SUGAR HOARDING SERIOUS MENACE

Montana's Supply Soon Will Be Exhausted—No More is in Sight.

to buy only so much sugar as they need and to conserve it in the kitchen. Pastries and cakes calling for large quantities of sugar should be dispensed with.

Sugar Cards in Montana.

As an illustration of the gravity of the sugar situation, in one city in this state, sugar cards have been issued to every family and a complete check upon all the sugar they purchase is thus made. Mr. Lacey sounds his warning to the people of Butte today after a conference with State Food Administrator Alfred Atkinson, who has just returned from Washington where he was in consultation with National Food Administrator Hoover.

In Washington.

Professor Atkinson told Mr. Lacey that the sugar shortage is so acute in the east that the grocers of Washington, D. C. limit sugar sales to two pounds per customer and sell no sugar whatever on Friday or Saturday of each week.

"If the people of Butte do not use sugar sparingly, it is probable that we will have no stock of sugar at all by the end of the month," said Mr. Lacey, who emphasizes that sugar is not a luxury but a necessity. He said that the government is doing its utmost to conserve it, but that it is a matter of time before the supply will be exhausted. He said that the government is doing its utmost to conserve it, but that it is a matter of time before the supply will be exhausted.

Combinations Forbidden.

The food administration has forbidden the practice in which the dealer compels the purchase of any commodity along with others for which there is a heavy demand, on the ground that such practice is likely to lead to the purchase of more food than customers really want and is therefore wasteful.

The Statement.

The statement issued by the food administration follows: "The sale of one or more food commodities on condition that the purchaser shall buy one or more other food commodities from the seller is prohibited as a combination sale within the meaning of this ruling."

Plan Was Abused.

"The dealer is not required to make combination sales of sugar and corn meal, but may do so as a concession," Mr. Lacey said.

No Profiteering.

Mr. Lacey declared that there is no profiteering on sugar, adding that without the food administration having things in hand, sugar would today be selling for 25 or 35 cents per pound.

ASKING DAMAGES FOR FALSE ARREST

Gabriel Ledwisch today brought suit against George Merz for $2,500 damages for false arrest. In the complaint, which was filed by Attorney Harry Meyer, it is alleged that the defendant arrested the plaintiff Nov. 14 last on a charge of petty larceny. It is claimed that the defendant acted maliciously in the matter.

SLEAUGHTER ON ITALIAN LINE

back on the Italian right wing in an effort to turn the wind and cut off the army from its line of communication along the Piave. Now came one of the bloodiest struggles of the war, which went on all last night and today with a steady succession of attack and counter attack.

Impetuous Bravery.

What the outcome will be cannot be foreseen, but the Italian arms have again covered themselves with glory and have snatched back victory, when it was hanging in the balance. Even the enemy yields tribute to Italian valor for prisoners; their forces are surprised at the resistance met and disconcerted by the impetuous bravery of the Italian troops.

Limit to Endurance.

In fact, it is not denied that there is a limit to human endurance in these circumstances and that the Italian troops, which are fighting with such heroic bravery may have to fall back to more secure positions, but the possibility of this is diminishing with every hour that the resistance continues. Reinforcements might yet save the day, but it is under no circumstances that the Italians are fighting their battles single-handed and that the allied reinforcements are not represented anywhere on the fighting line.

The Enemy's Plans.

It is believed the center that the enemy is throwing the best force. The Italian line has become so solid that the enemy is not positive things have any further possible planning to bring up his heavy guns beyond the Tagliamento to renew his efforts in the spring. He has an authority that Napoleon regarded the Piave as good for only one purpose and not as a line of resistance for permanent operation. If the same view were held valid now both the eastern and northern Italian positions would ultimately have to be shifted greatly as the present operations develop.

ITALIAN ATTACKS PAUL IS GERMAN STATEMENT

Berlin, Nov. 24 (via London).—Italian attacks against the Austro-German positions west of the Brenta river and between the Brenta and Piave rivers yesterday failed, the German war office announced today.

GERMAN THRUSTS AT ASIAGO REPULSED

Rome, Nov. 24.—Powerful thrusts which were carried out yesterday by the Austro-Germans after heavy artillery preparation on the Italian mountain front from the Asiago plateau to the Brenta river all failed, the Italian war office announced today.

BUSY SESSION IN CRIMINAL COURT

Mehmet Sentence Postponed. Potter Given Not Less Than Two Years.

The time for the imposing of sentence of Hassan Mehmet, found guilty of murder in the second degree and the punishment left to the court, was continued by Judge Dwyer this morning for one week at the request of Attorney T. J. Walker, counsel for the defendant. The time for plea in the case of Michael Sullivan, charged with murder, was continued for one week.

Hand-to-Hand Fighting.

Hand-to-hand fighting occurred at positions below the road, but the Germans finally were forced to withdraw. Dugouts lighted by electricity were found in the chain of defenses along the highway. By 6:10 o'clock in the evening the Irish troops had crossed both sides of the Cambrai-Bapaume highway and taken a stand south of the British.

Tanks Led Infantry.

The troops which captured Flequeres and Cantaining encountered hard resistance at the former place the first day. Tanks led the infantry, but the Germans, with the assistance of heavy guns, held out the whole of Tuesday in the face of strong attack. Wednesday morning the British forced the Germans from the village after taking their guns.

the Germans with such fury that the latter were compelled to desert their machine guns and abandon the hill and many of them were shot down as they fled northward along the canal. A large number of prisoners were captured. Meanwhile, German machine guns on the eastern side of the canal were firing much trouble and as soon as the high bank was captured British engineers began building bridges over the waterway in order to afford a crossing to the infantry. They undertook to have these bridges completed by 2 o'clock and with a remarkable piece of work the task was accomplished. Previously they had repaired a causeway in the same vicinity and the troops were able to get over the canal to the eastern bank. The Irish infantry was then advancing northward on both sides of the canal, with the main Cambrai-Bapaume highway as their immediate objective. During the afternoon the Irish were held up temporarily because of the shortage of ammunition near a sunken road, southwest of Graincourt, where the Germans were established in considerable force. The ammunition came up and the British charged forward again in the evening because the resistance south of the Cambrai-Bapaume highway. Hand-to-Hand Fighting. By 6:10 o'clock in the evening the Irish troops had crossed both sides of the Cambrai-Bapaume highway and taken a stand south of the British. Wednesday the British pushed forward with support of artillery. Moeuvres was strongly held, but the Irish stormed the defense with bombs and logs. Here they came up against a heavy barricade which they took with the bayonet and for a time drove the Germans out of the village. In the afternoon a German counter attack from the east side of the canal was smashed by machine gun and rifle fire. Later the German artillery opened up and heavily shelled the trenches south of Moeuvres. Thursday morning the Irish were holding most of Moeuvres and the east bank of the canal. In the afternoon the Germans after hand-to-hand fighting through the streets and among the houses forced the British to withdraw to the southern outskirts. This worked the Irish to an early hour and north. In the Graincourt section, on the right of the Irish, remarkable work
