WOULD CONSCRIPT EVERY FIT HORSE IN COUNTRY

New York, Aug. 1.—Conscription of horses for army service was advocated by W. Horace Hoskins, dean of the New York State Veterinary college at New York university, in a letter sent to Maj. Gerald E. Griffin, head of the army veterinary service at Washington. He urged conscription of every fit horse in the large cities, "without regard for private ownership or prize-winning ribbons."

Dean Hoskins declared that for every "seasoned" horse conscripted a "green" horse of equal value should be given in exchange. These also to be drafted into army service when they have become "seasoned."

MISDEMEANOR CHARGE.

Luther Taylor is to face a charge of offering elks teeth for sale, which is a misdemeanor under the state law. The complaint was issued out of the county attorney's office by Deputy County Attorney Frank L. Riser at the instance of Deputy Game Warden F. E. Pillier.

GET NEW KIDNEYS!

The kidneys are the most overworked organs of the human body, and when they fail in their work of filtering out and throwing off the poisons developed in the system, things begin to happen. One of the first warnings is pain or stiffness in the lower part of the back; highly colored urine; loss of appetite; indigestion, irritation, or even stone in the bladder. These symptoms indicate a condition that may lead to that dreaded and fatal malady, Bright's disease, for which there is said to be no cure. You can almost certainly find immediate relief in GOLD MEDAL Hazlett's Oil Capsules. For more than 200 years this famous preparation has been an unfailing remedy for all kidney, bladder and urinary troubles. Get it at any drug store, and if it does not give you almost immediate relief, your money will be refunded. Be sure you get the GOLD MEDAL brand. None other genuine. In boxes, three sizes.

FISHERMEN PLAY TRICK ON BREEN

Use His Hired Men to Clean Record Mess From His Ranch Streams.

Attorney Peter Breen of this city thinks he is doing very well when he invokes a number of his Butte friends to take the limit from his well-stocked streams on the Rock Creek ranch, feed the hungry motorists and in general entertain them for the day, but when they take his highly-paid farm hands from their important business on the irrigation ditches and use them to clean the record mess, he feels he has a lock coming. And his plaint is directed principally at Karl P. Krueger, foreman of the West Colusa mine. "Peter" tells his story, divested of the trimmings which while away idle moments for Montana attorneys in local courtrooms.

"Krueger and his party," Pete tells, "troubled the fish two at a time from the stream. They congratulated me on the good sport which was found on my ranch and I turned away to take a look around the ranch for a few hours while they were enjoying themselves. I was glad to see them having a good time at my expense as I always am. But judge of my surprise and consequent wrath when I returned and found three or four of my hired men cleaning the mess while the Butte men tested some of my best streams in the shade of the back porch of my home. There is a limit even for a Butte attorney."

"However," and Pete included several others in his recital of the story as he slowly punctuated his remarks with "ands" and other prepositional interjections. "I am going to have these men give free testimony about the value of the fishing grounds on my ranch when a party of eastern sports comes out this fall with the intention of purchasing. If Krueger and his party only tell about how many fish they caught the eastern men will surely bite, and in that way I may be able to recoup my losses."

Mr. Breen says he would be willing to have the men arrested for catching more than the limit and then defend them in court at his own price to even matters up.

With Mr. Krueger on the trip, which was a very enjoyable one, was Eddie Fogarty who supplied the automobile. Walter Kelly and J. Mulloney. The returning Butte fishermen are delighted with their experience on "Peter's" farm.

WAS PROPER FOR HIM TO BORROW ROOMMATE'S SUIT

Joe McLendon, colored, was acquitted before Justice of the Peace Joseph Mitchell yesterday afternoon on a charge of taking a suit of clothes alleged to be the property of his roommate, Amos Pannell, colored. The trouble arose when McLendon desired to attend a social and did not have garments adequate to the class of the "function." Pannell had a good suit that did not seem to be in use. Pannell, who professed at the trial yesterday that he, too, had a social engagement for the same evening, was considerably surprised to see his suit grading the form of Joe McLendon. The court held the evidence insufficient in that Pannell did not see McLendon take the suit nor did he prove that it was his property and dismissed the case.

MEETING MARKS UNUSUAL PRECEDENT IN CONFLICT

London.—Commenting on the meeting of British and German delegates at The Hague to consider questions relating to prisoners of the law journal says: "It has always been understood hitherto that the state of war operates a complete severance of all relations between the belligerents except that of pure force. This is the explanation of the common practice, followed universally in the present war, whereby the belligerents deal with each other through the intervention of neutral powers. The present meeting is, it is suggested, without precedent in the history of international law. Its importance lies in the fact that, where the belligerents seem as if we are at last becoming emancipated from the chains of the old-fashioned diplomacy which almost deliberately made it impossible for belligerents fairly and squarely to talk out their causes of friction face to face. The new departure is one from which much may be hoped in other directions."

"A MERE DUTY" SAYS GIRL WHO KILLED FIRST GERMAN

Slays Teuton Officer as He is About to Kill Her. Asserts Only Sensation Was That of Ridding Nation of an Enemy and Declares any Russian or American Girl Could Do the Same.

Petrograd, Aug. 1.—The story of the first girl in the woman's battalion who killed a German has just been received here. The story was told by the heroine herself as she lay in the hospital, wounded. She is Mary Gontoulova, an 18-year-old high school student. Mary is tall and graceful, her blonde hair, now short, giving her the appearance of a handsome boy. Laughing at her wounds, she showed her brilliant white teeth.

Never Been Afraid.

"I saw soldiers in Petrograd demanding not to be sent to the front," she said, "and I realized that the country needed every man and woman who was not a coward. Then the woman's battalion was formed and I joined immediately. I have never regretted it. I have never been afraid and I ask only the privilege to bear a gun against the enemy again. I must fill the place of men who will not fight."

"Going to war is not too much for a woman. I was always strong. It will be a woman. I wondered if it would be too fatiguing. Once at the front, I forgot whether I was a man or a woman. I was just a soldier. The soldiers, the real brave soldiers, treated me like a comrade. Only the cowards feared."

Killed German Officer.

"After the first attack I was attached to a machine gun, carrying ammunition to an advanced position under the fire of hidden German machine guns. We were advancing, and constantly in danger of capture by the Germans. On one trip we nearly captured a German officer. I saw what I thought was a German officer lying on the ground. I went into action a fortnight after our arrival at the front, under heavy German fire. Given the order to advance, we rushed out of our trenches."

U. S. JACKIES OPEN CLUB IN ENGLAND

Base American Footies in British Waters. Aug. 1.—Authorization to spend all the money necessary properly to equip their new clubhouse with athletic apparatus and musical instruments has just been received by the American sailors from the navy department in Washington. The news was received with the greatest enthusiasm by the men. It gives them what amounts to carte blanche in the matter of providing for their shore amusements over here.

MAJOR TALKS WITH THE UNION CHIEFS

He Gets Their Promise That There is No Trouble Planned Here.

Acting under orders of the war department, Major Sargent, in command of the first provisional battalion of the Montana troops now in Butte, last evening called a meeting in the county attorney's office for the purpose of getting a definite idea of their intentions concerning order in the city. Tom Campbell was the spokesman for the men. Sheriff J. K. O'Rourke also was at the conference.

Without trying to criticize their action, the major told the union leaders the war department desired an explicit description of the Butte situation and a chance for trouble following the Little Lyncing. The government desires to act to prevent deportations or any other disturbance growing out of the Butte labor trouble, the men were told.

Campbell, it is said, pledged that the members of his union will resort to no violence. Campbell and his associates promised to help Major Sargent keep the situation within the bounds of law and order. Sheriff O'Rourke told the major that he believed the labor leaders would see to it that their word was made good. It was understood that the war department had announced itself ready to send in more troops to protect Butte from an outbreak.

ELKS DONATE SHARE TO THE NATIONAL WAR FUND

The Butte lodge of Elks, at a meeting last evening, enthusiastically pledged itself to donate $500, its quota of the $1,000,000 which will be raised by the Elks of the United States for war relief. $1 member is expected to contribute $1 and there are 502 members in the Butte lodge.

AWAY DOWN OR IN THE CLOUDS

Moods, Capricious and Frequent. Control Capital These Days.

The Post's Washington Bureau. Washington, D. C., Aug. 3.—Moods as variable as the most capricious weather vane control the United States capital these days. Officialism is either clear up or clear down in the dumps. Just now it is in the dumps, but then it will emerge in good time and the variations of optimism and pessimism will go right on.

One day the kaiser is licked to a standstill. The next day the allies haven't got a look-in. One day the United States is the savior of the situation. The next day the United States is plunging headlong toward bankruptcy.

Alternating optimism and pessimism are declared by military sharps to be inseparable from a look-in. One day and if that be the case Washington just now is giving a fine example of how a great capital ought to act in war times. Certainly as a barometer of fickleness it is there with the goods.

Many persons seemed to take it for granted when Uncle Sam entered the war game the war was over. That was when the first burst of optimism hit the capital. Then came reports that the U-boats were exceeding their anticipated toll and the capital got gloomy. Then congress appropriated $540,000,000 for a motor air fleet and once again the kaiser was licked to a frazzle. Then Russia went to pieces and the weather vane indicated that the cold north wind of pessimism had again hit the capital. So it has been—optimism one day and pessimism the next, pessimism one day and optimism the next.

Strange to say, the greatest and most lasting spell of pessimism has been caused, not by any actual condition, but by the mistake of a telegrapher. The European correspondent of a big New York daily called to his paper that the Teuton submarines were making a steady record of 1,500-1,600 tons of shipping destroyed a month. This "war-time shipping" and it required only a few minutes for the sharps to figure out that if the rate kept up it would only be a little while until all the tonnage of the allies had been sent to Davy Jones' locker.

The next day the correspondent came across with a correction. He had stated in his dispatch that the submarine toll was 400,000 tons a month. The accommodating telegrapher had simply added 1,000,000 tons to the correction and insisted on getting real pessimistic.

Before the effect of this false had worn away, Secretary McAdams went to congress with his request for $1,000,000,000 more for the war—expenditures of the war. When the gloom went right straight up in the air. They asserted that Uncle Sam certainly must be finding himself "up against it" or so much money would not be demanded and they refused to be comforted.

Pessimism and optimism, as illustrated at the nation's capital these days, are purely psychological and emotional. There is no real substantial ground upon which to predicate the belief, first, that the kaiser is licked or, secondly, that Uncle Sam will not come out the victor in the end.

NOTED MEXICAN GENERAL UNDER SERIOUS CHARGES

Mexico City, Aug. 2.—Charges of breach of discipline of the army and of conduct tending to embarrass the foreign policy of Mexico have been made against Gen. General Merigo asserts in reply to the charges that at the time the statement was made he had resigned from the army and his resignation had been accepted, and that he considered his utterance patriotic rather than likely to involve Mexico to her detriment.
