Mareness Beckwith made three year proof on his homestead Tuesday.

Vinc Fuqua left this week on another trip to Wyoming where he has purchased a bunch of cattle for his firm.

Miss Persie Ellis, the progressive candidate for superintendent of schools, has been on the sick list the past week.

Mrs. A. J. Speelman and family left last week for the western coast where they expect to make their home during the fall and winter.

M. W. Atwood and Lou Gass of Belle Fourche returned to their homes Monday after having spent several days in this section visiting old time friends.

R. C. Price, Wm. Hammond, Mr. and Mrs. James Rishor and daughter Cyndia and Wm. Francisco of the Pinele section were among the witnesses in the McCrorey case Saturday.

T. J. Martin, who has been on the sick list for the past three weeks, is somewhat improved at this time and his friends hope that it won't be long before he is back to his former health.

Judson Cory, foreman of the Eagle office is spending the week out in the southern country soaking up some of the free Fallon county ozone and also assisting with some road surveying work.

Tom McCrorey of near Pinele who was brought before Justice Dworshak's court last Saturday for a hearing on the charge of impersonating an officer was bound over to the district court for trial.

Wm. Mowbray returned this week from a visit at his old home in Illinois. While away Billy took in the sights at many of the larger cities and reports that the effects of the European war are noticeable in those sections and the prices on nearly everything are advancing daily.

The primary election Tuesday passed off pretty quietly, and it is expected that not more than a half vote, if that many, was cast. It is going to take some time for the voters to get educated to the new law and the chances are that by that time, several changes in the law will have been made. In Fallon county there was not much opposition on the various tickets, consequently those from the outlying districts did not take much interest in the election.

If the town council wants to make a "hit" with the general public in Ekalaka they can do no better than to pass an ordinance prohibiting the running at large upon the public streets of animals that are belled. Complaints are being made every day in regard to the continuous day and night performance by some of the bell tollers. It would seem to us that the owners of these animals would at least put the "nix" on the bells, because if they do not, they will wake up some morning to find an ordinance in effect prohibiting the animals from running at large at all.

Doc Latham, the Ford salesman, doesn't ever overlook any opportunity to give his favorite make of cars a big boost. Doc journeyed over here from Camp Crook about a week ago and while in the midst of one of his enthusiastic speeches on the merits of the Ford cars, happened to make the wager that he had a Ford that could walk right up the Conger hill, on high, in fact just eat up the dust in one jump and if necessary stop along the road and harvest cherries. Now, there happened at that time to be a bunch of the local sports around when Doc was making these assertions and they P. D. Q. planked down an even one hundred bones that no Ford in Doc's territory had the get-up to make the trip on high. As a result, last Sunday about twenty auto loads from town and several from Camp Crook went out to the big hill to see the climb made. Paul Chuning took the seat of his Ford runabout and made the climb, and from the fact that the Ekalaka boys lost all their cash is evident that the job was done and done right. The climbing of the Conger hill on high is going to be a big boost for Doc and his cars because there has been a number of skeptical ones on the climbing ability of Fords ever since that company invaded this territory.

Obituary

James Albert Warren, one of the homesteaders west of town and well known in this section, passed away Wednesday noon in Ekalaka, death being due to heart failure. Mr. Warren was feeling in the best of spirits when he left his home in the morning to come to Ekalaka to find out the election returns, but the attack came after he had been feeling ill for some hours. The body was shipped east to his old home in Menominee, Wis. last evening, his sister, Mrs. Sarah Waldo of Kansas City, Colo., has made this request. Frank Campbell, a life-long friend of Mr. Warren, accompanied the remains to their final resting place. No other near relatives other than his sister survive, and to her the sympathy of this entire community is extended.

The public schools of Ekalaka will open the 1914-5 term on Tuesday, September 8th. During the coming term all grades up to and including the 10th will be taught. The following teachers have been secured: Oliver L. Baxter, of Danville, Ind., Marie Comfort, Annette Leonard and Cecil Markin, of Ekalaka.

Mat Carey left the fore part of the week for Anaconda, this state where he will attend the annual meeting of the State Firemen's convention.

Schyler W. Spriggs made three-year proof on his homestead Wednesday of this week, Lawrence Peabody and W. D. Wood acting as his witnesses.
