MAKING CAMPAIGN FOR STATE SCHOOL

Committee Arrives in Butte to Boost for the University of Montana.
On the last lap of an intensive campaign for students for the University of Montana, Prof. W. L. Pope of the law department of the State university at Missoula and Dean A. W. Richter of the engineering department of the State college at Bozeman arrived in Butte today to interest the young people of the city in the advantages of the higher educational institutions of their own state.

There is considerable speculation as to the effect of the war on the state schools and this campaign has grown out of careful consideration on the part of the state board of education and the heads of institutions as to the question of the influence of the schools during the war period. Already about 100 from the State university and the State college have enlisted. Thirty from the State university have gone into the service of the United States army and navy prior to the close of school and more have gone during the vacation. Five of these are in the officers' training camp at the Presidio in San Francisco and seven are in the aviation service. The engineering and forestry regiments drew heavily on the departments of the state schools.

To Render Service.
Chancellor E. C. Elliott of the University of Montana is very desirous of securing additional attendance at the state schools for the coming season, according to Prof. Pope. The national council of defense in session at Washington recently declared that all young men not liable for military service under the draft and all young women would be rendering the best service possible by attending school and continuing their education.

The chancellor decided that the best policy for the Montana institutions to pursue is a vigorous one of improvement and enhancement. It is especially important at this time of excitement to prevent as many young people as possible from getting into what later may be termed a "blind alley" in their desire for more vigorous service.

The student campaign represented by the state editors who arrived in Butte today is the most comprehensive yet attempted by the educational forces of this state and every community will have been visited by the time school starts in the fall. The representatives will meet all those desiring information at the Thornton hotel.

A committee has been appointed from students and alumni of the higher educational institutions of the state who are living in Butte to assist in the campaign. The committee is: Clinton Bosker, chairman; Miss Gladys Hoffman, Greer McMillan, Miss Anna Rossiter, Lawrence White, Edwin R. Blinn and Miss Patricia O'Flynn.

CIRCUS DAY IN BUTTE FINDS SCORES ON WAY TO REALM OF "BIG TOP"

Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows Bring Variety of Wild Animals and Famous Group of Performers. Two Sessions Under Main Tent Today and Matinee on Sunday. Street Parade Better Than Usual. A Great Circus, All Agree.
The pink lemonade and the lure of the "big top" with its three sawdust rings take precedence in Butte today and tomorrow with over 5,000 adults and excitement-loving youngsters. The Hagenbeck-Wallace circus, with enough animals to teach more geography than a school room of books, is detained in South Butte near Harrison avenue, arriving here in three sections early this morning.

The afternoon parade, coming at the lunch hour of Butte's office workers, brought added hundreds of onlookers to the streets. It was the usual circus parade, with a few good novelties and some unusual displays of wild animals. Another departure from the usual was that the various bands made real music instead of a semblance of harmony.

Circuses, like armies, travel on their stomachs, so the first article of circus paraphernalia unloaded this morning was the big chef's cook stove. Butte food merchants profited. For the morning meal the circus employees required only the small total of 3,900 "flap jacks," called pancakes by the chef. The coffee was prepared in eight ten-gallon lots, colored with some five gallons of cream and sweetened with a full sack of sugar. The trifling of 250 dozen eggs was considered enough for the day's feed.

Putting up the big top at a circus is in itself a study in efficiency. A score of wagons roll and lumber up to various points of a prescribed area, dump their canvas rolls on the ground and leave again. A small army of men jerk at the ropes and unroll the sections of canvas, ropes are run hastily through metal eyes in the tenting, a signal is given and from the ground rises a veritable colossus of canvas, every pole and every guy rope in its place. There is no hesitating, no studying over detail. Everything is worked out by system of the "nth" magnitude so that when the final signal is given the mammoth tented building rises as one piece. Almost before the ropes are hitched down the animal wagons are filling under the outer tent.

The Hagenbeck-Wallace shows carry an entertaining assortment of the "beasts of the field and the fowls of the air." Camels from Africa, elephants from Africa and India, deer of all species from all parts of the globe, are there. Not the least interesting part of the animal collection are the 750 horses and ponies, many of them animals of unset value.

Keeping order among the employees of the circus must be in itself no small problem for the managers. The Turk and the Armenian work side by side; an Austrian gives a hand to an Italian who is securing a guy rope; the Britisher and German perform in the same arena of the animal collection for the circus, there is at least one from every country of importance on the earth.

WOMEN GALLANT IN FACE OF FIRE

Battalion Made Splendid Record in Battle With the Germans.
Petrograd, Friday, July 27.—When the Russian women's battalion, known officially as the "command of death," went into action against the Germans near Smorgon, July 25, they captured a number of women from whom it was learned for the first time that German women also were fighting on the battlefield in western Russia.

Ten wounded heroines of the women's battalion arrived in Petrograd today, leaving their commander, Vera Butskareff, and Marya Skrydloff, a daughter of Admiral Skrydloff, former commander of the Baltic fleet and minister of marine, in a hospital at Vitebsk.

Interviewed, the women said it was reported that of the 200 of the command who reached the front only 50 remained. Twenty were killed, eight were taken prisoner and all the rest were wounded.

"Several times," said one wounded girl, "we attacked the Germans. Especially memorable was our attack at Novospassky wood, near Smorgon, where the enemy hearing the voices of girls lost their nerve. The result was that many of them were killed, wounded or taken prisoner. Among the prisoners were a few women, from whom we learned for the first time that German women also were fighting."

"We did not feel the slightest fear of our personal safety. Our passion was to serve the fatherland. We advanced gallantly against the foe with laughter and song, our only unpleasant sentiments being when we first came to the corpses. Once, when replying to the enemy's severe rifle and machine gun fire, we discovered to our amazement that all our comrades in the neighboring trenches had treacherously fled, leaving us—a handful of women—to face the enemy alone."

PARIS IS BOMBARDED.
Berlin, July 28.—German airplanes last night dropped bombs on the railway stations and military establishments in Paris. The official statement announcing the raid on the French capital says that all the German airplanes returned.

CHOOSE A NEW NAME.
