonorable as regards our allies and treasonable as regards our own country."

Criminal Nonsense.

Colonel Roosevelt said that the claim that it was natural for American citizens of German origin to favor Germany was "nonsense, and criminal nonsense to boot," and added, "either a man is an American and nothing else or he is not an American at all. We are akin by blood and descent to most of the nations of Europe, but we are separate from all of them. We are a new and distinct nation, and we are bound always to give our whole-hearted and undivided loyalty to our flag, and in any international crisis to treat every foreign nation purely according to its conduct in that crisis. It is both weak and wicked to permit any of our citizens to hold dual or divided allegiance, and it is just as mischievous, just as un-American, to discriminate against any good American because of his birthplace, creed or parentage."

Elaborating on that point and protesting against the plan to exclude from American Red Cross units the Americans of German or Austrian parentage or descent, Colonel Roosevelt said that if he had been permitted to raise a military force for service in France many of his officers would have been chosen from among men of German parentage who were undoubtedly Americans.

Colonel Roosevelt severely arraigned those who seek to excuse the acts of Germany, "our embittered and venomous foe," by saying "we would be better off in like manner if we had the opportunity," and reviewed the history of the civil war in support of his contention that the utterance was "infamous falsity."

"Contrast the brutality shown towards women and children on the Lusitania, and scores of other ships, by the officially directed German submarines, with the Alabama's action 50 years ago," he continued. "Sensless never destroyed a vessel without providing for the safety of the passengers and crew. He turned his own officers out of their cabins to put in them the women and children of his foes, and once when he had 700 prisoners and a prize he allowed them to go in freedom on the vessel rather than to send them to a nearby port where there was yellow fever. Compare these actions with the methodical and organized brutality of the German military authorities in this war, and then brand with shame the American traitors who seek to aid Germany by asserting that we, if given the chance, would be guilty of atrocities like those she has committed."

As to Newspapers.

Touching on the matter of language Colonel Roosevelt declared that "we must have in this country but one flag, and for the speech of the people but one language, the English language." During the present war all newspapers published in German or in the speech of any of our foes should be required to publish, side by side with the foreign text, columns in English containing the exact translation of everything said in the foreign language. Ultimately this should be done with all newspapers that are published in foreign tongues in this country.

"Universal suffrage should be based on universal service in peace as well as war," said Colonel Roosevelt, in concluding his address. "Those who refuse to surrender the one should have no title to the enjoyment of the other. We stand for democracy of service; we are against privileges, therefore against the privilege which would escape service in war."

"We must fight with steadfast endurance until we win the peace of overwhelming victory for righteousness, and even while thus fighting we must prepare the way for the peace of industrial justice and the peace of industrial democracy, which are to come after, and to consecrate the war."

SEEKS FOOD BUT MISSES TRAIN

Detroit, Mich., July 4.—Harry Heilman, outsider of the Detroit Americans and food provider extraordinary, has notified Manager Jennings that the club will have to appoint a new quartermaster. When the team was on route from Boston to Philadelphia recently, Heilman—hatless and coatless—left the sleeper at New London to obtain lunches for his teammates. He missed his train. With only a small amount of money in his pocket, Heilman obtained a coat, collar and necktie. He proceeded to New York by boat and there borrowed enough money from a hotel clerk to get to Philadelphia.

CREDIT MANAGER GUEST OF BUTTE MERCHANTS

E. S. Gill of Seattle Tells of the Work of National Credit Men.

The Butte merchants were hosts at a dinner given at the Silver Bow club last night in honor of E. S. Gill, secretary and credit manager of the Seattle Produce association, who is on his way to Seattle from the meeting of the National Association of Credit Men held in Kansas City last week at which there were 1,340 delegates in attendance. Mr. Gill made a brief talk at the dinner, stating that it was necessary for the wholesaler and retailer to watch their credits more closely, due to the war and advances in the price of necessities. He stated that it takes double the amount of capital to run the same amount of business under the present conditions as it did 18 months ago. Mr. Gill explained a new system of credit which was endorsed by the national association at the meeting last week. The new system was to have the jobber sell to the retailer and have his credit accepted. The bank accepted the credit bill of the retailer at a lower rate of discount than it would accept his note. When the note falls due the retail purchaser either takes it up or arranges to have it carried over and the transaction is closed.
