Ismay Journal: The well drillers at work on the artesian well at the head of Baker street struck flowing water yesterday at a depth of 820 feet. The flow at present is 40 gallons a minute. It is the intention of the promoters of the enterprise to continue the drilling down another 50 feet. It is reported that another artesian well may be sunk at the head of Main street for the benefit of the residents on that thoroughfare.

The county treasurer's office has been busy the past week sending out annual reminders that the county taxes are now due and payable. Taxes become delinquent Nov. 30th.

Dr. Banks, who was to have given a temperance lecture at the I. O. O. F. hall tomorrow evening, will be unable to appear as the bad condition of the roads makes it impossible for him to get back to the railroad in time to meet his engagements.

The ladies of the Rebeckah lodge will give a box social at the I. O. O. F. hall on Friday evening, October 15. Lots will be drawn for the baskets which will be sold for $1.00 each. The proceeds will go to the Odd Fellows orphan fund. Everybody is invited and a good time is assured. If there are a sufficient number who wish to dance after the "eats" the lower hall will be opened and a dance given.

Baker Fallonite: Uncle Tom Sigler, who is well known to every soul in Fallon county came to town with Commissioner Farwell from Sykes, Monday. He says Farwell kept the car in the road even if it did go sideways most of the time on account of the muddy roads. He will stick around for a few days to see that the board of county commissioners get through their work properly. His connection with the court house in the past has made him feel a personal interest in having matters properly attended to.

Montana Champion

John M. Hiner of Reed Point, Stillwater county, who won the automobile at the state fair for the best six sheafs and a bushel of threshed grain from the same field is only 19 years old. Young Hiner planted the turkey red wheat himself and did the cultivating, harvesting and threshing. It ran 64 pounds to the bushel, and the lad, encouraged by the success that surpassed his somewhat timid hopes, now declares that his hat is in the ring for next year and the whole world will have to go some if it beats what he knows can be done on the soil of the 'treasure state.—Yellowstone Journal.

Alias Summons

In the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of Montana, In and For the County of Fallon

Henry Moore, Plaintiff, vs. Clem McIntire and T. T. Munhall, Defendants.

The State of Montana to the above named defendants, greeting: You are hereby summoned to answer the complaint in this action which is filed in the office of the clerk of this court, a copy of which is herewith served upon you, and to file your answer and serve a copy thereof upon the plaintiff's attorney within twenty days after the service of this summons, exclusive of the day of service; and in case of your failure to appear or answer, judgment will be taken against you by default, for the relief demanded in the complaint.

This action is brought upon the following cause of action, namely: to recover upon a certain promissory note made, executed and delivered by the defendants, Clem McIntire and T. T. Munhall, on November 1st, 1913, due November 1st, 1914, interest at 12 per cent per annum, which said note was for the sum of Two Hundred Twenty-four and 10-100 Dollars ($224.10); and plaintiff seeks an attachment against the property of the defendants within the county of Fallon, State of Montana, and particularly against the northeast quarter of section eighteen, in township ten north of range sixty-one east, and the southeast quarter of section seven, in Township Ten north of Range Sixty-one East M. P. Meridian being the property of the defendant, T. T. Munhall; for a more particular statement of the said cause of action, reference is hereby made to the verified complaint, affidavit for attachment, and all the files in said action now on file with the clerk of said court.

Witness my hand and seal of said Court this 7th day of October, A. D. 1915.
(Seal) RALPH KEENEZ, Clerk.
Edwin F. Fisher,
Attorney for Plaintiff.

Fire Laddies Inspect

The Fire Department turned out as per schedule this morning every man who was in town reporting except two, who had been excused. A systematic inspection of all the business houses in town was made. All chimneys and stove pipe connections were thoroughly inspected, only three being condemned. Conditions were found much better than anticipated and if the business men make the repairs and clean up the rubbish as recommended, the town, so far as the business section is concerned may be said to be in the best of condition for winter. Chief Mat Carey and two assistants are inspecting the residence section this afternoon. Notices will be sent out to all those whose premises need attention and a certain time allowed for the work to be done after which another inspection will be made. One location for a new well was selected and two or three more will be decided upon soon, when work on the wells will be started. The next thing to be done will be a general overhauling of the apparatus which will take place next week.

Another Oil Company

The finding of gas wells at Havre and Baker and discovery of oil has started a number of companies into the field for active operation. Several companies are already at work and yesterday another company filed articles of incorporation with Secretary of State Alderson.

The latest is the Treasurer State Oil and Gas company of Miles City, which names its capital stock at $1,500,000 and says that $1,000 have been subscribed by the following who are named as directors for the first six months.

R. E. Kennedy, J. W. Warren, Chas. I. Bachelier, C. R. Tisor all of Miles City and George Grant of Baker.—Miles City Star.

Keep the Colt Growing

To produce good draft horses means careful attention from the time a colt leaves its mother. Weaning time is at hand, and the man who anticipates an 1800-pound horse from his sucking colt must be careful in keeping that youngster growing every day. True it will require some extra labor and time to look after him, but the additional gains and development will be sufficient recompense for the trouble.

If possible, it is well to tie up the colts for a few days until they have forgotten their mothers. This gives you an opportunity to halter break them while young and give special attention to their feed. A good sized lot or pasture where they are off by themselves will give them plenty of chance to exercise and play.

Provide good, clean hay, and gradually start them on oats. Usually the colt has acquired the taste for oats during the summer while with its mother, and for the colt crushed or rolled oats are more valuable than whole oats. A little bran mixed in makes a splendid tonic and a conditioner as well. About one pound of grain each 100 pounds of live weight makes a good ration. Regularity of feed is essential. A colt's stomach is small and will hold a limited amount of food at one time, hence the necessity of feeding often becomes apparent. Kindness in handling the colt is an important factor in his early education.

Special attention must be given to the care of the colt's feet, for oftentimes there may be an abnormal growth of the hoof, too long on either the toe or the side. In many cases this results in faulty action. Trimming and rasping these abnormal parts once a month or every six weeks will help to remedy any defects that might otherwise result.

The first year is the critical period of the colt's life, and to make him develop into the horse you expect will necessitate careful attention and proper feed.

Montana produces good horses and many more should be produced for the demand in the next decade for good drafters will be increased. Every farm should supply its own horse power and produce some surplus besides.—J. C. Taylor, Custer County Agriculturist.

Inform the Editor

One of the most difficult of the editor's jobs is to get facts about births, marriages and deaths. People seem to think he ought to know all these things by intuition. If not that, the birth, death or marriage is of such importance to the immediate family that it is presumed the editor will be informed by some wireless or just grow into the information. Then when the paper comes out and no mention is made of the event the editor is blamed for not running a good newspaper and not getting all the news. Remember there are a good many people in this country. If the editor knew each of them by name, besides their family history, and the chief event in the lives of every individual, he wouldn't be an editor. He'd be a demi-god, resting his feet on a cloud and sipping ambrosia instead of inhabiting a broken-down office chair and wondering where the money for the next white paper bill is coming from. The life of the average newspaper man is a gawone. Gathering news is a second nature to him, like picking his teeth with office pen, and cussing the office towel. Just the same there's a limit to his omniscience. Last week we thought of a million, eight hundred and forty-nine thousand, three hundred and sixty-four things of importance, besides a couple of hundred thousand small items unworthy of mention. It was a slow week. We're anxious for news for the paper, and it won't put you out much to drop by the office or telephone us what's happening at your house. Then if the item doesn't get into the paper you have a right to come down and kick the stuffing out of the cat. Otherwise don't blame us.—Exchange.

Decrease In Overdrafts

Figures contained in the bank statement just issued by Superintendent of Banks H. S. Magraw indicate that the movement started by that official to reduce overdrafts in private and state banks is being received with favor by bankers generally throughout Montana.

The last call which was issued by Mr. Magraw September 2, and given out this week, shows that there has been a further decrease in overdrafts amounting to $102,224.83, since the date of the last previous call, June 23.

The list of 51 banks in the state that show no overdrafts at the last call contains the Ekalaka State Bank.
