BOYS ARE HAPPY AT CAMP LEWIS

Phil Levy Visits Butte Contingent and Finds Conditions Splendid.

Manager Phil Levy of the Ansonia Amusement company, who has returned from a business visit to Seattle and Tacoma and who visited Camp Lewis and met the Butte boys there, is of the opinion that there is no real necessity for local subscriptions for a gymnasium and gymnasium equipment for the Butte boys at the camp. He thinks more attention should be paid to supplying the boys with tobacco and other little delicacies not included in the regular bill of fare, also sweaters, mittens and other garments to keep them warm during the winter.

"In the first place," said Mr. Levy today, "the boys are drilled from early morning to late at night. They have what might be called an open air gymnasium in the bill of fare, also the exercises through which they are drilled daily. In the second place they do not know at what time they may be shifted from Camp Lewis. What are they going to do then with the gymnasium and gymnasium equipment? The government cannot be bothered with the transportation of such things and the boys would have to leave them behind. I realize that the ladies and others who are interested in this matter are patriotically inclined and are acting from the best motives, but I believe that their energies should be directed to an end which will prove of more pleasure and more real service to the soldiers.

"I have had the pleasure of visiting at Camp Murray, which is the volunteer camp near Tacoma, and Camp Lewis, where the conscripted men are. After seeing the two camps and noting the morale at each place I have come to the conclusion that any Butte man who is liable to be drafted should not await for conscription but should volunteer at once.

"I met most of the Butte boys at Camp Lewis and they are all happy and contented," one officer said to me: "If we had soldiers in every part of the army like the boys that come from Butte there would be no qualms of doubt about the result of the war. The Butte boys are strong, cheerful and willing."

"Each of the boys at the camp has three suits of underwear, three pairs of socks and all the shirts they require. Their socks are never darned as the officers say that the man cannot march on darned socks. Fifteen hundred carpenters are still at work in Camp Lewis, which is really a big town, and there is more lumber piled there than in the largest lumber yard in the nation.

"As regards the food given to the boys there, I was told that the week I was there chicken had been the menu on two days, and I saw with my own eyes a splendid roast pork and sweet potatoes on the day I happened to be at the camp."

Mr. Levy was accompanied on his tour of the camps by Harry Leonard, the general manager of the Goldwyn Film corporation of New York.

THE NEW WORLD IN THE TRENCHES

So British Papers Refer to Entrance of U. S. Army into Active Service.

London, Oct. 29.—The entrance of units of the American army into active service on the western front, although overshadowed by the Austro-German invasion of Italy, receives prominent notice in the newspapers as a much more than picturesque event. The Daily News says:

"It would be idle presumptuously to expect Germany in the intoxication of her Italian victory to appreciate its full meaning. This does not alter the facts. Germany has called in the new world to redress the balance of the old. The balance will be redressed."

The Daily Express, remarking "On American Energy," says it bodes ill for Germany and gives added certainty that victory, however delayed, is assured. The Graphic says:

"The descendants of the embattled farmers of Concord have fired a shot which, like that of the minute man, will be heard around the world. The advent of the United States has more than made up for Russia's temporary weakening. It should have a steady influence, in view of the blow at Italy, and should be recalled whenever there is a tendency toward pessimism."

JUSTICE COURT APPEAL THROWN OUT OF COURT

Judge Sustains Contention That Lower Court Had No Jurisdiction.

Three cases were set for hearing before Judge McClellan today, but not one came to trial.

In the case of Charles F. Purdy against Sarah Shack, the action was dismissed at plaintiff's costs, while the case of Mrs. Stanley Babcock against the Eagle Loan Office was dismissed as settled.

In the case of E. J. Brosseau against Dr. Hule Pock, a justice court appeal, a jury had been selected, but before any evidence had been submitted Attorney M. F. Canning for the defendant moved to dismiss for want of jurisdiction. The plaintiff brought suit against the defendant for $128.50, while the defendant had a counter claim for $560 for Chinese herbs furnished the plaintiff. Attorney Canning took the ground that inasmuch as the counter claim was for over $200 the justice court which heard the case was without jurisdiction and therefore the district court was without jurisdiction under the circumstances. The motion was sustained and the case ordered dismissed. Attorney Joseph H. Griffin represented the plaintiff. In order to get the case back into court a new suit will have to be brought in the district court.

WHAT U. S. IS DOING TO PROTECT TROOPS

Every Possible Precaution is Used to Defeat Efforts of U-Boats.

BY BASIL M. MANLY. Washington, D. C.—Despite the Kaiser's lurking U-boats, American troops are crossing the Atlantic in unprecedented numbers with remarkably few casualties.

The fact that only one troop ship has been sunk, although there have been transports on the ocean every day since mid-June, serves to bring the government's precautions into bold relief.

For four months German U-boats never ceased their efforts to sink an American transport, although the July 4 announcement of the attack on a convoyed fleet was the only one made public. This is by no means the only attack that has taken place.

There is every reason to believe U-boats have been taken from the British sealanes to patrol the French lanes, over which American transports steam. This may account for the falling off in sinkings of British merchant ships.

Although the United States transport Antilles sank in five minutes, 167 of the 237 on board were saved, and there is reason to believe a large number of those who died were killed by the explosion and not by drowning. If in peace times a liner had sunk in five minutes, hardly a person would have been saved.

What these precautions are cannot be told in too great detail, but the main reliance are life-saving jackets, life-boats and life-saving rafts.

The life-saving jacket, which has supplanted the old life-preserver, is a part of the regular equipment of the troops and sailors while on board. As soon as the submarine zone is entered every man aboard puts on his life jacket and keeps it on until he is safe ashore. The life-saving rafts are the last great reliance if a ship is torpedoed. They do not have to be lowered alongside, but lie on the decks and can be cut loose even when the ship is sinking.

To avoid every possibility of a der in case the ship is struck the constant boat drills—before breakfast in the morning, afternoon and at night.

And, best of all, over the whole marine area there is always an destroyer or patrol within a few miles' steaming distance, ready to answer the first signal of an attack. In times of peace ships and passengers might be aloft for a day or even days without sighting a boat, but now the patrol of the zone is so thorough that speedy rescue is assured.

MAYBE HE DID.

The couple had stopped before a brilliantly jeweled window of a store in Fifth avenue, near Thirty-seventh street, New York. The girl, peering altogether a treat to the passing multitude—eye-passing, but hesitating so—was gowned charmingly in something which clung to her attractively, pardonably so.

"Oh, Harold!" she exclaimed, "you know that knee vanity boots becoming all the rage?"

"So I see," replied the unassuming Harold.

"You horrid thing! You do not!"

POLICE AT WORK ON FRENCH ROYALIST PLOT

Paris, Oct. 29.—The police search for evidence concerning a supposed royalist plot was continued today. Leon Daudet, editor of the royalist organ, L'Action Francaise, whose offices were searched yesterday, was not permitted to leave his house this morning and a policeman was posted at the door to see that he did not receive reporters. In the residences of M. Daudet and Charles Maurras, co-director of the newspaper, further documents and miscellaneous weapons were found.

M. Daudet ridiculed the whole affair, saying all he could do was to thank the government for giving his newspaper and himself such a splendid free advertisement.

DENIES MOTION FOR A CHANGE OF TRIAL PLACE

Minor Matters Heard by Lynch Before Taking Up Law Calendar.

Before taking up his law and motion calendar this morning Judge J. J. Lynch rendered his decision in the case of Donald Burns against McClellan Hedge, which he had under advisement. It was a motion for a change of place of trial to Madison county. The motion was denied.

In the suit of Marie L. King against Kittle Brasher and others, the motion to set aside the default was continued for one week.

In the case of the state ex rel P. H. Hogan against Joseph Mitchell and others, the motion to set aside the judgment of a justice court was taken under advisement. Attorney Percy Napton represented the plaintiff and Attorney Ed Fitzpatrick appeared for the defendant.

The judge announced that he would make another call of his trial calendar next Monday morning.

TRIESTE SAFE AND THE AUSTRIANS REJOICE

Zurich, Oct. 29.—Austrian hopes of a "speedy and honorable peace" have been raised by the Austro-German successes on the Italian front, the president of the reichstag said in an address to the deputies, as quoted in Vienna dispatches. He admitted there had been great anxiety in regard to Trieste which had now been removed.

The report of the proceedings in parliament adds that the German and Polish deputies arose and cheered the emperor and the army, implying that the Czechs did not join in the demonstration. The safety of Trieste seems to be the chief cause of rejoicing in Austria.

JACK PICKFORD PASSES STIFF INITIATION IN "GHOST HOUSE"

JACK PICKFORD IN "THE GHOST HOUSE" AT THE RIALTO THEATER.

Jack Pickford, the clever young brother of Mary Pickford, who has forged his own way to the top of the motion picture business, has been so busy making photoplays that he never had time for college, although he is a graduate of a famous military academy. But in many of his pictures he has had ample opportunity to taste the joys and trials of a student's life. For instance, in "The Ghost House," in which he is appearing with Louise Huff at the Rialto theater tonight and tomorrow only, he is seen as a college freshman, undergoing the most violent forms of initiation. For the first proof of his courage he is sent to spend an entire night in a "haunted" house—which, by the way, he finds to be occupied by two extremely attractive young ladies, who take him for a housebreaker. The second night he is tied in a chair, gagged and his eyes securely bandaged. The way in which he manages to wriggle his chair near enough to the table to knock the telephone from it to the floor and crawl to the revolver with his hands still tied is extremely amusing and clever.
